Six Members of Family Injured, Two Critically, in Gasoline Explosion

On the first cold night of winter, tragedy struck a family of six Saturday when a gasoline explosion wrecked their home injuring all six members of the family, two of them critically.

Sgt. Kenneth L. Bales and his wife, 2403 E. St. Vrain St., were in extremely critical condition at Ft. Carson Hospital Saturday night. Their four children suffered minor burns in the accident.

Mrs. Bales suffered burns over 90 per cent of her body while Sgt. Bales was burned over 50 per cent of his body.

The children are being kept at Ft. Carson Hospital with their parents pending arrangements for their care.

The explosion occurred when Sgt. Bales apparently tipped over a can of gasoline he was using to clean the head of an engine. The highly volatile fluid spilled into a floor furnace causing the explosion which ripped through the family's living room blowing out the windows.

Officials of the Knob Hill Volunteer Fire Department said that there was almost no fire although smoke damaged most of the apartment. A sofa which was burned in the initial explosion began burning again about two hours after the accident.

Firemen said that Bales brought the head of an automobile engine into the living room of his apartment to clean it. He apparently placed the engine near the floor furnace and was

44 Firemen Hurt As They Battle Chicago Blazes

CHICAGO (AP) — Forty-four firemen were injured and an estimated million dollars worth of Christmas toys and goods devoured by flames Friday night and Saturday in a fire which raged out of control for 17 hours through a mammoth warehouse.

Most of the city's firemen and equipment were called out to battle the fire, which was declared struck out at 9:45 a.m.

Moments later, extra alarms were sounded for two other blazes at an empty warehouse and a railroad loading dock and the weary firemen were again called into action.

By noon Saturday, a fire department official said all three fires were under control and arson squads were on the scenes.

The latest outbreaks brought to five the number of major fires that have broken out on the South Side in November. The city has been plagued by a severe drought and less than one-half inch of rain has fallen in the past 45 days.

Fire officials originally estimated the damage to the long-burning warehouse at $2.5 million, but later revised the estimate to $1 million.

Driver Leaps Clear as Car Is Hit by Train

An unidentified man escaped injury late Saturday when he leaped from his car just before a train struck it in Monument.

Details of the accident were unavilable at press time.

British Restaurant at Last Will Serve Grits

LONDON (AP) — One of Britain's oldest restaurants announced Saturday, with some misgivings, that it is now prepared to put the South in your mouth.

In a blatant bid for tourist trade originating below America's Mason-Dixon Line, Stone's Chop House plans after considerable soul-searching, to serve grits.

Stone's lifted the veil on this adventurous culinary departure in a somewhat gingerly worded press statement which remarked: "Grits has — or have — always been the subject of great controversy. First, are they plural or is it singular?"

For the benefit of Britons who haven't cottoned to grits, Stone's defined them, or it, as "a white corn meal, ground to about the consistency of coffee, and very much like the African [illegible]."

The statement went on to say that it, or they, "are boiled in salted water and served as a mushy porridge in the morning, or as an adjunct to fried eggs, or as a vegetable, or with raisins in a pudding."

"They are eaten hot, cold, lukewarm or raw. They also are used as a fattener for the finest of hogs destined for the famous Virginia hams."

The decision to serve grits comes as a belated apology for the War of 1812 — the date of Stone's founding — in which the British burned the White House in Washington.

Stone's said that when advised of the decision its grand chef, Joseph [illegible], holder of the Grand Cross Culinaire, shrugged a French shrug and said:

"[illegible]" which means, "Okay, but why?"

Combined City, County Rule To Be Studied

The possibility of combining the city and county governments of Colorado Springs into one metropolitan government is being studied by the city charter Association.

"The recent controversy concerning the City Sales Tax has brought this problem to the fore," said Dr. Fred Sondermann, president of the group, "We want to at least study the benefits and problems involved in a government of this kind.

"Denver is operated under this type of plan, with a government for the city and county of Denver combined. We want to explore the possibilities of creating such a plan here in Colorado Springs."

In a news release, the association stated that it "will initiate appropriate efforts at the coming session of the State Assembly, if required. We expect also to support the efforts of other individuals and groups working toward a similar end."

Rail Strike May Be Prevented, Spokesmen Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although members of six unions are ready to strike most of the nation's major railroads Nov. 23, the head of a presidential emergency board which studied the dispute said he believes there will be no strike.

Former Philadelphia Mayor Richardson Dilworth was quoted by radio station WRCV-NBC in Philadelphia as saying that the dispute would end up in the White House and that the strike threat is "just formal negotiation tactics."

Federal mediators plan to continue talks with both sides in the dispute over wages and fringe benefits Monday in Chicago.

The six shop unions, numbering more than 150,000 members, are free to walk off their jobs after midnight Nov. 19 when a 30-day mandatory waiting period expires.

Don't Blow Nose; Cold May Leave More Quickly

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Dr. J. Grant Irving hasn't blown his nose since 1933.

He insists that his "don't blow" idea prevents the common cold from lasting for more than two or three days and shouldn't be sneezed at.

People with colds who do blow run the risk of prolonging their illness for weeks, says Irving, who is chief medical director of the Aetna Life Insurance Co.

Irving has a band of about 200 followers who, he says, have been adhering to his advice for years and who will tell you that he's right.

It was 21 years ago, while he was a graduate student at Edinburgh University in Scotland, that Irving first learned of the dangers of nose blowing from a professor of ear, nose and throat surgery.

Irving offers this explanation:

"When an individual blows his nose, he not only expels infected mucus into his handkerchief, but also forces it into the sinuses.

"As a result, the lining membrane of the sinus becomes infected and pours out its own mucus. Eventually the sinus fills and a spillover into the nasal cavity occurs.

"So he blows his nose and the 'vicious cycle' that keeps the cold alive begins again."

Israel, Syria Claim Air Battle Victories

By FAROUK NASSAR

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian and Israeli jets battled Saturday north of the Sea of Galilee, a day after the heaviest border fighting between the two enemies in years. Each side accused the other of provoking the air clash, and each claimed victory.

Asyrian communique said Israeli planes flew across the border, "our air force intercepted the Israeli planes" and in a series of air battles an Israeli jet "was seen exploding in mid-air after receiving a direct hit. All our planes returned safely to bases."

In Tel Aviv, a military spokesman denied any Israeli plane was lost, said four Syrian Soviet-made MIG21s penetrated into Israel's air space, were driven off and one of them was hit.

The spokesman said the hit on the Syrian plane was clearly observed by the pilot who had engaged it but that it was not seen to crash. Reliable sources in Damascus said the battle was between the four MIGs and four Israeli French-made Mirage jets.

The air battle occurred in the area where Israeli and Syrian ground forces fought for an hour and 40 minutes Friday with tanks and artillary. This battle ended when unopposed Israeli planes crossed the frontier and pounded Syrian batteries with napalm and gunfire.

Even before Saturday's air clash, Syria moved to seek a U.N. Security Council meeting on the Friday fighting, and had broadcast this warning to Israel: "The Syrian army is poised to teach Israel severe lessons and will not stop any more at the limit of repelling aggression."

The ground fighting left seven

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Karl Mundt, R-S.D., proposed Saturday an all-faction Republican summit conference, presided over by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, to hammer out agreement on future GOP policies.

Mundt, who supported Sen. Barry Goldwater's disastrously defeated bid for the presidency, said Goldwater should be included in a group which could act on policy and possibly recommend a successor to Republican National Chairman Dean Burch.

Mundt said he thinks Burch "is not long for his job." He said he has heard the name of Wayne Hood, Wisconsin businessman who served as field director for the national committee in the Goldwater campaign, mentioned as a possible successor.

The conservative South Dakota senator suggested in an interview with former President Eisenhower as chairman, meet before Christmas to seek unanimous agreement on "new programs and policies to be advanced as we expand our appeal to all Americans."

In addition to Eisenhower and Goldwater, he proposed this group include Richard M. Nixon, the 1960 GOP presidential nominee, Govs. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and George Romney of Michigan and the two congressional minority leaders Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

For other members he suggested the names of Sen.-elect George Murphy of California and Drake Eden, state chairman of South Carolina which went for Goldwater.

Republicans Divided Over Issue of Burch

By LARRY OSIUS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Among Republican National Committee members willing to take a stand, opinion is almost evenly divided on whether Dean Burch should in effect be ousted as party chairman.

But a much larger number of members won't say how they'll vote if the matter is brought up at a proposed committee meeting, probably in January.

Burch was quoted this week as saying he would be unable to continue as chairman if the committee should adopt a no-confidence motion.

None of the committee members responding to an Associated Press survey would say he'll sponsor such a motion, but several said they expect one will be made.

U. S. Will Build Missile Arms for Germans

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will build three guided missile destroyers for West Germany and will buy a new 20 millimeter automatic gun from that country under agreements signed Saturday by the defense chiefs of the two countries.

A communique of meetings conducted here by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and West German Defense Minister Kai-uwe von Hassel announced this among other results of the conference.

On the subject of a NATO nuclear fleet, the communique said that the two defense chiefs "agreed that their respective defense establishments should be prepared to implement the concept as soon as possible after the requisite international political decisions have been made."

Peanut Butter Regulated by Government

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government finally got around to regulating peanut butter.

The Food and Drug Administration decreed Saturday that a jar of peanut butter must contain no less than 90 per cent peanuts, which it called "a reasonable and practical amount."

A spokesman said some manufacturers in the past were "sticking in too much lard and stuff" to keep their peanut butter from sticking to the roof of the mouth.

Saturday's published standard is the result of more than three years of negotiations between the FDA and peanut butter makers. Interested persons have until Dec. 10 to submit written comments to the FDA on the ruling.

Leaning Tower of Pisa May Fall at Any Moment

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — An Italian research scientist warned the government Saturday the Leaning Tower of Pisa may fall down at any moment.

Prof. Gustavo Colonnetti, president-emeritus of the National Research Council, said even a violent windstorm might blow down the 184-foot white marble tower.

The Italian Ministry of Public Works said Prof. Colonnetti's warning and report on the condition of the tilting tower had been received and would be examined by Public Works Minister Giacomo Mancini as soon as he returns from a trip.

The Tower of Pisa now slants almost 11 feet off true perpendicular. The tilt has increased by a quarter of an inch in the past 45 years.

Plans for the future of the tower have been expressed for decades, but most experts have predicted that even at the present increasing rate of tilt the tower should stand for at least another century.

Prof. Colonnetti said in an interview with the Florence newspaper La Nazione, however, that the peril has become

LBJ to Plan 'Operation Birthright' for Young

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson and two Cabinet members talked Saturday of getting health care and bigger Social Security checks for the elderly and launching "Operation Birthright" for the young.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz pictured the next 60 days of financial and legislative planning by the administration as providing "an extraordinary opportunity for really a magnificent breakthrough."

He described Operation Birthright as an effort to keep college and job doors from slamming in the faces of half a million of the 3.5 million boys and girls who will reach 18 in 1965. Details are still vague.

The labor secretary said "No, sir, I do not" when asked if he expects a rail strike. He said there is no plan to bring the threatened strike of nonoperating rail unions before Congress.

Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze predicted passage of some sort of hospital care program for the elderly patterned after the administration bill to tie it into Social Security system.

Celebrezze also predicted the administration will seek something in the nature of a flat $7 monthly increase in Social Security benefits approved by the Senate this year, as part of a one-package bill including health care.

Wirtz and Celebrezze met with the President at his ranch Friday and Saturday and then with reporters in Austin, 65 miles to the east.

Sunday the President goes back to Washington and a series of conferences on reports from task forces he named to come up with ideas for bettering the lot of Americans.

Both his Cabinet visitors said Johnson once again is bearing down heavily on economy in the new budgets for their departments.

Celebrezze said he expects his budget to go up from about $7.1 billion this year to [illegible] next year because of [illegible] items of legislation passed in the last Congress. None of the [illegible]

Eleven Students At Girls School On Honor Roll

Eleven students at the Colorado Springs School for Girls earned honor roll grades during the first academic quarter of the 1964-65 team, Mrs. J. Randolph Campbell, headmistress, announced this week.

Those averaging B-plus or better included:

Grade 10: Ann Hendrie and Ann Stites.

Grade 12: Anne Clausen and Paula Johnson.

In complimenting the honor roll group, Mrs. Campbell pointed out students maintaining a B-plus or better average "may feel confident of admission to any of the nation's most demanding colleges."

Mrs. Campbell added that the local school places considerable emphasis on academic and counseling programs designed to prepare the students for admission to colleges and universities.

Specific strengths of individual institutions of higher learning are a part of the preparatory school's counseling service, Mrs. Campbell explained.

College admission deans are frequent visitors at the school at 26 Pourtales Road and all girls in grades ten through twelve are encouraged to attend meetings with the officials in order to begin outlining their college goals. Student interests and aptitudes are emphasized in making college applications, Mrs. Campbell added.

One of the major phases of the school's college counseling program involves consultations between faculty members and the girls concerned. The programs' importance is keyed to "the opportunity for informal chats between the pupil and informed adults who have great personal interest in her future. This personal interest can be the greatest single factor in establishing a student's self confidence and developing intellectual drive," Mrs. Campbell concluded.

About 40 of every 1,000 children in the nation receive some form of tax-supported aid as dependent children, the Health, Education and Welfare Department reports.

CALVES-IN-CARTONS

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — As part of a duty-free agreement between the United States and Italian governments to permit shipment of 100,000 United States calves before the end of 1964 to help end a cattle shortage on the continent, a new air freight designation has been contrived: "calves-in-carton."

Calves ranging in age from seven days to two weeks are loaded into cartons made of cardboard, wood, and wire. They are handled by crews like ordinary cargo, and arrive at their destination in eight hours. Because of the ease of handling, a special freight rate of 41 cents a pound has been approved—less than one third the rate previously applied to animals. Landed in Milan at 70 cents a pound or less—roughly $20 per head—this represents a $2 million market competitive with calves produced in Italy or imported from other European countries.

Farmer Loses Tax Dispute With Revenuers

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH

CHICAGO (AP) — William Lusk, 58, ended his 15-year battle with "those government tax boys" Friday and went home to his Southern Illinois farm $100,000 poorer.

Wearing a hearing aid rented for him by the government at $1 a day, Lusk calmly watched as federal Judge James B. Parsons signed a court order divesting Lusk freed from County Jail, securities.

Judge Parsons also ordered Lusk freed fdom County Jail, where he had been since May on a contempt-of-court order. At that time he refused to produce the stocks.

"Maybe I should have hired a lawyer when all these troubles started," Lusk said after court. "Now I'll go back to the farm to harvest a crop of hops and gather my scattered chickens."

The hearing aid was necessary because Lusk, a bachelor, is nearly deaf and often has been unable to understand his court-appointed attorneys or the court.

The government will use the securities to satisfy nearly $79,000 in income tax liens dating back to 1945. Funds remaining will be returned to Lusk.

For years the fiercely independent farmer ignored government summons and claims. Once drawn into court, Lusk refused to pay, claiming the "tax boys" must have erred in their calculations.

Last December, however, he offered to settle with the government for $500.

The federal prosecutor termed the offer ridiculous, and Judge Parsons ordered Lusk to take a mental examination.

"This guy is one for the books," said attorney Sidney J. Goldstein, appointed last year to defend Lusk.

"I'm sure the government would have settled for less," Goldstein said, "provided that he would consent to sell his securities and then turn in the money.

"But he'd rather go down the drain than compromise, even though he knows the government wouldn't bend."

Lusk's only complaint Friday, Goldstein said, was the fact that the case had lasted only 15 years.

"He wanted to beat Sgt. (Alvin) York's record of 17 years," Goldstein said. York, the World War I hero who died recently, also was involved in a tax dispute with the government.

THREE FOR THREE

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Mike Shannon hit a 450-foot home run off the left field scoreboard in the opening World Series game for the Cardinals it marked the third big blast Yankee Whitey Ford has allowed in as many Series starts.

Ford holds a record — 33 consecutive scoreless World Series innings. The Giants snapped the string in the second inning of the opening Series game in 1962.

Problem of Braceros Is Discussed

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) — The bracero labor problem was discussed Friday by President Johnson and Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, president-elect of Mexico.

Informed government sources said that if the approaching end of the bracero law leads to a shortage of farm workers, "both the United States and Mexico will be interested in seeing what can be done to fill that shortage."

Diaz Ordaz said he and Johnson surveyed problems that necessarily go along with the end of the program.

Braceros are Mexican laborers, allowed to cross into the United States during the summer months to pick crops. They are used primarily in the Mexican border states, especially Texas and California, but many travel as far as Oregon, Wisconsin and Indiana for jobs.

The law under which they were allowed to enter the country will expire Dec. 31. Congress has not renewed it, despite protests by farmers' organizations that now there will not be enough farmhands to pick the crops next summer.

The farmers say it is hard to get Americans to do this kind of stoop-and-pick labor.

Labor organizations opposed the bracero program.

Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, who was at the LBJ Ranch Friday and Saturday, is now making a study to see if there are enough U.S. workers available to replace the Mexicans.

Sources said there is no clear picture yet on the available supply of field workers, but that both countries would see what could be done to remedy a shortage if one turns up.

Diaz Ordaz said he and Johnson also discussed means of reducing illegal border crossing by Mexicans looking for farm jobs in the U.S. without the proper permits.

By MARY L. SHIRER
For the Pikes Peak Group of the Colorado Mountain Club

For Pikes Peak Group of Colorado Mountain Club.

The sun has set and the heat of the summer day begins to wane after the sun sets; the chill of the night settles over all the country and as the hours pass, the air becomes snappy and the thermometer drops lower. The twilight hours seem to creep upon the earth quietly but surely after the sun drops behind the horizon. Nature becomes silent and bids all people to repose. Night comes forth and the world must stop; and darker and darker the shadows fall while sleep reigns over all. The busy cares of the day have ceased and a calm retreat takes their place. The sable goddess from her ebony throne sits in sunless majesty and stretches forth her leaden sceptre over all the slumbering world. How silent and how profound the darkness becomes! So still and soft is the air that you feel almost transformed into another world.

Those strange hours which we call night must come to a close just as daytime came to a close and just as sure as the world moves, the break of day must appear. The morning must steal upon the night and all the darkness must melt away. There is something about the break of day that effects us differently than any other part of the day. We seem to be entering upon a new world and the past seems so far away. Even what we did just the day before has disappeared far in the past. The day is just time and that day must cease to be but daybreak is the expectation of new things.

After the first dim light of day comes more light and more bird songs and soon the eastern gate if fiery red and all the mountain tops are bathed in rosy tints. The morning light which casts its quivering beams over plains, mountains and streams is a precious sight to behold. Those few hours of early morning are something so wonderful that we wish we could make them last longer. We hold them in our memory forever but somehow they must fade into a day of work and toil. Mornings are mysterious for we know not what the day will bring forth but sweet is the breath of morn for it wakes all the earliest birds and all the flowers of field and mountainside and they love the sweep of the cool clear sky. Morning in the mountain is bright and fresh and sends down to all who live below its sweet incense.

At the break of day, we start on a journey and we are filled with the realization of the long expected hour, and in the same way we look forward to that new day at the light of dawn. In the dark hours of the night, we wonder what the day will bring forth. All wildlife is stirring at the break of day. The deer hunt the mountains, the squirrels and chipmunks are scampering over rocks in search of food and the marmots in timberline country are running over bouiders playfully. Bluejays announce themselves by scolding and the chickadees may come to your window and peek in. The break of day means so much to us in both summer and winter.

Hunter Plays Dead With Grizzly Bear

WHITEFISH, Mont. (AP) — Montana hunter Halbert Harvey played dead, and he credits the corpse-like pose with preventing him from becoming one in a fight with a grizzly bear.

The 60-year-old Whitefish lawyer, hunting north of here Wednesday, had just passed a big spruce tree when he heard a noise, turned and saw the grizzly charging.

The silvertip's first swipe spun Harvey's rifle away and sent him sprawling.

There he stayed as if dead, his faced pushed into the hillside, while the grizzly bit and clawed him. The bear finally walked away.

Hunting companion Dan Shera, some [illegible] yards away, heard the commotion and hurried to the spot to find his injured friend.

A CLOSE CALL — Airman 2. C. Robert N. Gareri resorts to "fighter pilot language" to tell his commanding officer (left) Capt. Robert H. Gardner, how a car was forced to pass an unidentified truck he chased down the road. Airman 1. C. Larry G. Ent Airman Wins Race Against Careening Truck

Airman 2.C. Robert M. Gareri dashed 100 yards in record time to avoid certain calamity at Peterson Field last Thursday, and won. His opponent in the dramatic contest was a two and a half ton, red and black driverless truck.

Airman Gareri had stopped his car at the intersection of Peterson and Sixth Streets when the vehicle rolled by in front of him.

Racing after the free-wheeling truck, on foot, while dodging traffic, the airman managed to reach the cab of the driverless vehicle, throw open the door, and apply the emergency brake.

Later, Airman Gareri and passerby Airman 1.C. Gillen, who stopped some of the oncoming traffic for the dash man, surveyed the situation with their commander, Capt. Robert H. Gardner of the 4600th supply Sq., Ent Air Force Base.

Said Captain Gardner, "It's quite possible that the careening truck could have run into a house," pointing to a small one-story structure which was in the path of the truck.

"However, when these events are all over and done with, and nobody is injured and no property damage has occurred, it's difficult to tell what might have happened with the truck lurching all over the road as it was."

A gust of strong wind at the Peterson Field construction site is believed to have set the contractor's truck in motion along its level, but swift flight down the road.

That's a Lot Of Turkey For Anybody

Nearly 25 tons of turkey will be shipped in to Ft. Carson to supply Thanksgiving demands at the mountain post.

The troops here will have 4800 pounds of shrimp and 1900 pounds of fruit cake to go with their Thanksgiving dinners.

"Young Toms" weighting between 16 and 24 pounds are borght by the Defense Subsistence Supply Center in Chicago throughout the year to accommodate planned service menus.

The birds average 20 pounds. Approximately 1,250,000 of these birds were purchased to meet this year's demands.

In carloads, this represents about 800 freight cars, each carrying 30,000 pounds.

The center also purchases about 3 million pounds of boneless turkey rolls for submarines and long-range aircraft flights.

German Editor To Lecture At CU Monday

Dr. Franz Oexle, a West German political editor, will give a free, public lecture on "The Political Scene in West Germany" at 3:10 p.m. Monday in the West Ballroom of the University of Colorado Memorial Center.

The talk will be under auspices of the CU School of Journalism.

Oexle, 42, is in the United States under a State Department travel and study grant. He is on the staff of Sudkurier (Daily Newspaper) of Constance, Germany, and he has been a correspondent for that paper in Berlin, Bonn and London.

As a member of the German Army in World War II, Oexle spent three years on the Russian Front and was captured in 1945 by the American Army on the Rhine Front.

He was educated at Tubingen and Freiburg Universities in Germany, and he also has studied at Basel University in Switzerland and at the University of

THE FAMILY LAWYER

One of these days you will open your newspaper and see a picture to wrench the heart. Taken at the courthouse, the picture will show the last grim scene of a custody battle. A small boy is being dragged out of the courtroom by his triumphant mother. His little arms are stretched pleadingly toward his helpless father. On the boy's face there is pure anguish.

Is justice so blind? Should a child be forced to go with the parent he hates instead of the parent he loves?

Certainly, in the proper circumstances, the law does take into consideration the wishes of the child. His preference is entitled to due weight, in proportion to his age and intelligence. It may even be the deciding factor.

But seldom can it be the only factor. The child's welfare, not the child's wishes, must come first. The basic rule in custody cases is: do what is best for the child. Four fifths of the children of divorce are awarded to the mother not becasue so many children make that choice but because, in most cases, they will get better care that way.

Occasionally a child's aversion for one parent is so deep that it would make their life together unbearable. But all too often, a child's preference for one parent over the other is really just a preference for less spankings and more ice cream sodas.

Thus one court gave no weight at all to a seven-year old girl's preference for her father. The only reason the stepfather "bought me a diamond ring."

In another case, a 14-year-old girl wanted to live with her indulgent father. But it also appeared that the father had an ugly temper, a sever drinking problem, and a penchant for sexual adventures. Awarding custody to the girl' mother, the court said:

"The building of her character through the association, solicitude, counsel, and devotion of the mother is of much greatpleasures that may come to her through the humorings of a doting father."

After all, that photograph in the newspaper depicts but a single fleeting moment in the life of the child. The law must consider all the moments that went before, and all the moments that are yet to come.

replying, this was how they stood on a possible non-confidence motion:

Thirteen said they would vote for it and 14 said they would vote against it; 70 members were noncommittal, among whom 12 had strong praise for Burch and 9 were critical of him.

Several members, ill or on vacation trips, could not be reached. At least two of them previously had publicly called for Burch's resignation.

Burch was installed last July at the behest of Sen. Barry Goldwater, the GOP presidential nominee. His term as chairman was for four years, and even those committee members who oppose him said they doubt that he could be ousted by a direct vote as opposed to a motion of no confidence

At least one, William Powers of Colorado, implied a vote might not be necessary "Mr. Burch is a good Republican and he should be able to determine for himself whether or not he has the confidence of the group," Powers said.

In a dispatch from Jamaica, where Goldwater and Burch have been vacationing, the New York Times said Saturday that the GOP leaders will fight back if necessary to hold the leadership of the party.

The account quoted Goldwater's running mate, Rep. William E. Miller, as saying Burch should stay and that "I am sure Barry shares this view." Burch was quoted as saying he will seek an early vote of confidence from the national committee.

The District of Columbia committeeman, Lewis T. Breuninger, predicted "a new face as chairman" but without a party-splitting no-confidence vote.

Russian - Built Plane Supplies Congo's Rebels

Uganda for the Congo's Communist-backed rebels, according to reports reaching Leopoldville Saturday.

Diplomatic sources said there was "a 100 per cent probability" that the reports were true. They said the plane, with all its markings painted out, landed three truckloads of supplies at the Ugandan town of Arua, close to the Congo's northeastern border, on Oct. 31.

The crew of the four-engine turbojet plane was white and was believed to be Algerian, the reports said. They added that it was believed the aircraft had flown to Arua from Tanganyika.

The reports said the trucks, laden with small boxes resembling crates of small arms ammunition, left immediately in the direction of the Congolese town just inside rebel - held territory.

Observers here noted that the flight followed a desperate radio appeal by Christophe Gbenye, self-proclaimed president of the "Congolese People's Republic" in Stanleyville, calling for help from Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella and four other African leaders.

Gbenye demanded help "within the next few hours" from Ben Bella, Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah, Guinea's President Sekou Toure, President Modibo Keita of Mali and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic. None is known to have replied openly to Gbenye's appeal.

The reports dated the landing at Arua a few days before Tanganyikan President Julius Nyerere had formally denied that his country was being used as a base for subversion of other independent African states.

imminent because the base is beginning to oscillate when the 14,000-ton tower is swept by strong winds.

The white-bearded research scientist, who has spent much time in private studies of the tower, said this oscillation was first noted Oct. 13.

In his report, Colonnetti recommended:

1. That no one be allowed in or immediately around the tower during windstorms.

2. That no further work be allowed on or near the foundation of the tower which might in any way "alter the precarious balance."

3. That emergency scaffolding or any other available bracing materials be prepared and kept ready for urgent positioning in case of any alarm.

"And it is beyond doubt," he added, "that if some such apparatus is not used promptly the tower will fall in the shortest period of time and nothing will be able to prevent it."

The tower was started in 1173 when Pisa was one of Italy's powerful maritime republics. The sandy soil began to give way beneath one side when the tower was barely half completed. Work was stopped, but was resumed in 1275 and the tower was finished in 1284.

Vatican Council Clears Way for Unity Proposals

In an unusually heavy day, the council fathers approved — 1,870 to 82 — a series of minor text changes in the schema "De Ecumenismo" (On Unity), the last working step before the Pope can issue the document as a full church decree. It provides for a program of common prayer with Protestants and some intercommunion with the Orthodox church.

At the same time, the prelates received copies of minor changes in the major document "De Ecclesia" (On the Church) and were told that voting on these changes would take place next Tuesday and Wednesday.

This increased the possibility that the schema — which establishes the principle that bishops share collectively with the Pope in governing the church — will also be ready for proclamation when Pope Paul and the more than 2,000 council fathers end this session in a public ceremonial gathering in St. Peter's Basilica next Saturday.

Newsmen at the American bishops' press panel were told after this morning's session that translations were being readied not only on the unity and church schemas but also on revised declarations on the Jews and on religious liberty. A panel spokesman said translations from the Latin were being readied in the hope that all four documents might be proclaimed on the last day of the session.

The day's developments marked a sudden shift in mood in council circles. Up until now it had been widely reported that only the unity schema — and possibly the document on shared papal-episcopal power — would reach the final stage, with proclamation of the declarations on the Jews and religious liberty left over for the fourth session of the council.

Despite preparation of the translations, it was pointed out that there is no certainty the declarations, or even the De Ecclesia schema, would be promulgated next Saturday.

But the council is clearly determined to try to get as much done as possible. Archbishop Pericle Felici, council secretary-general, announced there would be afternoon sessions next week if necessary. The council normally meets only in the morning.

Only two schemata have been proclaimed since the council began in October 1962 — a document reforming church liturgy, [illegible]

Undersheriff Fired After Game of Dice

iff Vern Terpening to stay away from the pre-arranged game when his office was informed it was taking place in an empty building.

"I didn't like the setup of the whole thing, and I questioned the legality and procedures of halting a game in a private building without a search warrant," Smith said.

The sheriff also revoked the sheriff's deputy commission of Frank Bazzell, a county judge-elect who joined Terpening Thursday in arresting three men who took part in the game.

The three were taken to Justice of the Peace court and released on $200 bond each, pending trial Nov. 27.

Colorado's constitution prohibits gambling, but the Central City Town Council has established a gaming board and issued two gaming licenses on the basis of its 1864 territorial charter.

In firing Terpening, a welder who also operates a leather goods shop, the sheriff said:

"I'm trying to control my office and, when a member of the staff acts without authority, I have to take action."

Terpening, 41, has been Gilpin County undersheriff three years. The post pays $150 a month.

Israel, Syria Claim Air Battle Victories

Syrians dead and 26 wounded. Israel reported it had lost three killed and nine wounded.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Syria's U.N. delegate, Dr. Rafik Asha, had been instructed to explore prospects of calling a Security Council meeting to take up this serious Israeli aggression in which the air force was used."

The foreign minister, Dr. Hassan Mreweid, also summoned the ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France and explained to them the "graveness of the latest Israeli aggression."

The spokesman said Mreweid also called the ambassadors of all Arab countries in Damascus and briefed them on the border situation. All the ambassadors pledged their countries would back Syria against any fresh Israeli attack and would consider such an attack as directed against their countries.

It was not clear whether the ambassadors' pledges were made before or after news of the air battle became known.

In Israel, Prime Minister Levi Eshkol, Army Chief of Staff Gen. Izhak Rabin and the northern area commander, Col. David Dado, toured the Dan and Shear Yishuv region of Upper Galilee where the ground fighting took place.

Israeli army officers charged the border clash was planned by Spria in advance because, they said, all civilian air traffic over Syria ceased an hour before the first shot was fired. Spria accused Israel of shooting first.

LBJ to Plan 'Operation Birthright' for Young

he said, will be for new programs.

With respect to federal economizing, one report that reached Johnson Saturday, from Budget Director Kermit Gordon, was that federal employment in September was at the lowest level in two and a half years.

It was down from August, to a total of 2,449,527. Some of the decrease was seasonal White House officials said, but they said the decline in regularly employed persons was 23,700 as compared with September 1963.

Wirtz said with reference to 18-year-olds that there will be a million more of them reach that age next year than this.

"Unless we do more about this situation," he said, "one out of every seven of those 3.5 million boys and girls is going to have a door slammed in his or her face, and it is going to be either a job door or it is going to be a college door."

Two hundred thousand, he said will be unable to get into college because there isn't room for them and 300,000 will be trying to get jobs that are not available.

"So," the secretary said, "we have, in my view of it, starting Jan. 1, about an eight-month countdown period to make good on our obligations to about half a million boys and girls in this country.

"Call it, if you want to, Operation Birthright, and it compares with operation birth rate 18 years ago, because what we face is simply the fact that in 1946, after the war, there was a tremendous increase in the birth rate. Now our question is whether we are going to make good as citizens on what we did as parents 18 years ago, and it is just that simple."

Moscow Blasts Atomic Testing By Red China

Indicates Little Progress

Western observers said publication of the article, which originally was an Oct. 27 declaration, indicated that the talks between Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai and Kremlin leaders registered little progress in sealing the Sino-Soviet split.

"The nuclear test carried out . . . on Oct. 16 caused us deep regret and apprehension, those who have fought many years for a ban on nuclear tests forever," the Bernal artical said.

"It led to radioactive pollution of the atmosphere and may be used by other states as a pretext for furthering the nuclear arms race and the spread of atomic weapons."

Cites order Conflict

The journal also published a charge by East German Communist chief Walter Ulbricht that China caused a border conflict with the Soviet Union.

Communist China "starts one border conflict after another—first against India, then against the Soviet Union," Ulbricht said, according to "Problems of Peace and Socialism."

Diplomats reported another possible sign of conflict. They said neither Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland nor Bulgaria sent their ambassadors to the Moscow airport farewell for Chou.

speaker of the House next session, brought the word out of a closed caucus discussion.

"Where we think he is right, we will work with him," Dines said. "Where we think he is wrong we will show him how his position could be better."

Dines won the speakership over three other contestants, one of whom withdrew at the last minute. The three were Reps. Forrest Burns of Lamar, Charles Conklin of Delta and Phillip Massari of Trinidad. Massari nominated Dines after bowing out.

Robert Maytag, state Democratic chairman, announced the vote as Dines 31, Conklin 6 and Burns 3.

Moments later Burns was chosen floor leader unanimously, succeeding Dines, when Rep. Mark Hogan of Denver declined a nomination. Hogan later was given the post of whip, or assistant floor leader.

Rep. Lowell Compton of La Junta, who was not present, was named caucus chairman over freshman Rep. J. D. MacFarlane of Pueblo, 22-18.

The new speaker said he will announce his choices for two Democratic members of the Joint Budget Committee within a week and also will name a new chief clerk of the House within that period.

Rep. Star Caywood of Walsenburg, now a budget committee member, is considered certain for one of the budget appointments.

Candidates for the chief clerk post—a year around job — includes Mrs. Evelyn Davidson of Denver, state Democratic vice chairman, and retiring Rep. Kane of Northglenn.

A luncheon wound up the meeting. Dines said no further caucuses are planned until the legislature convenes Jan. 6 unless major problems develop. Announcement of most committee and patronage appointments may be deferred until that time, the speaker indicated.

The House Democrats were the first legislators to organize. The Republican majority of the Senate, the Democratic minority of the Senate and the Republican minority of the House have organizational meetings scheduled for next Saturday.

Dines said no decisions on policy were reached during the House Democratic caucus, but state aid to schools and state finances were discussed. Caywood briefed the new members on budgetary problems — including requests of schools and colleges, institutions and departments for [illegible]

Ford May Stop Production in Face of Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co., with 59,000 idled by strike or layoff, said Saturday it anticipated additional furloughing Monday and there was a possibility it will be knocked out of automobile production by the weekend.

The when and where of the next layoffs will be determined Monday morning, a Ford spokesman said.

The company blames 34,900 layoffs to strikes by the United Auto Workers union at seven plants, four of them key parts producers for Ford's far-flung automaking complex. The strikes themselves have idled 24,100.

The strikes were called Nov. 6 to support local demands for inclusion in at the plant working agreements which supplement the national contract on which Ford and the UAW agreed Sept. 18.

Originally, the UAW struck nine plants.

Two have since settled, both assembly operations which in no way relieve what the company says is parts starvation.

Unless strikes are ended, Ford said its 90-plant system will be down by next weekend, idling approximately 160,000 hourly rated workers.

using the gasoline to clean it when the accident occurred.

Two neighbors were credited with pulling the family from the apartment following the explosion.

Richard Porter and Jim Thompson, tenants in another apartment in the complex, heard the blast and came running to the Bales home. According to a neighbor, Porter went in through the front door and dragged both Sgt. Bales and his wife to safety. Thompson, continued the neighbor, "smashed through the window in the back bedroom and pulled out the four Bales children."

Sgt. and Mrs. Bales and their four children were taken to Ft. Carson Hospital. Authorities there said the oldest Bales child, Sharon, 8 had superficial burns. Kenneth. 7, Hazel, 5 and the Bales' youngest child had very minor burns.

Water Rationing Signals Are Up, Officials Warn

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Geological Survey says "warning signals are up" for water rationing in some eastern cities unless there is a quick break in the nationwide drought.

The survey said Friday that a spot check of water supplies across the country disclosed severe water shortages across the country in a band stretching from New England to California.

Hardest hit, according to the survey, are the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and parts of New England. Conditions there were reported "very severe and very near all time lows."

A spokesman said there was not yet any widespread water rationing in cities, nor curtailment of employment in industries relying on water to operate.

But, he added, "warning signals are up. We are at the break point. We could have serious problems."

Other states facing water deficiencies, according to the survey, included Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Vermont in New England.

Other water-short states cited were Ohio, Indiana, central Missouri, eastern Colorado and parts of Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Utah and southeast California.

Carson Soldiers Mugged Friday

Two Ft. Carson soldiers were attacked and beaten after leaving a local bar Friday, police reported.

David Jackson and James E. Smith, both of Ft. Carson, told police they left a bar and began walking down Pikes Peak Avenue. They were attacked in the 500 block of the avenue by five or six males who began to beat them. Two wallets containing papers but no money were taken from Jackson, and their assailants also were armed with knives which they used during the fight.

Jackson had multiple lacerations on his face, one cut requiring 15 stitches to close and the other six stitches. Smith had a cut on his nose requiring three stitches and a possible chipped bone.

Motor Scooter Stolen But Not for Long

A motor scooter valued at $150 was taken from a carport Thursday, and alert patrolman recovered the scooter and apprehended the thieves before the owner realized it was missing, police reported.

The scooter, belonging to Dale L. Duncan, 1527 N. Tejon St., was taken by two juveniles at approximately 9:45 p.m. Thursday from the Duncan carport. At 11 p.m., patrolman Ernest Adams and Larry Castner saw two boys on a scooter run a stop light at Patrician Way and Afton Way. They gave chase, and the boys abandoned the scooter in an alley and ran, one of them being apprehended by the patrolman.

Upon questioning by police, the apprehended youth said he had "an urge to steal the motor scooter when he saw it parked in the carport," according to the report. He gave the name of the youth who was with him, and also admitted he is on parole at the present time. He was taken to the Detention Home, and the other was referred to the juvenile bureau.

Ent Bootstrap Students Set Enrollment Record

"All previous college course nrollment records by Ent AFB military personnel have een shattered" said A. A. Christopher, base education oficer this week.

The figures released, appropriately enough during American Education Week (Nov. 8-14), show, 2,149 persons signed up for off-duty college classes.

This compares with 1,329 enrollments for higher education in 1963.

Last year, Ent had 58 persons on Operation Bootstrap. All of these students completed their degree requirements and returned to the Air Force jobs with diplomas.

Accounting for part of the tatistics on this year's record re 606 students taking or havng completed the college-accredited Ent Language Laboraory courses.

German, French, Spanish and ussian languages are taught y highly - qualified instructors rom Colorado Springs and the Air Force Academy in the unique laboratory with the aid of elaborate audio equipment.

Students attempting to build credits toward qualifying for bootstrap, have several different paths which they may follow. Southern Colorado State College and Colorado University both offer night classes for military and civilian education seekers. Within several semesters or quarters a conscientious student can accumulate a considerable number of college credits.

For those unable to attend classes, nearly every institution of higher learning in the country offers correspondence courses.

The United States Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) augments the civilian organizations with numer-courses, many designed specifically for the military.

BOTANISTS TO PACIFIC

LONDON — A British scientific expedition to the Solomon Islands will be made next year. It will consist of a party of marine biologists to study the shallow water and shore-line life, and another party of botanists and zoologists. The expedition, which will be led by E. J. H. Corner, a botanist from Cambridge University, will spend about six months in the Solomon group.

Nothing Like a Cozy Fire, Even the Bugs Love Them

In the basemnt of the University of Colorado Chemistry Building a two-foot-square box is helping researchers find out what happens when light hits a molecule.

The fundamental knowledge gained could lead to a greater understanding of the effects of radiation on chemical and biological systems.

The gray box — a high-aperture grating spectrograph — is about as intricate as its name. It resembles a complicated camera.

Asst. Prof. Stewart J. Strickler and graduate student Frederick M. Stein of Las Vegas, Nev., are using it and other intricate instruments to study the absorption and emission of light by molecules and related processes.

They are working under a $26,000 grant from the National Science Foundatiin, just announced, which follows a $1,500 "seed money" grant from the Petroleum Research Fund under which Strickler began the project a year ago.

Immediate aim of the two chemists is to use the amount and nature of light absorbed or emitted by various molecules to gain a better understanding of the electronic structure and properties in either static or excited states.

They are using the spectrograph to study emissions from molecules after the molecules have been excited by ligh waves. The light emitted by a molecule is sent into the spectrograph and then bounced around via mirrors inside the machine and finally photographed on a glass plate.

Inside the spectrograph, the various wave lengths of light are separated and can be studied individually in detail by using the "pictures."

Strickler said the knowledge gained by the research hopefully will bring a more complete understaing of effects of radiation on chemical and biological systems and it will add to the knowledge of processes which follow the absorption of energy.

Strickler came to CU a year ago after graduating from the College of Wooster in Ohio and taking his Ph.D. from Florida State University. He was a National Science Foundation Fellow from 1956 to 1960. He also has done graduate work at the University of California, Berkley, and he has lectured in Chemistry at Rice.

Approximately thirty more K-marts will open within the next year.

THIS NATIONWIDE ACCEPTANCE OF K-MART CAME ABOUT BECAUSE OF—

Canadian Protestant Churches Plan Unity

TORONTO, Ont. (AP) — A blueprint for uniting Canada's two largest Protestant churches into the Church of Canada has been completed, but leaders of both said realization is still years away.

The plan for uniting the Anglican and United Churches of Canada into a communion of nearly four million persons was three years in preparation. Talks on church union first started in 1943.

Under the proposed union, baptism and the Lord's Supper would be the only two sacraments recognized. Five lesser sacraments traditionally recognized by the Anglicans — marriage, ordination, assisting the sick, penance and confirmation — would be dropped.

Harsite Completes Circle After Seven Long Years

In 1957 an anonymous officer member of the NORAD component Air Defense Command made a trip by car to a ranch at the foot of Cheyenne Mountain.

He next made the long hike to the 7000 foot mark on the northeast face of the mountain. Here he paused and glanced at the breathtaking view to the east over the Colorado plains.

Then going about his intended mission he spent the next few hours with measurements, samples of rocks and figures. If the mountain that day in 1957 had been a living thing, knowledgeable in the ways of man, it would immediately have braced itself for a change.

Cheyenne Mountain was but one of seven locations in the immediate Colorado Springs area then getting the same treatment. Four were first eliminated and the three remaining got the detailed studies and subsurface investigations.

Next came the vertical and horizontal drilling extending some 1200 to 2300 feet into the mountains and the valley floor. The geologists and engineers were concerned with how this part of the world was molded prior to making comparative cost estimates for the construction.

During the intervening period — some seven years — the few military men visiting the complex, were concerned only with construction. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers were the overseers of the complete construction phase.

But during these years Cheyenne Mountain ran the gamut of nearly every type of construction worker. They made the trip up Cheyenne Mountain in something less than ten minutes over the one - million - dollar access road which was built in 1959. There was one over - all construction stoppage on the project. Congressional deliberations on the eventual requirement for a NORAD combat operations center located some 2800 feet under solid granite caused that halt.

Since the go - ahead decision was made, geologists, surveyors, steel workers, carpenters, sheet metal workers, plasterers, acoustical tile experts, hard rock miners, engineers, heavy and light construction equipment operators, electricians and plumbers, to name a few, have almost daily made that same trip.

Their assigned mission was to give NORAD an invulnerable command post in which the staff of the North American Air Defense Command can work safely in the day-to-day job of protecting the North American Continent from surprise enemy aerospace attack.

During the latter part of October 1964 the 360 degree full circle was completed. Two Ent Air Force Base Air Policemen made the first patrol of the access road leading to that same 7000 foot location. When they arrived, they looked into a gaping hole in the mountain. It was the main entrance to the huge NORAD combat operations center hardned location.

Although the construction job still remains the responsibility of the civilian contractor, the APs were giving themselves plenty of lead time in preparation for the eventual complete takeover of security measures.

The Ent Air Police contingent, which will be increased by over 75 men, will one day be running a closed circuit television monitoring room within the COC complex, conducting continuous road patrols, guarding access roads, regulating the admittance of visitors as well as pounding the beat throughout the complex.

At approximately the same time, eleven members of the component Air Defense Command 4600th Civil Engineering Squadron took up permanent housekeeping duty within the complex. Although their working equipment now consists of sparse office furniture, it is a start toward the day when they will be working in the midst of some 37½ million dollars worth of equipment.

The entry of Air Defense Command housekeeping personnel into the picture did kick off what will be an eventual full-scale takeover of the awe-inspiring underground combat operations center by the NORAD battle staff who are members of the U.S. Army, Navy, Air Force and the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The hardsite itself is scheduled to go operational late in 1965. There will be the normal interim period of testing when the bugs in the equipment — much of it being developed for this utilization — will be ironed out. There will be periods of testing when the actual operations will still be double-checked by the present COC at Ent Air Force Base.

Then will come the phasing out of the old and the operational phasing in of the new. Next will come the day when the cave in Cheyenne Mountain with the eleven steel buildings, some of which are three stories high, will be THE location where the space and airway approaches to the North American Continent are monitored. The exact time when the fully operational status will be attained is now a classified military secret.

Soviet Rule Seen as Big Threat by Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon says the ouster of Soviet Premier Khrushchev poses a greater world threat. Nixon said President Johnson should not "coast" because of his election victory.

Nixon left by plane Friday on a business trip to Japan and the Far East. He is due back on Nov. 29.

At Kennedy Airport he told newsmen: "The change of government in the Soviet Union has not been properly measured by our people or our government in terms of its significance.

"The danger is infinitely greater than it was because the new leaders and the one leader they will pick are younger, hungrier and tougher than Khrushchev."

Nixon said Johnson was "elected on the most barren program of any candidate in recent history" and may have "a tendency to coast" because of the size of the victory.

Nixon also said, as he has before, that despite his differences with New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller over the presidential campaign, he regarded Rockefeller as a good governor and would vote for him if he ran for re-election in 1966.

Abolishing of State Job Is Recommended

DENVER (AP) — Abolishing the $900-a-month State Institutions Department job held by Ruben Gurule, a Republican who bolted the Democrats, was urged Friday by the Legislative Committee on State Institutions.

Gurule is coordinator of community services for juvenile delinquency, a specially created post. The committee called it "superfluous."

The committee also recommended:

Lowering the age limit for juveniles from 18 to 16, declaring that 16 and 17-year-old delinquents can be as malicious as adult offenders.

Revising laws to provide that publication of names in juvenile cases would be automatic unless, for good cause, the court decides there should be no publicity.

Repealing Colorado's joyriding statute so that offenders would be subject to a felony conviction instead of a misdemeanor.

Passing legislation to require counties to share the cost of Lookout Mountain School for Boys and Mont View Girls' School "to create a community awareness of the problem."

Rebuilding of State GOP Is Being Sought

DENVER (AP) — Rebuilding of the Republican party in Colorado was discussed Friday at a meeting of 44 party leaders, including Gov. John Love and Sen. Gordon Allott.

State Republican Chairman Paul Wolf said the session included discussion of "Project 66," which Wolf said is "a plan for winning the 1966 election in Colorado."

There were reports that Allott, Love and Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., who is in Europe, support Tom Carney of Jefferson County as a successor to Wolf as party chairman.

Wolf, a strong backer of Sen. Barry Goldwater, has indicated he may relinquish the chairman's post in March.

Allott, acknowledging he would seek a reorganization of the party, told newsmen "We ought to permit the dust to settle" before making any major changes.

Among those at Friday's meeting was Jean Tool, Denver advertising man and former party chairman. He worked for the nomination of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller as the 1964 presidential candidate and then went to Arkansas to work for Winthrop Rockefeller's unsuccessful bid for the governorship.

Ent Sergeants Visit Carson NCOs Recently

Ent Air Force Bases's First Sergeant Council came into being Oct. 26, and already has met with the base commander twice and just recently paid a visit to the senior NCOs of Ft. Carson.

At Ft. Carson the Council viewed a display consisting of self propelled artillery, combat engineer equipment, a feild water purification plant, a mobile engineer bridge, a H48A2 medium tank, Davey Crockett missile system, helicopter and a 4.2 inch mortar mounted on an armored personnel carrier.

Then, the council witnessed the Ft. Carson monthly batallion - size retirement and review ceremony which was highlighted by the first appearance of the Ft. Carson mounted color guard Guard uniforms depict old traditional calvary attire.

Following the review, the Council met with the Ft. Carson Sergeant Major and other key Army NCOs.

The purpose of the Council is to provide for an additional means of communicating with personnel on subjects of significance and importance to the base commander. It is to provide first hand information on recommendations for improvement of morale and effectiveness of units and subsequently a higher level of mature understanding and respect. The Council will normally convene on the third Thursday of each month. Recommendations or suggestions made by the First Sergeants Council are taken under advisement by the base commander and resolved or implemented where feasible.

Meetings Set To Establish Center Program

Prospective students for graduate courses in business administration and electrical engineering at the Cragmor campus of the University of Colorado will meet with deans next week.

Business students will have a choice of attending two sessions, either next Monday or Wednesday in Room 128, Palmer Hall, on the Colorado College campus.

The Monday meeting will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday sessions will be 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Students with bachelor's degrees, who want to begin the master's program in business, but did not turn in their names, are welcome to attend any session.

The proposed engineering program also includes undergraduate courses in applied mathematics and physics.

If prospective engineering students have a bachelor's degree, they are asked by CU to mail transcripts of previous college work to Prof. Frank Barnes, Electrical Engineering Department, University of Colorado, Boulder, 80304.

After Tuesday, CU requests that students not send transcripts.

Instead they suggest that transcripts be brought to a Thursday meeting of prospective engineering students for graduate courses.

This meeting will be 7:30 p.m. Thuraday in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium, 112½ E. Pikes Peak Ave.

"After the series of meetings, the University will be in a better position to know how many students are qualified to enter a graduate program and what courses should be initially offered," a CU spokesman said.

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — The rock ground squirrel of the southeastern American deserts has remained alive and active for as long as 100 days without water, according to experiments by the University of California's Division of Life Sciences.

The squirrel may thus be the champion non - drinker among mammals that do not conserve their body water by hibernation. The camel, for instance, can last only about a month without water.

Opportunities Seen At Four Corners

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP)—Industrial and recreation potentialities of the Four Corners area were stressed Friday at the opening session of the two-day Four Corners Employment Conference.

Some 40 veterans employment representatives, Navajo tribal officials and state officials from Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico and Utah are attending the meeting.

Tht conference, designed to evaluate and stimulate job opportunities particularly among Indian exservicemen, heard two main speakers.

Lloyd House, Social Security director for the Navajo tribe, described efforts being made by the Bureau of Indian Affairs to bring industrial development to the reservation.

Al Tudor, public information manager for Arizona Public Service Co. which has a power plant near Farmington on the reservation, told of plans for a ninestate power transmission network.

He said the network would provide 34,000 new jobs and by 1986 would mean an annual payroll of $207 million, retail sales amounting to $75.2 million and local taxes of $75 million.

The session winds up today with a tour of the Four Corners Monument west of Farmington and a speech by Glenn R. Landbloom of Window Rock, Ariz., the general superintendent of the Navajo agency.

Movie Stunt Man Killed in Crash

GALLUP, N.M. (AP)—A motion picture stunt man was killed Friday when he failed to jump from a wagon as it crashed into a 15-foot gulley near Lupton, Ariz., about 25 miles west of here.

Nate Edwards, production manager for the film, Hallelujah Trail, identified the stunt man as Bill Williams, about 30, of Los Angeles. A second stunt man, Buff Brady, suffered injured ribs in the same incident, a doctor said.

A Mirisch Production Co. has been making the movie on location in the Gallup and Lupton areas. Work is expected to be completed this weekend.

Williams' wife witnessed the accident. The couple has two children.

David Is a Typical Boy, Except That He Can't Hear

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

David O'Toole, his blue eyes shining, jogged off the wrestling mat. He dodged a teammate and walked to the chairs which lined the room.

He was dressed in sweat pants and a white T-shirt. He grinned, revealing one broken front tooth, almost typical to a 10-year-old. He sat down and his legs dangled slightly off the front of the chair.

The stranger sitting beside him spoke and a look of polite confusion crossed David's face. He turned to Armin Turechek, superintendent of the Colorado School for the Deaf and the Blind, for aid. Turechek reworded the greeting, mouthing the words carefully. David turned back and smiled again at the stranger, answering a clear but labored tone.

David O'Toole is deaf. He is the son of deaf parents. Yet, David is as much like every other 10-year-old as an individual fellow can be. He likes hamburgers, swimming and going home to Thornton on the weekends. He went to public school there for a while. But he had a hard time keeping up with the "hearing" children, despite his obvious alertness.

"David has been with us just one month," Turechek said. "And he is doing very well. Of course, with deaf parents, he has quite an advantage over deaf children with hearing parents. His mother, who once went to school here, speaks very well and she probably had him watching her lips from the time he was very young.

"People like David have a more difficult time in another way, however, because there is no outward sign of his handicap. Many deaf persons wear hearing aides although they do not help. The person merely wants to have an outward sign that he is disabled."

The 13 rock buildings that make up the school loom ominously above East Kiowa Street and appear almost foreboding. They are a home, however, for 244 children who run and laugh. David is one of 168 deaf children also there are 76 blind students enrolled. Their ages range from 5 to 20 and Turechek said if they had more space and facilities, they would like to have more deaf children begin school there at 2 or 3 years of age.

There are 46 members of the teaching staff at the school including a librarian, music teachers and two principals, one for the deaf and one for the blind. Five of the teachers are deaf, three are hard-of-hearing, one is blind and one is partially blind. In addition to these, there are 18 house parents.

"We teach some special classes along with the usual arithmetic., spelling and history." Turechek said, explaining more about the school. "We teach blind children braille and use the Taylor Slate Method of teaching arithmetic. We have special courses in speech and lip reading for the deaf.

"Everyone does a little lip reading. In fact, they conducted a test in California not long ago and the girl who scored the highest on the lip reading test had no handicap.

"But etaching lip reading is a slow process. A person's hearing knowledge of words helps him a great deal in this area. A deaf child never has had a chance to hear the words, thus, his knowledge is severly limited.

"After one year of classes in lip reading, a child usually has a basic vocabulary. He knows about 200 words. He knows certain commands but he can't read any other words no matter how many times you repeat them. He just doesn't know the words or what they look like on your lips.

"The thing that's hurting us now is automation. Of course lately you hear lots of complaints about that but semi-skilled jobs are where we try to place most of the children from here. Actually schools for the deaf were pioneers of vocational schools. The first boy who came here brought a font of type. Our school paper has descended from the paper he originated."

The Colorado School for the Deaf and the Blind was founded here in 1874, before Colorado became a state. General Palmer donated the present site at that time and in 1876 a school for the deaf was moved there from its downtown location. In 1883 the school admitted the first blind child, creating the school for both.

Slurry Bomber Returned to Base in Cody

The B-17 slurry bomber used here by the U.S. Forest Service has returned to its base in Cody, Wyo.

With the plane went Ray Elgin, the pilot, who lives in the small town of Wapiti, Wyo.

This fall, the Peterson Field-based plane dropped 34,000 gallons of the mud-water slurry mix on forest fires in Colorado and Wyoming.

The big plane dropped 4,000 gallons on Pike National Forest, which is supervised from Colorado Springs, including a jettisoned load of 2,000 gallons.

The bomber delivered loads of 2,000 gallons to eight national forests. The forests' supervisory offices and gallonages dropped are:

—Medicine Bow National Forest, Laramie, Wyo., 4,000.

—White River National Forest, Glenwood Springs, 16,000.

—Arapaho National Forest, Idaho Springs, 4,000.

—Roosevelt National Forest, Fort Collins, 2,000.

—Gunnison National Forest, Gunnison, 2,000.

—San Juan National Forest, Durango, 4,000.

—Rio Grande National Forest, 2,000.

The flights and other fire fighting activities in this area were handled through Dispatcher Robert Poole in the supervisor's office of Pike National Forest.

During the hunting season, when the danger of man caused forest fires was high, flights were made in a light plane by the Forest Service over most of Pike National Forest.

The search for smoke was concentrated over mountain valleys and open areas where hunters' vehicles were evident.

When searching for fires caused by lightning after a storm, an opposite procedure is followed. The high points on forested mountains are scanned for smoke.

Business as Usual Monday At Remodeled Post Office

Counter service at the newly remodeled Colorado Springs Post Office Building, Pikes Peak and Nevada Aves., will begin at 8:30 a.m. Monday. Replacing the old grilled windows will be a bank-type counter in the east end of the building, with sections included for stamps, parcel post, registry and claims. The counter will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on weekdays.

A bronze - colored metal grillwork wall separates the east and west sections of the building. The metal doors in the wall will be closed from 5:30 p.m. to 8: 30 a.m. on weekdays.

The west door on Pikes Peak Ave. will be open 24 hours a day. Patrons will thus have access at all times to the mailboxes, which line the entire inside west wall where the old windows were, and extend around the corner on the inside north wall.

The floor in the customer area is ivory - colored terrazzo tile, and the floor in the service area is black plank asphalt tile.

A new 70 - foot loading dock has been added to the east side of the building. New doors were constructed on the north side of the building to match the one constructed on the west side.

Moving was in progress Saturday. Mail was withdrawn from boxes in the temporary building at 527 S. Tejon St. at 4 p.m. Saturday and was transferred to the new boxes.

The curb side mail box was to be moved from the corner of Moreno and Tejon Sts. early Sunday morning. It will be installed in its original position in the alley south of the Post Office Building, which can be approached by driving into the alley from Nevada Ave.

The main branch of the post office has occupied the temporary quarters for the past 14 months, during remodeling of the building, which was first opened in 1909.

Bickley Construction Co. was in charge of the remodeling and repair of the building. Primary changes were the installation of new ventilating and heating systems, repainting the office, new lobbies and other inside changes. Cost of the project was about $231,000.

No remodeling was done to the second floor of the building, which houses recruiting offices for the Marine Corps, Air Force and Army, and offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the postal inspectors and the draft board.

Postmaster R. H. Wardwell asked customers to be patient, because the transfer may cause a few delays in service for the next few days.

Kelly Johnson to Address Aeronautics Dining-in

Kelly Johnson — a man who has played a major role in design of some of the world's finest aircraft — will be guest speaker at a special Department of Aeronautics dining-in at 5:45 p.m. Friday in the Air Force Academy Officers' Club.

The dining-in — first of its kind — is being held in conjunction with the Departments of Electrical Engineering and Astronautics.

Clarence L. (Kelly) Johnson, vice president for Advanced Development Projects, Lockheed Aircraft, had a hand in designning the P-80 "Shooting Star," America's first production jet; the high altitude U-2; the remarkable F-104 "Starfighter"; and the A-11, described recently by President Johnson as "the fastest airplane in the world."

Johnson will also deliver a non-classified briefing on the A-11 to 1,100 members of the First and Second Classes.

According to Col. G. H. Crocker, professor and head of the Department of Aeronautics, the dining-in is designed to "foster communication between the Commandant of Cadets chain of command and members of the engineering sciences division of the faculty."

In addition to providing an atmosphere for discussing mutual problems concerning cadet education and military training, Col. Crocker said, the dinin-in will enable members of the faculty and COC staff to broaden their base of acquaintance and professional contacts at the Academy.

Johnson, and a second top ranking Lockheed official, will arrive at Peterson Field at about 10 a.m. on the 20th. They will lunch at Mitchell Hall and tour the cadet area that afternoon.

Kelly Johnson has contributed significantly to 40 different Lockheed airplane designs, 19 of which were primarily his products. Some have never been disclosed and may never be disclosed! Some are among the best known aircraft in the world: the Hudson, Constitution, and Jet Star.

He has been with Lockheed since 1933 and in May of this year was named a member of the corporation's Board of Directors.

KELLY JOHNSON

In October 1959, his work as designer of the F-104 airframe earned Johnson a share of the Collier Trophy — an award he shared with General Electric and the Air Force.

Other major honors he has received include: the 1937 Lawrence Sperry Award for improvement of design of high speed commercial aircraft; the 1941 Wright Brother Medal for work on control problems of four-engine aircraft; the 1956 Sylvanus Reed Award for design and rapid development of high performance subsonic and supersonic aircraft; and the 1960 Gen. Hap Arnold Gold Medal for design of the U-2.

In 1964, President Johnson presented Johnson the Medal of Freedom, the highest civil honor he can bestow, and 10 days later Kelly was again in Washington to receive his second Collier Trophy for his work on the YF-12A intercepter.

Choral Society Sets Auditions For 'Elijah'

The Colorado Springs Choral Society, which achieved success with "Finian's Rainbow," is now at work on its next presentation of the season, Mendelssohn's "Elijah," and has announced that it will hold auditions.

"Elijah" will be staged at the Fine Arts Center Theater Jan. 31, 1965. Singers for all parts are still needed and David Porter, director of the Colorado Springs Chorale, invites all who are interested to attend rehearsal Monday, at 7:30 p.m., at the Riss Building, Cascade Avenue at Bijou Street.

Open auditions for solo parts for soprano, alto, tenor and baritone - bass are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Monday night. It is announced that one need not be presently a member of the chorale to participate in the tryouts for these parts. However, all who do will be required to sing an aria and a recititive from "Elijah."

This great oratorio, Porter says, is an inspiring and challenging work. He said Saturday that it is hoped many vocalists will share in the presentation.

Woodland Park Church To Welcome Pastor

The Woodland Park Community Church will hold a welcome for its new Pastor and his family, the Rev. Harold E. Zeigler, with a Hospitality, "Old Fashion Pounding," at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Church basement.

Members and friends of the Church are asked to come and enjoy an evening of fellowship and to welcome this family to our community. Refreshments will be served by the Candlelight and Service Guilds of the Church.

The Rev. and Mrs. Zeigler with their three children have just recently moved to Woodland from Missouri. They at present are living at the Spruce Haven Lodge.

Post Office Has New Battle Plan For Christmas

The Post Office Department has issued a booklet containing a battle plan to deal with the avalanche of Christmas mail.

The main branch of the Colorado Springs Post Office has just completed moving into its remodeled building. "We had to do it in time for the Christmas rush," said Colorado Springs Postmaster R. H. Wardwell.

The main plea for public cooperation appears on the first page of the Post Office Department booklet, "Shop Early, Mail Early, Use ZIP Codes."

The 56-page special Christmas Bulletin covers all contingencies from ABCD mail to ZIP Codes. The 1964 special edition is distributed to 100,000 persons, including postmasters and other key post office officials and is available on the bulletin boards of major postal installations for the use of all postal employes.

Postal officials estimate a three per cent increase in volume over last year's "rush" of about 6.7 billion pieces of mail entering the postal system in the two weeks before Christmas. This year, over seven billion individual pieces of mail are expected to be delivered just before Christmas. Each piece may be handled as many as ten times.

The bulletin notes that 145,000 Christmas assistants will be hired to help move the mails In 1963 there were 143,000 -and in 1962 approximately 300,000 persons were added to the rolls at Christmas time.

Extra services mentioned in the bulletin include: six - day parcel post service Dec. 7-31; seven - day parcel post service the two weeks before Christmas, if the need exists; and additional window service a local needs justify on the three Saturdays and Sundays before Christmas.

The bulletin also states that ABCD (Accelerated Business Collection-Delivery) will continue in operation even during the busiest days of the rush. Mail deposited in 271 downtown sections before 11 a.m. will be delivered before 3 p.m. to addresses in the same area.

Command posts will be set up in the 15 regional offices of the Department to handle any emergencies or unusual situations.

Custodial maintenance employees will be given overtime pay for the first time.

Mailing deadlines to assure before - Christmas delivery are listed as:

All surface mail to Hawaii and Alaska...Nov. 30.

—Gift parcels to distant U.S. points...Dec. 5.

—Air parcels to APO's...Dec. 10.

—Greeting cards to distant U.S. points...Dec. 10.

—Local gift parcels...Dec. 14.

—Local greeting cards...Dec. 15.

ZIP Code directories of 207 cities have been distributed to post offices. Patrons may obtain ZIP Codes for any addresses throughout the nation by calling local post office.

Homeowners are asked to avoid covering their home addresses with wreaths and other decorations so as not to hinder temporary mail carriers unfamiliar with the neighborhood.

Post Office Is Seeking Trucks For Christmas

The Colorado Springs Post Office announces that effective Nov. 16, 1964. sealed bids will be solicited for the purpose of supplying vehicles suitable for the delivery of mail during the Christmas period, on an hourly basis, without driver.

The Christmas period will be from Dec. 1, to Dec. 31, however, bidders are advised that very few vehicles will be used before Dec 14th

One-half and three-quarter ton pick-ups or panel trucks will be used in preference to other types of vehicles.

Bidders may secure bid forms from W. B. Green, Vehicle Operations Officer, Post Office Garage, 119 S. Sierra Madre.

The closing date for acceptance of bid forms will be November 30, 1964, at 2 p.m.

The flute, made By Bundy Instruments, belonged to Patricia J. Cook, of 1726 Kochare St. She told police she left it in the band room in its case Thursday, and it was missing Friday when she came to school.

Plains Water Helped Turn Drought From City's Door

By JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

At times this year more than 31 per cent of Colorado Springs' water supply was not coming from the reservoirs on the Pikes Peak watershed.

Nor was this water from the transmountain Blue River diversion or other surface water.

It was underground water pumped from beneath the parched plains of Eastern El Paso County and the Fountain Aquifer of water bearing gravel under part of the Fountain Valley.

The city gets underground water from three locations: the Venetucci and Clear Spring Ranch wells in Fountain Valley and the Squirrel Creek-Ellicott basin 20 miles southeast of Peterson Field.

The city's use of underground water has received little publicity, compared with the mountain diversion projects.

August was the month of greatest consumption of well water this year, not including October for which no statistics have been compiled.

In August, 31.4 per cent of the total city water consumption was from the three well locations. This was 347.3 million gallons.

Of this amount, the Cherokee Water District around Ellicott provided 255.8 million gallons, 23.2 per cent of the total city consumption; Clear Spring, 64.9 million gallons, 5.9 per cent; and Venetucci, 26.6 million gallons, 2.4 per cent.

In September, 29.6 per cent of the city's water was from wells, according to City Public Utilities Department figures.

Use of underground water has kept levels from dropping far lower in the city's mountain reservoirs.

At the last official report in October, the reservoirs were only filled at 53 per cent of capacity with about 5.5 billion gallons.

Until the first water from the Homestake Project reaches Colorado Springs in the spring of 1966, the city will probably continue to use large quantities of well water. Contracts with well owners continue beyond 1966.

The city's 10-year contract with the Cherokee District, signed May 4, 1963, was for 3,000 acre feet of water a year and up to 6,000 acre feet.

By comparison the Homestake Project is expected to make available 37,000 acre feet of water to Colorado Springs and an equal amount to Aurora.

The Cherokee water is delivered through 17 miles of snaking 24-inch pipe from the Ellicott-Squirrel Creek Basin. It is dumped in the city system at the 24-inch main under Academy Boulevard, between Palmer Park Boulevard and Galley Road.

It cost the Cherokee District approximately $2.5 million to lay the pipeline. They are selling water to the city for $60 an acre foot for the first 3,000 acre feet. The city has an option to purchase 3,000 additional acre feet for $50 an acre foot.

The contract with Clear Spring Ranch, signed in July, 1963, is for 2,000 acre feet a year for five years at $60 an acre. There is a similar contract with Venetucci, for less water.

The city plans to spend $1.8 million from 1964 to 1974 for Cherokee water. Since 1963 and to 1968 the estimated cost of Clear Spring water is $600,000. From 1954 to 1963 the city spent $291,211 to purchase well water from private sources.

Whenever the city has taken a drop of underground water it has become involved in lawsuits. Some litigation continues.

However, as one city official put it:

"What water is worth depends on how much you need it."

Since 1878 and through 2025 the city, through its Department of Public Utilities, has spent or will spend $95 million on its water collection, transmission, storage, filtration and distribution system, it has been estimated.

A sidelight to the Homestake Project, on which the city will probably eventually spend $35 million, is its connection with the continued granting of water taps by the City Council.

In July 1963, City Manager John M. Biery and the Director of Public Utilities Director Raymond D. Nixon said in a joint statement:

"The City Utility Department will expend some $35 million on on the Homestake water project. It must have water customers equal to the planned supply in order to pay the bonds and interest on this expenditure."

Reds Try to Seize Viet Relief Supplies

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. aid officials said today Communist guerrillas are fighting to seize relief supplies shipped to five flooded provinces where the death toll has mounted steadily. Officials estimated that nearly 7,000 Vietnamese have perished.

U.S. helicopters and trucks carrying food and other supplies to 700,000 flooded-out Vietnamese have come under attack.

A Viet Cong guerrilla unit attacked a U.S. military advisory compound in Quang Ngai City Friday with automatic weapons and grenades apparently in search of food and ammunition, a U.S. spokesman reported. He said no Americans were hurt.

A U.S. official said about 70,000 tons of rice will be required to feed the population of the flooded provinces until they can reap their next crop.

The Viet Cong are reported to have ordered the tearing up of identity cards in government regions now isolated by the floods from the protection of government troops. Many persons without identity cards are coming into relief regions along the coast.

CC Professor's Article Sheds Light on Reds

An article by a specialist in Far Eastern affairs sheds new light on the current Moscow talks aimed at ending the ideological dispute between Russia and Red China

The article is by Prof. Frank H. Tucker, of the Colorado College history department. Prior to joining the faculty at the independent liberal arts college last year, Professor Tucker was employed by the Navy in its Far Eastern affairs program.

Professor Tucker's article called "Sino - Soviet Relations as Conditioned by Competition of Fractions and Pressure Groups in the USSR," is one of 12 making up a book entitled "Studies of Asia, 1964," published by the University of Nebraska Press.

Professor Tucker said the deterioration of relations between China and Russia was the result of concern on the part of certain factions in Russia with the allocation of limited resources and with the authority and prestige of the Soviet state.

He said the result has been withdrawal of aid and technical assistance to Red China, and the growing struggle to maintain Russia's role as the leader of the world-wide Communist movement.

Professor Tucker noted that "doctrinaire" or neo - Stanlinist groups within Russia would like to see closer relations between the two Communist giants.

The Colorado College professor said Soviet foreign aid programs have made unwelcome demands on the national economy.

Professor Tucker thinks the Soviet government refused to allocate more resources to develop Chinese industry because the people of Russia could not and would not tolerate a gigantic aid-to-China program.

Some authorities believe this was the primary cause of the conflict that has developed between China and Russia.

The most important among the demands for limited resources have been competition for un-reduced ground forces and an all-out missile and space program, on the one hand, and on the other, the need for industry for capital investment and the people's aspirations for a better standard of living, he said.

Girl Killed as Police Car Strikes Cyclers

GRINNELL, Iowa (AP) — A city police car ran into four Grinnell College coeds riding bicycles on a highway outside of town late Friday night. One girl died and three were injured.

Killed instantly was Jacqueline Ruth Freeman, 18, of Glencoe, Ill.

Authorities said she was the last in line as the girls rode single file to get back before the midnight curfew at the college.

All four bikes were hit. The squad car was returning from chasing a motorist out of the city.

Injured were Michele Anderson, 17, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Najwa Adra, 18, of Westbury, N.Y., and Lynda Thoman, 17, of Lincoln, Neb.

Police Sgt. Jerry Phipps, the driver, and Patrolman Ed Butcher, said they were blinded by lights of an oncoming car and did not see the girls.

LONDON — Commonwealth students in Britain who do not want to go home are becoming a problem, says a report published recently. The students want to stay after their scholarships have run out because they can get better jobs here.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Joel is like millions of modern young people who are worshiping "Vocational Guidance." Vocational analysis is often helpful but the leaders of American business, industry and the professions never took any vocational guidance tests. Instead, they followed the advice of the Jewish merchant shown below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE U-428: Joel T., aged 21, recently graduated from college.

"But he is a problem," his worried father began.

"For Joel has refused to take two positions that I would consider wonderful.

"He claims his personality must be in harmony with the job he accepts and he felt there was no future in those two positions.

"So he has loafed around the house for the pat six months, smoking cigarets and watching TV.

"Now he thinks he needs an expensive vocational guidance analysis. Dr. Crane, is it true that there is a 'one and only' job best suited to each person?"

Actually, there is no future in ANY job!

For the future is always in the worker who holds that job.

Jobs are just rungs on the ladder to success.

But rungs don't move upward; they are stationary.

It's the man or woman who steps on those rungs who does the climbing toward the top.

Whether you now wash dishes in a restaurant or shine shoes or peddle newspapers and magazines, you can get to the top if you relize your future lies in yourself!

In fact, analyze WHO'S WHO and you will find that the presidents of big corporations started out from all sorts of lowly rungs on the ladder to success.

A Jewish merchant in Baltimore once gave me some splendid advice for my psychology students at George Washington University.

I was teaching the various psychology courses in Business Psychology, Vocational Guidance, etc.

"Dr. Crane," this wealthy merchant began, "tell your students to take the best job available at the moment.

"Urge them to perform it to the best of their ability.

"But warn them to keep on the lookout for better openings up ahead!"

That is still superb advice. It means that you should not remain idle or loaf around like Joel.

For every job offers helpful experience with people or business and mechanical gadgets, which in the long run you can capitalize on.

So don't become so idolatrous that you worship Vocational Guidance.

A battery of vocational guidance tests and a $500 fee may help assure you that as of this moment you are best equipped for dentistry or sales work, teaching or farming.

But human beings are not fixed and unchanging.

For example, today you might rate zero as a typist but inside of a few months, if you have the grim determination to take a typing course, you may blossom out as the best speed typist in your area.

Even a shy chemist or timid bookkeeper, can change in a few months and become a success at such a rigorous, extrovertive job as selling.

All of our modern vocational tests offer helpful sign posts, but you yourself must still furnish the motive power and the lubrication.

Moreover, the best lubrication for success even today is still good old-fashioned "elbow grease," meaning diligent work.

"Genius," said Thomas Edison, "is one per cent inspiration and ninety-nine per cent perspiraton!"

So Joel should quit mooching cigarets and get to work at once!

Old Estate Ordered to Be Liquidated

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The estate of a man reputed to be the richest American when the 13 colonies won independence was ordered liquidated Friday and its $838,000 assets — all cash — distributed to 315 heirs, some of them Englishmen.

William Bingham, Philadelphia merchant and landowner who had been a senator from Pennsylvania in the 2nd U.S. Congress, died in 1804 while visiting Britain.

His estate was held in trust. Once the estate owned two million acres in Maine that was sold abobut the time of the Civil War, 100 years ago.

Bingham also had extensive property holdings in New York and Pennsylvania, including huge tracts of wilderness in Potter, McKean, Elk and Tioga counties on this state's northern border.

Some of the land was held jointly with his father-in-law, Thomas Willing, a former mayor of Philadelphia and an associate justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court before and after the Revolutionary War.

Wolf Creek Pass Sports Center Seen

MONTE VISTA, Colo. (AP)— The U.S. Forest Service today released a prospectus for a $2 million sports center on the east slope of Wolf Creek Pass.

E. W. Stevens, superintendent of the Rio Grande National Forest with headquarters here, said the prospectus for possible development of the area by commercial operators was drafted because of interest shown by businessmen of the San Luis Valley.

The prospectus calls for ski facilities, a lodge, swimming pool, tennis courts, ice skating rink, boating facilities and condominium apartments at a site in the Alberta Lake area four miles down the east side of the pass on U.S. 160.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the Wolf Creek Pass ski area would open Saturday, Nov. 21, with a number of improvements made since last season, including doubling the length of the beginners slope. The area will operate on weekends and two other days in the week as yet unspecified and for the period of Dec. 20-Jan. 3.

Pair Fined $75 Each on Drag Racing Charges

Robert Kongsberg, 21, 1314 W. Kiowa St., and Charles Dewayne Berry, 23, 3022 N. Aircadia St., were found guilty in Municipal Court Friday of drag racing.

Kongsberg and Berry were each fined $75. Each is to have $25 of his fine suspended if he attends the traffic safety lecture Nov. 18 in the City Auditorium. A 5-day stay of execution was granted by Judge Allan Asher. Drivers licenses of both defendants are to be revoked.

Attorney Ben Fann represented the defendants.

Patrolman Gilmore testified that he had observed the two cars side by side "under heavy acceleration" eastbound in the 300 block of E. Platte Ave. He said that he and his partner, Patrolman Butler, could hear the sound of the "engines and squalling tires" from almost two blocks away. He said that he heard two separate tire squalls. At Wahsatch St. and Platte Ave., he said, one car was a car length ahead.

He estimated their maximum speed at between 40 and 50 m.p.h. and their speed when passing the patrol car at 20 and 25 m.p.h. The officer said that he had reissued the summonses. He admitted that the place of the arrest was not filled in on one of the reissued summonses.

City Attorney Robert Isaac explained that the two original summonses, one by Gilmore, and one by Butler, had been quashed because neither summons included the section number of the violation.

Kongsberg testified that he had stopped at the intersection of Weber St. and Platte Ave. to wait for the light to change. He said that he had started in first gear, then shifted directly into fourth gear. He estimated his maximum speed at 30 m.p.h. He said that the light had just changed when Berry's car approached, and that Berry's car did not stop. He said that Berry's car was 1½ car lengths ahead of him, and that there was no conversation between the cars.

Berry testified that he had coasted to the light in second gear, then shifted to third after the intersection. He said that his 1952 Chevrolet had a 1960 Oldsmobile engine, and that he had participated in drag racing, but only on the drag strip.

Heavy acceleration, Berry said, would have produced a speed of 60 to 70 m.p.h. by the end of the block. He said that he had been traveling at about 30 m.p.h., and that he was one to one and a half car lengths ahead of Kongsberg. He said that as his car came up off the bump in the street, it "got light" and the brakes squealed when he came down.

Testimony given by Bob Bishop, who was riding with Kongsberg, and by James Case, who was riding with Berry, differed in no essentials from the testimony given by the defendants. Both witnesses testified that they were acquainted with the defendants.

Attorney Ben Fann also represented Marshall Gray in Gray's trial in Municipal Court Thursday.

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

All was not serious discussion at meetings of the Board of Education of Colorado Springs School District No. 11, which I reported for many years, and where it was that I finally stumbled because of deafness and had to ask someone to review the proceedings for me after adjournment. One of those most helpful in this way was W. D. Corley, who now and then I see and we recall old events, and another was Superintendent of Schools Roy J. Wasson.

But I started to write of lighter moments at School Board meetings. At one meeting somehow or other the members got to talking about the "animals", as they said, on the board. There was the venerable secretary, Thomas J. Fox, Superintendent of Schools Frederick Baer, the Rev. Robert Bruce Wolf, long president of the board, and William S. Roe, principal of the Colorado Springs High School.

Roe was a schoolmate of mine at the East Denver High School. He was first lieutenant of the Cadet Company I was in. He was two classes ahead of me and was a renowned student of the East Denver High School.

At a meeting of the Board of Education one night I sat at a side table, reading a magazine and half listening for anything that might make an interesting news story when I heard Dr. Wolf ask Superintendent Baer if he was ready for the board to appoint the new High School principal. He said he was. They asked him if he was sure that Bill Roe was the one he wanted appointed. He said he was.

At mention of the name I pricked up my ears.

"They say that even at the East Denver High School Roe was a brilliant student and took everything they had. They didn't have Greek in the curriculum but the Principal Smiley taught him Greek on the side.

"What is that?" I interrupted. "Bill Roe for High School principal here. He was first lieutenant of my Cadet Company and I was an awkward private in the rear rank. He used to whack me with the flat of his sword. I vote 'No'. " He never did strike me with his sword, but I got a laugh, and they said after he had been named principal, that they had outvoted me.

The next day Roe entered the Gazette Telegraph news room and walked right over to me, with outstretched hand, saying, "How are you Dudley?"

"Who are you?" I asked.

"You ought to know," he replied. "You voted against me last night."

I told him I would never have recognized him, having not seen him since I went to school. He said he doubted if he would have recognized me on the street.

"But I knew I would find you here," he said.

I came greatly to value his friendship. Whenever I would go to the High School to make notes for an advance commencement story, he would stop any teacher who came through his office and introduce me.

"Dudley," he would say, "was a private in the rear rank of the Cadet company of which I was a proud lieutenant. I used to slap him, he says, with the flat of my sword.

He has been getting even ever since I came to Colorado Springs."

Proclamation Is Cited Text of Thanksgiving

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)— Here is the text of President Johnson's proclamation of Nov. 26 as Thanksgiving day:

As the harvest season draws to a close and our storehouses bulge with the bounty of the land, it is our desire to observe, in the custom and tradition of our forebears, a special day dedicated to giving thanks to God — a day on which to lay aside our daily tasks and cares and pay joyous homage to Him. We are impelled to raise our voices in His praise and to proclaim our heartfelt gratitude for another year in which we have been blessed with a bountiful harvest, with intellectual, humanitarian, economic, scientific and technical advances and achievements, and with other gains too numerous to mention.

Although we have been blessed with unsurpassed prosperity, we recognize that poverty and want exist throughout the world — even among us— and we pledge ourselves to the eradication of those evils.

We know, too, that the foundation for a peaceful world is still to be built and that even now armed strife exists in parts of the world. We are saddened that gallant men of our armed services have fallen in the eternal quest for peace with freedom, dignity, and justice for all. We share with their bereaved families and friends a sense of tragic loss. In the words of Abraham Lincoln, we resolve "that these honored dead shall not have died in vain," and vow that their loss will spur us ever onward until man's great dream of universal peace is realized.

Yet we are filled with an instinctive impulse to give thanks for —Our free society of free men, free institutions, and free elections;

—Our freedom of speech, our freedom of the press, and our freedom to worship as our conscience dictates;

—Our emphasis upon the dignity, equality, and worth of man:

—Our humanitarian instincts;

—Our unalienable right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;

—Our confidence in our ability to meet the challenges of today and of the future.

For these are the things that set us apart as a nation — that made our nation great — that will keep our nation great.

So as our forefathers in Virginia, in New England, and throughout this land have done for more than three and one half centuries, let us appoint a special day on which all of us, in keeping with the dictates of our own conscience, will give thanks to the Lord for His manifold blessings. And on that day, let us rededicate ourselves to meeting the challenges of the present with the fortitude and faith with which our forefathers met the challenges of the past.

Now, therefore, I, Lyndon B. Johnson, President of the United States of America, in consonance with the Joint Resolution of the Congress approved December 26, 1941, 55 Stat. 862 (5 U.S.C. 87B), designating the fourth Thursday of November in each year as Thanksgiving Day, do hereby proclaim Thursday, November 26, 1964, as a day of national thanksgiving.

On that day, let us gather in our homes and in our places of worship and in other suitable places to give thanks to God for His graciousness and His generosity to us — to pledge to Him our ever-lasting devotion — to beseech His divine guidance and the wisdom and strength to recognize and follow that guidance — and to pray to Him that the forces of evil, violence, indifference, intolerance, and inhumanity may soon vanish from the face of the earth and that peace, reason, understanding, and good will may reign supreme throughout the word.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this thirteenth day of November in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and sixty-four, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundrd and eighty-ninth.

Britisher Will Be Citizen Despite Charge

By BETTY HOPPER

SEATTLE (AP) — An alleged nap that turned into a nightmare has ended in a dream coming true for Britisher Albert Smith.

Smith, denied U.S. citizenship when a judge thought he was dozing during the naturalization ceremony, won it Friday when the court relented.

"I am very happy," the 30-year-old aerospace engineer for the Boeing Co. said when he learned of the decision.

Smith was among 91 persons who came before U.S. Dist. Judge William Beeks to be sworn into citizenship Monday. The judge was giving a little talk on the importance of the occasion when he thought he noticed Smith sleeping.

"Strike the name of that man from the list," ordered the judge.

Smith, who denied he had been napping — just listening with eyes downcast — sent the judge an apology "for giving the appearance of disrespect."

Judge Beeks turned it down and had the district immigration director draw up a motion for a rehearing on Smith's petition for citizenship. The motion tion for citizenship. The motion contained an apology "by the petitioner for his demeanor and conduct."

This time Smith balked. He his said conduct was beyond reproach and he refused to apologize for something he didn't do.

Smith, his Canadian-born wife, Sandra, and their two little girls, already American citizens, waited. The judge reflected.

Friday, Judge Beeks issued a memorandum decision concerning Smiths' letter of apology.

"It was courteous, dignified and it possessed the ring of sincerity," said the judge. "Upon reflection the court arrived at the conclusion that a person could in fact be asleep and at the same time honestly and sincerely believe that he was not."

Defection of Red Laos Troops Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reporting a favorable turn in the low-level war in Laos, U.S. officials say that more than 500 Communist Pathet Lao troops have defected to neutralist government forces.

Daily strikes of American-supplied T28 planes flown by the Royal Laos Air Force were credited with the upturn in the Laotian government's cause.

Sporadic air attacks in the early summer against Pathet Lao troop concentrations and road junctions have been stepped up within the past month.

Dist. 20 Plans $776,000 New Junior High School

The board of School District 20 (Air Academy) approved preliminary plans for a new Junior High School at the November meeting Thursday night.

However, the board could get little agreement at all on the plans for taking care of the classroom problem in the lower grades.

The board agreed to a flat fee agreement with the architectural firm of Bunts and Kelsey for the Junior High School.

The agreement calls for a fee based on 6½ per cent of the total estimated cost of $776,864, making the total fee about $50,400. The fee is negotiable if the total cost of the building varies 10 per cent up or down.

Lamar Bunts of the firm presented plans for the new building, but not a sketch of it.

The building is scheduled to go on a 20-acre plot in what is to be the Cimarron Hills Development area just south of Burgess Road and less than two miles east of the freeway.

Money for the building was assured last month when voters of the district gave overwhelming approval to a proposed bond issue for more than $700,000.

The new Junior High will have a total of 34 teaching stations.

The term teaching stations is a modern phrase for a place that can be used as a classroom so that teachers can instruct students.

This 32 includes 20 regular type classrooms in what was termed a "utilitarian school building."

The building will be designed to handle 765 pupils, will have a total of 54,779 square feet, and cost $1,015.51 per pupil of capacity.

The plan called for four science lecture laboratories, one homemaking room, one remedial reading room, one art room, one resources center (library for books and films,) an industrial arts room, a music room, a combination gymnasium, cafeteria and auditorium, and an office area.

After agreeing on the fee for the architectural work and the proposed plan for the new school, the board bogged down in a discussion of the elementary school room problem.

Supt. Howard Dunning told the board that it will have about $200,000 more to work with to pay for more classrooms for elementary students.

Another elementary school was discussed in September at the time the board was pondering what to do about its bulging classrooms.

At that time it was decided that the first thing to do was to build a junior high building, and lessen the crowding in the district's four elementary schools by taking the sixth grade out of each of the buildings.

Also at that time there was no money to work with. So the board set the bond issue vote for late October and earmarked that money for the junior high.

Since then, it has received about $200,000 in federal funds and stands to receive about $70,000 more.

Dunning reported every elementary school has classes in it which exceed more than 30 students, giving this breakdown: Black Forest - 2; Douglas Valley - 11; Pine Valley - 7; Woodman Valley - 3.

Russell Wolfe suggested that additions be added to the schools located on the academy. He pointed out that the Air Force has stated that it plans to build no more housing units on the Academy. However, he added, it may in the future reverse that stand and then the student population of that area of the district would go higher yet.

Col. Chris Munch, Academy liaison representative to the board, said that at this time the Air Force had no plans to add housing.

Bunts told the board that the cost of additions would run about $50,000 per building for two rooms, or about $100,000 for additions to the Douglas and Pine Valley schools.

Dunning pointed out that two flat spots of ground are located near the railroad underpass on the Academy grounds, and that perhaps one of them could be utilized as the site for a new school.

Board Member Fred Ferrar and Chairman Mrs. Emily Bissel then agreed with Wolfe that the district should build the new school where the students are likely to live, and that as plans now stand, not many more children are likely to live in Douglas and Pine Valleys.

Dunning had not asked for a decision at the November meeting and the board continued discussion of the problem until the December meeting.

The board also:

U. S. Official Stops In West Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — George W Ball, U.S. undersecretary of state, arrived in West Berlin today, first stop on a trip during which he will review western alliance problems with West German leaders.

In a brief arrival statement, Ball recalled the American pledge of support for the isolated city.

Bal said "the basic principles of United States policy concerning Germany remain unchanged."

Ball will fly to Bonn Sunday for meetings with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder.

Mother Locks Kids; They Burn to Death

CHICAGO (AP) — A young mother took along her four children Friday night when she went shopping for groceries, but locked them in the car while she was gone.

Shortly thereafter, two passing policemen saw smoke pouring from the parked vehicle and broke into it.

Ruth, 2, and Warren 3, were dead of burns and smoke inhalation. Wayne, 4, and Yvette, 1, were taken to a hospital in critical condition.

VIENNA — Plans are being made in Austria to form an international opera company under the auspices of the United Nations.

Next Travelogue Is Declared 'Truly Unique'

An outstanding characteristic of the air age is the tremendous impetus it has given worldwide travel

Weekends in London and Paris for instance have become commonplace. Otherwise lands too remote for brief visits have become practicable for short vacations

This applies among others to Australia and its neighboring New Zealand. These "lands down under" have attractions truly unique.

Through her travelogue on the "Kangaroo Continent" set for the second number of the "Horizons Unlimited" series at the Fine Arts Center Theatre Nov. 29 and 30. Patricia Bailey Witherspoon will bring local audiences in lively narration and brilliant full color movies a full coverage on Australia

This largest of earth's islands or smallest of its continents — you may take your choice -- is incomparable in many phases. From the standpoint of its flora and fauna alone it is fascinating.

Mrs. Witherspoon opens her report with a visit to the 1,200 mile long Barrier Reef off the Northeast coast that is rich in natural history sea life. Youth and adults alike will be fascinaed too by the chubby Koala bear, the Kangaroo and so forth Melbourne, Sidney and the other centers of population are to be visited of course.

Reservations for this offering can be made by contacting Theodore Fisher Management, phone 632-6849. Adults $2. Youth through college $1.

EDUCATIONAL ADVANCEMENT

Percentage of American population with some college education rises rapidly. Approximately 7.5 per cent of the U.S. population had some college education in 1930 and this figure rose to 18.3 per cent in 1960. By 1980, estimates place it at about 32.8 per cent at this rate of increase.

FULTON LEWIS

Fulton Lewis Is Town Hall Speaker Monday

The Colorado Springs Junior League will present the second of the 1964-65 Town Hall lecture series at 10:30 Monday in the Fine Arts Center Theatre.

The speaker will be Fulton Lewis III who is an eloquent advocate of the need for conservatism in America today. He is currently National Field Director and a member of the Board of Directors of Young Americans for Freedom, the nation's largest conservative youth organization.

After graduating from college, Lewis was employed as a News Director of an upstate New Rork radio station, during which period he was requested by the local Board of Education to compile a study of communist penetration and influence in public school libraries, a study which has been widely published and distributed throughout the nation. It showed shocking statistics concerning the number and nature of books authored by Communist Party members and members of front organizations which were present in the libraries of our public schools.

In 1959 he was hired as a Research Director by the House Committee on Un-American activities. In 1960 he was assigned by the House Committee to be narrator and technical director of its film entitled "Operation Abolition", which was destined to become the most controversial documentary ever produced. Partially because of this controversy, Lewis resigned from the committee in 1961, and embarked upon a nationwide speaking tour (primarily of college campuses) "to defend the Committee on Un-American Activities and its film from a well-organized and dynamic campaign of attack from the Left". Later he began to broaden his speaking topics and today he addresses audiences on a number of other topics, the philosophy of American conservatism being one of them..

He has also engaged in debates with a number of the country's most outspoken liberals, and has appeared on national television programs such as David Brinkley's "Journal."

The subject Lewis will present to his Colorado Springs audience will be "A Conservative Looks at the World Today".

Lourdes Grotto Replica Is Near Completion

The original scene is where St. Bernadette is said to have seen a vision of the Virgin Mary.

Architect Gordon Sweet designed the replica.

"This landscaping is unique," Roger McKee, landscaper, explained. "Most landscaping is done to set off a house or a building. This is to create an impression of nature in its own right.

"The Grotto itself is about 15 feet high. We moved in 550 to 600 cubic yards of earth in to mold the hill. We built three stream beds to help control erosion and used rocks to form miniature cliffs to help hold the soil. We have planted 15 to [illegible] trees and shrubs and a dozen pillar evergreens. Two statues, one of the Virgin Mary and one of St. Bernadette will be placed on the Grotto along with a small wooden altar."

The area will be seeded early this week and covered with burlap until May or June.

Porpoises travel in vast numbers in the Gulf of Aden. Some schools number thousands of the frolicking mammals. They leap 20 feet out of the water.

COACHES WERE PLAYERS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The last time the Cardinals got a World Series first base coach Joe Schultz and third base coach Vern Benson were elsewhere, but were connected with this city. That was 1946.

That year Schultz was a catcher with the St. Louis Browns. In 42 games he hit .386. Benson had just finished a split with Toronto and Savannah after a trial with the Philadelphia Athletics. Benson was obtained for the Rochester roster for 1947.

Record Number Of Fire Alarms In October

The Colorado Springs Fire Department answered more alarms last month than for any similar period in the history of the city.

Fire Chief Fred H. Lausch said 124 alarms were answered in October, which exceeded the previous all-time high of 118 established last April. This brought the total for the year to more than 1,000 alarms.

Of the 124 alarms answered last month, Lausch said, six were false and six were due to faulty alarm systems.

Firemen also made 16 resuscitator calls and three rescues, in addition to spending nearly 1,000 man hours in training, drill and study.

Additionally, Lausch said, 4,356 radio transmissions were handled, 63 bicycles were licensed and one boat inspected for a permit.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

People interested in economy in government could help the Social Security Administration save $4,500,000 a year simply by taking a little extra trouble when they hire a new employee.

This $4,500,000 is what it costs Social Security to locate the correct social security numbers for those that are omitted from or incorrectly entered on the quarterly wage reports filed by employers all over the country.

When an employer reports a wage item correctly, showing the worker's correct name, correct social security number, and the amount of wages paid to that worker in that quarter, it costs less than four cents to enter the credit for those wages on the worker's social security record.

When the name is wrong or the number is wrong or left off the report entirely, the cost of writing back to the employer or contacting him in person or by phone to get the correct information jumps ten fold to 40 cents an item.

Computers do most all of the work of handling correctly reported items and these modern electronic monsters do the work at extremely low cost. Incorrectly reported items, however, require special handling that is relatively expensive.

The great majority of employers do a remarkably good job of reporting their employees' wages. Approximately 98.5 per cent of the wage items reported by employers are correct and only 1.5 per cent are incorrect.

Looking at it the other way around, this means that 98.5 per cent of all wages paid in Colorado were properly reported, which is excellent performance in any league. To make that 100 per cent would save $4,500,000 if employers nation-wide followed suit. All the employer has to do is ask to see each card, or have the employee fill out an application for a card if he lost his old one or never had one.

Come to think of it, it's hard to imagine a simpler way of saving $4,500,000.

BOWLS 300 AT 16

His series was 648. He will receive a trophy, belt buckle and an AJBC emblem.

Madison School Dedication Set For Thursday

James Madison School will officially become the 28th elementary school in District 11 when it is dedicated Thursday. Starting time of the dedication program is 7:45 p.m.

Program speakers include Mrs. Harriette Small, president of the Madison PTA; Wilbur S. Marshall, president of the Board of Education; and Thomas B. Doherty, superintendent of schools. Lynn Shelton will offer the invocation.

Located at 4120 Constitution Avenue, Madison School serves the fast - growing northeast section of Colorado Springs. The school principal is Clifford Redding, who was formerly principal at Stratton School.

The new building has 22 conventional classrooms in addition to rooms for vocal and instrumental music, physical education, kindergarten, conferences and testing, and an administrative area.

This is the largest elementary building the district has constructed in recent years. It was built according to a modification of the Bates and Longfellow school designs. The firm of Lusk and Wallace were the architects for all three buildings.

By sloping the building to conform to the gently sloping terrain, the district reduced the cost of site preparation. The total construction cost was $500,000.

F. L. Davis Inc. was the general contractor. The Benbow Plumbing and Heating Company did the mechanical work, and Electrical Construction Company was the electrical contractor.

Miss Teenage America Wants Singing Career

By PEGGY SIMPSON

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Carolin Mignini, a sparkling lyric soprano from Baltimore who wants a Broadway singing career, is the new Miss Teenage America.

The 17-year-old beauty with a dimpled smile looked dazed but didn't cry when Bud Collyer, emcee of the 90-minute CBS show, named her the winner.

A straight A student at the Institute of Notre Dame High School, Carolyn is a "real sweet, down to earth girl," her mother said. "You can also say that I'm the hoppiest mother in Maryland and Texas."

Kathleen Frances Ross, 17-year-old from Pittsburgh who was everybody's friend during the weeklong pageant, was selected for an award of excellence. She will take over the title in the event Carolyn gives it up. Kathy did a humorous song and dance as Eliza singing "Wouldn't it be Loverly." She said she was "sky-high happy" after the show.

Other finalists were Andrea Lynn Ayers, 16, Greenville, S.C.; Linda Diane Licciardi, 17, San Francisco, and Debra Dietbelm, 15, Toledo, Ohio.

The $10,000 college scholarship will enable Carolyn, one of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Joseph Mignini, to attend Julliard School of Music next fall. She wants a degree before entering stage productions and doesn't plan to marry until she's about 27.

Carolyn entered the competition for the fourth annual pageant after her father, a clothes cutter, brought her a clipping telling about the scholarship and other prizes and said "Hi, hon, how would you like to be Miss Teenage America?"

In addition to studying voice for five hours every Saturday at Peabody Preparatory School, Carolyn models for a Baltimore department store, works with the Baltimore Actors Theater and charity groups.

"She dates a lot and has many friends . . . she's really a joy of a daughter and that's no put-on, that's the truth," her mother, a hair stylist who was chaperone, said.

Carolyn has large dark brown eyes, weighs 105 pounds, and stands 5'3". Her favorite sports are tennis, swimming and horseback riding. In men, she looks for "consideration, a sense of humor, and gentlemanliness."

GERMAN PAPER FOR TURKS

FRANKFURT — A newspaper for Turkish laborers is published by the German Trade Union. It will be published monthly and will inform the foreigners, among other items, about divided Germany and about legal questions of the German labor law and West German tariffs.

COMMUNICATION SKILLS — In any school building, it's what goes on in the classrooms that really counts. One of the things that goes on in the Madison School Kindergarten is show and tell, an activity to develop communication skills. Kaven Haynie tells his teacher, Miss Carole Couch, and his classmates about the pictures he is showing.

Czechs Criticize Peking's Attitude

The journal "Problems of Peace and Socialism" carried an Oct. 24 date, indicating it was published after Nikita Khrushchev was ousted and Moscow had suspended its attacks on Peking.

It was edited by Soviet supporters in Prague and printed in Russian in Moscow. There was no explanation for its delay in publication here.

Chinese Communists were criticized sharply in articles written by Communist leader Luigi Longo of Italy, former Red chief Timothy Buck of Canada, Santiago Carillo, the exiled Spanish Communist leader, and others.

The magazine also contained an insert with a denunciation by John D. Bernal, president of the World Peace Council, of China's recent nuclear test.

Key theme of the articles was next year's world Communist party conference Khrushchev called shortly before he was disposed.

The Chinese refused to attend the conference which was slated to begin with a 26-party preparatory meeting next month.

Khrushchev's successors have said they would continue to press for the world conference. But they have been vague about whether they would go ahead with the preparatory meeting on Dec. 15.

More Organ Transplants Predicted

EDMONTON, Alta. (UPI) — A leading American authority on kidney transplants, Dr. W. R. Waddell, predicts diseased hearts or lungs also will be replaced with healthy organs some day.

Dr. Waddell, professor and chairman of the Department of Surgery at the University of Colorado Medical Center, Denver, made the prediction in explaining recent experience with organ transplants at the second Mousseau Memorial Lecture at the University of Alberta Thursday night.

Referring to successful transplants of human kidneys and of canine livers, Dr. Waddell said "livers were one area where transplants were thought to be inaccessible or unlikely. But there is nothing magic about the kidney.

"The heart, lungs or liver are perhaps equally amenable to this form of therapy."

He said medical science is only in the early stages of the most dramatic period in the development of medicine.

"With technology and research, we are going to witness a full blooming in fields of medicine which only a few years ago were pipe dreams of the wildest sort."

Speaking about possible methods of improving chances of success in kidney transplants, Dr. Waddell said "tissue typing" and new drugs could play important roles.

This season there is a wealth of Gift Books.

Could you find a pencil and a scratch pad? You can make a Christmas list for relatives and friends. You might even circle a few items that catch your own fancy — and leave it where your own family can take a hint.

Publishers have strained themselves this fall to give all of us some pretty fancy experiences in reading and looking.

It would take more yards of type than we have here to note every book that is being issued for our delectation, but here are the main highlights:

THE FIELD OF ART

The Abrams list includes Caravaggio by Giuseppe de Logu, Marino Marini by Franco Russoli, Pisanello by Enio Sindona, Picasso by Hans C. L. Jaffe, Poussin by Walter Friedlander and Soutine by Jean Leymarie. Other publishers are bringing out Turner, by Sir John Rothenstein and Martin Butlin (Braziller), Edvard Munch by Johan H. Langaard and Reidar Revold (McGraw), Lautrec by Lautrec, by Philippe Huisman and Mme. M. G. Dortu (Viking) and a photographic study called Picasso at Work by Edward Quinn (Doubleday). McGraw also is bringing out a collection from Yugoslavia called The Unknown Degas and Renoir.

One of the most elaborate publications on a single artist is being published by Reynal at a seasonal price of $100 — Goya, by Francisco Javier Sanches Canton of the Prado, with 114 reproductions in color.

Amont the new books on sculpture are Renaissance Sculpture, edited by Harold Busch and Bernd Lohse (Macmillian), Tomb Sculpture by Erwin Panofsky (Abrams) and the Golden Age of Spanish Sculpture by Manual Gomez Moreno (N.Y. Graphic).

Many new titles deal with specific schools or periods. New York Graphic's list includes Art Treasures of the Medici by Antonio Morassi, Gold and Silver Treasures of Ancient Italy by Frederick J. Dockstader.

Other items in this category include Australian Aboriginal Art, edited by R. M. Berndt (Macmillan), Mannerism by Jacques Bousquet (Braziller), The Birth of Greek Art by Pierre Demargne (Golden Press), The Larousse Encyclopedia of Renaissance Art, edited by Rene Huyghe (Putman), Craftmanship and Design in Japan by Donald Ritchie (Abrams) and Early Italian Painting by Ferdinando Bologna (Van Nostrand).

Praeger is re-issuing two volumes by Helmuth Th. Bossert, Folk Art of Europe and Fol of Asia, Africa and the Americas.

For those interested in graphics there are such items as The World's Great Figure Drawings, collected by J. Harrison Roswell (Atlantis - Taplinger) and 100 Europ Drawings in the Metropolitan Museum of Art by Jacob Bean (N.Y. Graphic).

On the museum front, there are such items as Great Paintings from the Pushkin Museum, Moscow, by K. M. Malitskaya (Abrams) and Art Treasures from the Egyptian Museum, Cairo, by Peter P. Riestere (Rand McNally).

ARCHITECTURE

In architecture, there are such items as The Great Ages of Architecture by Dr. Bodo Cichy (Putnam), Key Monuments in the History of Architecture by Alfred Fraser (Abrams), You and Architecture by Alfred Browning Parker (Delacorte), The Best in Twentieth Century Architecture, edited by Georges and Rosamamond Bernier (Reynal) and The New Churches of Europe by G. E. Kidder Smith (Holt, Rinehart).

DECORATIVE ARTS

The decorative arts are represented by a wide selection, including America's Small Houses by Henry Lionel Williams and The Finest Rooms by America's Great Decorators, edited by Katherine Tweed (Viking), An Illustrated History of Furnishing by Mario Praz (Braziller) and French Royal Furniture by Pierre Verlet Crown). Among the books for collectors is the Encyclopedia of Brittish Pottery and Porcelain Marks by Geoffrey Godden (Crown).

And then there is Dorothy (Mrs. Richard) Rodgers' My Favorite Things (Atheneum), a personal book about interiors and entertaining.

MUSIC

There are several reference books among the new volumes in the field of music. Such as a new edition of The International Cyclopedia of Music and Musicians, edited by Oscar Thompson (Dodd, Mead); Musical Instruments, a Comprehensive Dictionary, by Dibly Marcuse (Doubleday) and 40,000 Years of Music by Jacques Chailley (Farrar). There also is a Dictionary of the Dance by W. G. Jaffe (Barnes).

RELIGION

A variety of new works is available in the field of religion.

Among them we find The Horizon Book of Christianity (Harper) and a two-volume work edited by George Brantl, called The Religious Experience (Braziller).

On the papacy there are other new works — The Chair of Peter, a History of the Papacy by Frederich Gontard Holt, Rinehart); The Papacy by Christopher Hollis (MacMillen) and Popes Through the Ages by Joseph S. Brusher, S. J. (Van Nostrand).

A History of the Protestant Episcopal Church by Raymond F. Albright is being published by Macmillan.

The Book of Jewish Knowledge by Nathan Ausubel (Crown) is titled An Encyclopedia of Judaism and the Jewish People.

THE WORLD OF HISTORY

In matters of history, the titles range all the way from the ancients to the moderns.

For example, Athens by Angelo Propcopious (Stein and Day); Egypt in Color by Margaret S. Drower (McGraw); The Quest for India by Bjorn Landstrom (Doubleday); The Larousse Encyclopedia of Modern History (Harper) and the McGraw-Hill Illustrated World History, edited by Esmond Wright and Kenneth M. Stampp.

Another impressive, lavish volume is The Birth of Western Civilization: Greece and Rome, from McGraw.

Military and naval history are represented by such items as A Civil War Album, containing watercolors made on the scene by Prince de Joinville (Atheneum). Heavily pictorial are Great Military Battles, edited by Cyril Falls (Macmillan), the naval story Clear For Action: 1898-1964 by Foster Hailey and Milton Lancelot (Duell, Sloan) and The American Heritage History of World War I, with text by S. L. A. Marshall (Simon & Schuster), in which battle maps are carefully done.

There also is Russia At War by Alexander Werth (Dutton), an account of Russian participation in World War II.

SCIENCE AND NATURAL HISTORY

The science books include several on astronomy. There are The Flammarion Book of Astronomy, the first English language edition of this large volume (Simon & Schuster), as well as Atlas of the Moon by Vincent de Calletay (St. Martin's).

Natural history is well represented. The general titles include Audubon's Wildlife by Edwin Way Teale (Viking); Man and Beast, a Visual History, by Jacques Boudet (Golden Press) and Europe, a Natural History, by Kai Curry-Lindahl (Random).

Bird-watcher may be interested in these titles: A New Dictionary of Birds, edited by Lansborough Thomson (McGraw); Birds of Prey of the World by Mary Louise Grossman and John Hamlet (Crown) and The World of Birds by Roger Tory Peterson (Double-day).

THE WORLD OF HOBBIES

When we get into the subject of hobbies and collecting, there are plenty of new books which appeal primarily to male readers.

For example, The Collection of Guns, edited by James E. Serven (Stackpole); Arms and Armor by Bruno Thomas and others (McGraw), and Encyclopedia of Firearms, edited by Harold L. Peterson (Dutton).

Or consider The Complete Book of Model Railroading by David Sutton (Prentice-Hall), The Macmillan Book of Boating by William N. Wallace; The History of Thoroughbred Racing in Hall; The Pictorial History of The America's Cup by Robert W. Carrick and George Calbert Simmons (Viking) or The Illustrated history of Ships and Boats by Lionel Casson (Doubleday).

For the gardening tribe two of the new books are from Abrams — Gardens Around the World by Elizabeth Schuler, and The English Gorden, by Edward Hyams.

PLACES TO SEE

Does someone on your gift list find a fascination in travel?

In the overseas department, Putnam is the publisher of two volumes by the editors of Realites, called The Wonders of Europe and The Splendors of Italy. Putnam also is issuing Sacheverell Sitwell's Great Palaces of Europe, and is reissuing the same author's Great Houses of Europe.

Bradley Smith (Simon & Schuster); The Presence of Spain by James Morris and Evelyn Hofer (Harcourt, Brace) and Canada, by Peter Varley and Kildare Dobbs (Viking). Russians Still Opposed to Paying U.N.

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y (AP) — The Soviet Union was reported today to have rejected a new plan to solve the deadlock after financing of U.N. peacekeeping operations.

Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson said Friday that the United States would accept "voluntary payments in any form" from the Soviet Union toward its $52.6 million U.N. debt.

Diplomatic sources said, however, the Soviet Union turned down the idea. A Communist diplomat was quoted as saying that if the Soviet Union contributed to a voluntary fund used for peacekeeping costs "it would be paying for operations that were undertaken illegally."

The Soviet Union refuses to pay its dues for the Congo and Middle East operations, contending they were authorized illegally by the General Assembly rather than the Security Council where the Soviet Union holds veto power.

The United States wants to strip the Soviets of their vote in the General Assembly under a U.N. charter provision calling for action if a nation falls two years behind in its assessments. The Soviet Union has indicated it might quit the United Nations if it is deprived of its vote when the General Assembly convenes Dec. 1.

Stevenson did not go into detail on the plan to set up a voluntary fund to which arrears could be contributed. However, U.S. sources said they favored the idea, which had been presented privately to the big powers by General Assembly President Carlos Sosa-Rodriguez of Venezuela and three other diplomats who are conducting behind-the-scenes talks.

Italian Rail Strike Cost Said $56 Million

ROME (AP) — The week-long Communist union strike against Italy's railway system entered its final day Saturday. The walkout cost the economy an estimated $56 million.

The Italian General Confederation of Labor, however, threatened still further strikes against the state-owned system because its contract dispute remained unsettled. It is seeking increased benefits for state employes.

Non-Communist unions refused to join the walkout, which since Monday has thrown the system's more than 2,200 daily trains into chaos.

Deserters From War Found in Russia

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet police have tracked down two World War II deserters who hid out for more than 20 years in the woods, the newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya reported today.

The paper said Terenty Teryokha and his son, Vladimir, took refuge in the woods near their village in northeast Russia when the Soviet army drove out the Germans.

It said they lived in dugouts during the winter stealing food and supplies from nearby settlements. They made clothing from animal skins.

Knife & Fork Club to Hear Philip Geary

Philip Geary, a rare combination of adventurer, educator, Army Chaplain, and platform speaker, will be the guest of honor when the Knife & Fork club meets for dinner 7 o'clock, Tuesday evening at the Dublin House.

Once described by a television producer as a young man who has lived both dangerously and imaginatively, Geary first became absorbed with world-peoples in Bengal, India, from 1940 to 1945. Then he volunteered for Army duty and was accepted and sent to the South Pacific where he served as Chaplain for 27 months.

Now making his home in New York, Geary was assistant Director of TWA's program of air education; a job which took him into 25 countries on four continents. He was also in the service of Continental Airlines and Scandinavian Airlines system.

A veteran air traveler, who many years ago flew his own plane, Geary's platform appearances have been almost as prolific as his traveling. In one year he made 165 speeches in 42 states and five foreign countries, traveling 140,000 air miles to do them.

New Annexation Plans Sought By Committee

DENVER (AP) — Legislation aimed at improving annexation procedures is among proposals given priority in recommendations by the state-wide committee of the governors 100-member Local Affairs Study Committee.

Other proposals suggested Friday to the General Assembly would affect special districts and the powers of county government.

County commissioners, under one proposal, would be given authority to control development of special districts in unincorporated portions of counties. It would require petitioners for new special districts to file a service plan subject to approval of the commissioners.

A public hearing would be required by the proposed law an quired by the proposed law before any final action could be taken. District courts would not be allowed to approve an incorporation without approval first of county commissioners.

The committee said the operation of county and city governments is being hampered by the increase of special districts at the rate of 50 to 75 annually in the state.

Also recommended by the committee is a law intended to simplify annexations by municipalities. It is based on a 1963 Senate bill vetoed by Gov. John A. Love. Metropolitan counties had objected on the grounds it would have reduced their tax base.

Three major changes in the 1963 Proposal approved by the committee would:

—Allow municipalities to annex unilaterally surrounded contiguous territory one year after passage of the act.

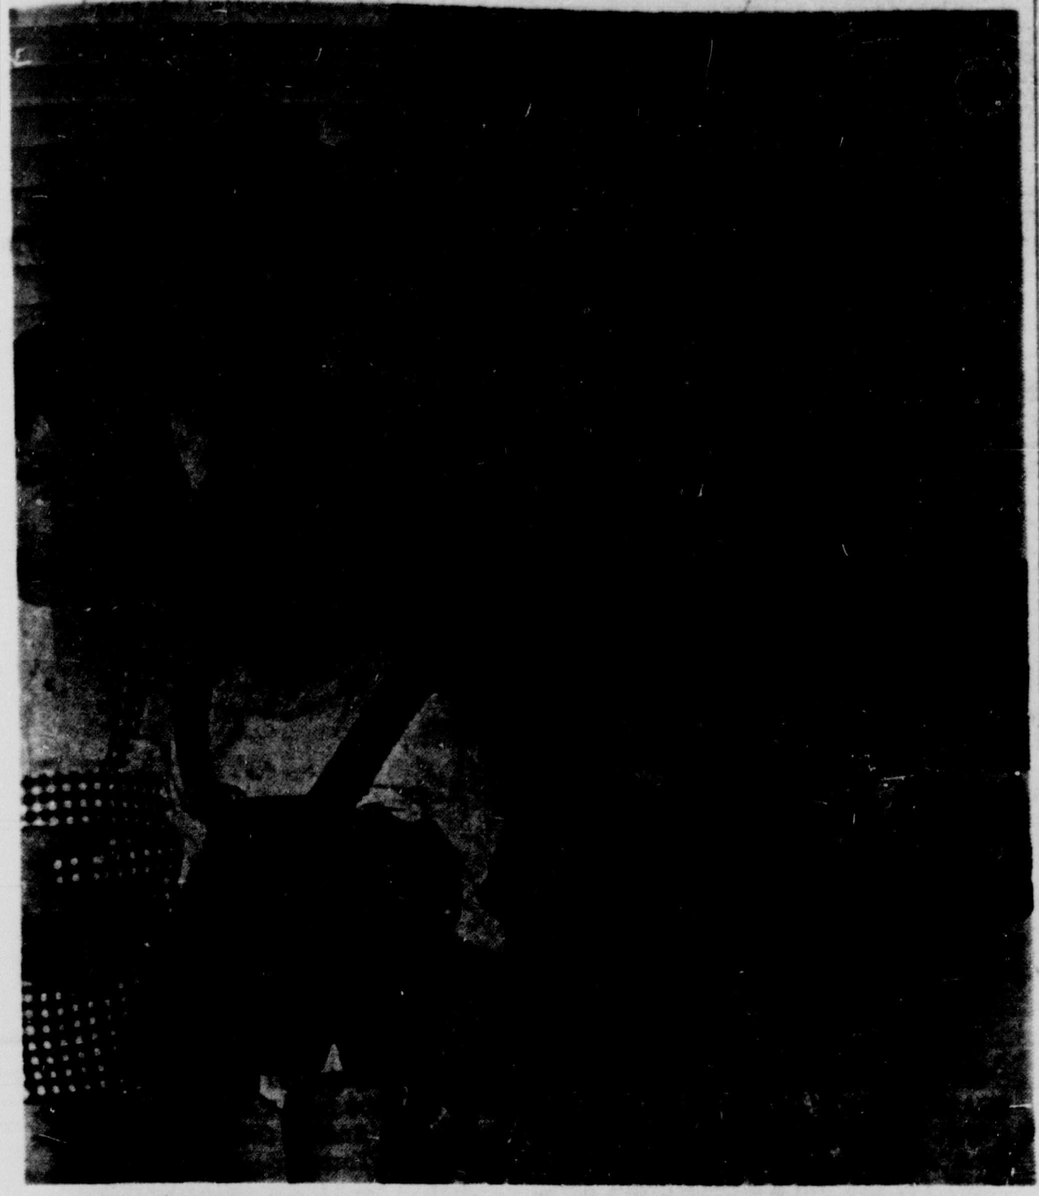
—Require municipalities to accept annexations of undesirable areas to the same degree they are empowered unilaterally to annex desirable territory.

—Establish a two-year transitional period to resolve Denver area annexation frictions.

The proposal would affect all municipalities except Denver, Pueblo and Colorado Springs. These cities would conduct annexations under present law until Jan. 1, 1967 when they would be subject to the new legislation.

The committee said its proposal "vastly improves present annexation procedures while retaining the general principle of self-determination."

Other legislation endorsed by the committee would ban municipal incorporation of any territory surrounded by a municipality.



FAMILY STYLE — Airman 1. C. William P. Jones and his wife, Roselene, take very tangible reminders of their four-year tour at the Air Force Academy with them as they leave for a new assignment at Bitburg Air Base, Germany. The Jones family consisted of just the airman and his wife when he reported for duty June 13, 1960. Traveling to Germany are Airman and Mrs. Jones and their four daughters—Linda Marie, Cindy Sue, Mary Anne, and Melanie—all born at the Academy Hospital. Airman Jones' duty station at the Academy? Local Government Costing Each County Resident $232

For residents of El Paso County, is the cost of local government greater or less than it is for people in other areas?

How much is spent locally, per capita, for municipal, school and county operations? How big is the local debt, compared with that elsewhere?

For the first time in five years, the Census Bureau has made a detailed study of finances in each of the 3,100 counties throughout the United States. The results are reported in the current Census of Governments.

So that comparison may be made, all figures have been related to the same period, fiscal 1962.

They show, for people living in El Paso County, that the total cost in the year for local governmental operations came to $232 per capita, of which $110 was for education.

The average in the rest of the United States was $214 per capita and, in the State of Colorado, $263.

In all, it took $39.8 billion to run the various county, township, municipal and district governments in the nation and to provide the public with services in the fields of education, highways, health, welfare, police and fire protection, sewerage and sanitation, parks, housing, libraries and the like.

That was $9.2 billion more than it cost in 1957, when the previous Census of Governments was taken.

In some communities, expenditures were more than covered by revenue. In others, there was a gap in the opposite direction.

The report shows, in the case of El Paso County, that the direct general expenditures of $232 per capita were offset by general revenue that amounted to $227 per capita.

Of this, $145 came from local taxes, fees and charges and the remainder from Federal and state funds.

In their attempts to meet the needs and desires of their population for better services and facilities. most communities have been going deeper and deeper into debt.

In El Paso County, the general debt outstanding was equivalent to $134 per capita, according to the report. Sationally, the debt of local governments averaged -259 per capita. and, in Colorado, $221.

$7.3 Million in Cash Seen in General Fund

DENVER (AP)—Con F. Shea, state budget director, said today there was $7.3 million in cash in Colorado's general fund at the end of October.

The balance in the capital construction fund was $10,143,298.

Shea said the general fund took in $44,401,970 during the first four months of the 1964-65 fiscal year. This compares with $35,823,970 for the same period last year.

An increase of 7½ per cent was noted in income tax withholding—$26.3 million for the July-October period compared with $23.7 million.

Shea said the general fund gains are "largely attributable to added revenues sent through the general fund because of fund simplification measures passed by the last legislature."

BRITISH BAN SAM GOLDWYN

LONDON — Because he hold 50 of his old movies to British TV stations, Britain's cinema owners were asked recently to ban all films made by veteran Hollywood producer Sam Goldwyn.

The quarrel with Goldwyn arises because he has ignored an internationally accepted agreement that film producers should not sell films to British TV without first offering them to the Film Industry Defense Organization.

EXCHANGE OF JUVENILES

HANOVER — The exchange of juveniles between the Federal Republic and France is to be increased. This is the result of a discussion between Hans Heck, the minister of family affairs, and Pierre Herzog, the French secretary of state for sports and juvenile affairs. They said that until now 150,000 young Germans had visited France and 100,000 young French had visited the Federal Republic.

Program for Pope Planned in India

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican announced today a four-day program for the visit of Pope Paul VI to India. He will be away from Dec. 2 through Dec. 5 and spend all his time in Bombay, omitting any possibly controversial side trips to Goa or New Delhi.

The program showed that the Pope, in addition to attending sessions of the International Eucharistic Congress, a major Roman Catholic gathering, will also visit schools, a reform school and a hospital.

Vatican sources said Pope Paul has confined his trip to Bombay to make it clear that it is a strictly religious mission connected with the Congress.

He has said he wants his trip to India to be that of a missionary, and is reported to have expressed a wish to spend some time with the poor of India.

Colorado Boys Ranch Kids Want to Help

LA JUNTA, Colo. (AP) — The 22 boys at the Colorado Boys Ranch near here volunteered Friday to give up their spending money for one week to aid a Missouri family involved in an accident.

The boys get $1 each weekly for doing chores on the ranch operated for homeless youngsters and they voted to give the money to Mrs. Geneva Mills and her four young children now in the hospital here with injuries suffered when a car in which they were riding crashed.

The woman's husband, Kenneth Mills, 32, of Springfield, Mo., and the couple's baby son, were killed in the accident east of here Wednesday. One of the injured children, Barbara, 8, was still in critical condition.

Mills had been in ill health for some time and unable to work, authorities here were told, and the family was said to be destitute.

Steel Men Say It's High Time For Big Change

By TOM NOLAN

GARY, Ind. (NEA)—It was a typical late September afternoon in this city, hot and hazy. A slight trace of breeze from Lake Michigan to the north blew the heavy red smoke from U.S. Steel's giant Gary mill toward the city. To the west, East Chicago's Inland Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube works added their bit to the smog.

"I guess the sun doesn't shine on Gary too often," mused a reporter to his companion.

"If it ever does," the other shot back gesturing to the steel mills, "it means the country's in a mighty big recession."

As the U.S. steel industry, roars into its second century, sunshine for Gary seems a remote possibility.

"The industry's attitude used to be: 'The more dirt you've got, the more prosperous you are.' Now it's just the opposite."

That's the manager of a steel plant talking—and his comment sums up today's changing attitude in the industry, bellwether of the country's business tides.

It's high time for a change" is the recurring theme in talks with steelmen throughout the Middle Atlantic and Midwestern states.

As late as the mid-1950s, complacent steel companies, confident they could sell all the metal their mills could produce, forced frequent price increases on their captive customers.

The 1958 recession jolted this attitude badly; a nationwide 116-day strike in 1959 shattered it completely. Many customers turned to other materials — aluminim, concrete, plastics and cardboard. Others switched to attractive imports from Europe and Japan.

To regain some of these customers—although several steelmen today privately admit that most are lost for good—the industry launched a crash program in late 1961. This was a three-pronged effort to:

Spend more money on research to create better quality steel and to open up new markets.

Create new marketing and sales techniques to challenge foreign steel exporters and domestic nonsteel competition.

Use public relations devices to build a new industry image for the public and potential customers.

The steel industry will spend more than $100 million on research alone this year. Steel research laboratories will employ gineers and supporting personnel.

Besides exploring new ways to make better quality steel faster and more cheaply, these scientists keep a close watch on the consumer market.

"We're coming up with new steels for which no market as yet exists," is the way John Donaldson, director of U.S. Steel's mammoth research facilities at Monroeville, Pa., puts it.

A Pittsburgh Steel Co. executive says:

"We figure products now on the planning boards will some day represent better than 20 per cent of our business."

A big research need today is to devise an answer to aluminum's "easy open" can — an elusive problem which has plagued the industry considerably more in the future, due to Reynolds Aluminum's recent announcement of a new 12-ounce all-aluminum can.

In the past 10 years, some big changes have been made in steel marketing techniques.

"The old industry position was to sit back and wait for the customer to come to us," says one marketing executive. "Now we go to the customer and find out what he wants and needs."

Emphasis is placed on educating customers to the new kind of steel coming out of the research labs.

The third aspect of steel's "New Era"—repairing a rather tarnished public image — is off to a good start. The industry is determined to win friends and is spending money to do it.

Inland Steel, when it learned that traffic to its Indiana Harbor works backed up into East Chicago's downtown area because of long waits at the company's 13-track railroad line, spent $4 million to build an overpass across the tracks.

Jones & Laughlin installed a series of precipitators in its Cleveland works to reduce the smog from its two giant basic oxygen furnaces.

Despite giant strides forward in the last three years, all is not rosy in the steel industry today.

Despite this year's estimated record production of 120 million tons, steel's profits will lag behind records set in 1957.

The United Steelworkers union is already making clear its determination to get wage and benefit increases equal to those recently won by the United Auto Workers. The Steel industry's three years of labor peace may be under heavy threat.

Many observers believe steel may be forced to raise some prices — an industry bugaboo since the late President Kennedy cracked down on a price increase in 1962.

Psychologist, Hunted by Cops, Suicide

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 40-year-old child psychologist wanted for questioning in the slow poisoning of his wealthy aunt, a former wife of orchestra leader Paul Whiteman, apparently committed suicide Friday in a downtown hotel.

The fully clothed body of William J. Cootes was found in his room by a maid. Police said he had died apparently of an overdose of sleeping pills. They found a passport and a note giving directions for the disposal of his body. An empty pill bottle also was found.

Cootes, object of a nationwide FBI search since September 14, was suspected of putting carbon tetrachloride into the coffee and tea of Mrs. Vanda Hoff Unger, his aunt, while he visited her in a convalescent hospital. A former Ziegfeld Follies dancer, the 66-year-old Mrs. Unger testified in secret before a grand jury Monday night.

Cootes was charged in two police warrants with administering poison with intent to kill and with poisoning food and drink. An FBI warrant charged him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for the crime of willful poisoning of food, drink, medicine or water.

Mrs. Unger has been under treatment for a liver ailment and arthritis in a private convalescent hospital since the summer of 1963.

Cootes was named conservator of Mrs. Unger's estate, to protect here interests, while she was in the first of two hospitals in which she has received treatment.

Cootes vanished from his home after his aunt demanded an explanation of money missing from her estate. A police check disclosed Mrs. Unger had a $3,000 cash balance in the Bank of America. It had once contained $20,000, they said.

Mrs. Unger also found that $50,000 worth of jewelry had disappeared from her safe deposit box. An unset 7-carat diamond, valued at $10,500, was traced to Los Angeles where it had been sold to a jeweler. A 40-carat sapphire was found in the possession of a New York City jeweler.

Police Inspector Donald Willett said both gems were first sold by Cootes to a San Francisco jeweler.

Police said five fur pieces worth almost $7,000 also are missing.

Barry's Group Plans to Fight Ouster Attempt

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater and his supporters have decided that they will fight, if necessary, to hold the leadership of the Republican party, the New York Times said today.

A dispatch by Earl Mazo from Montego Bay, Jamaica, quotes Goldwater's running mate, Rep. William E. Miller, as saying that Dean Burch should remain as Republican national chairman and adding:

"I am sure that Barry shares this view."

Goldwater, also vacationing in Jamaica, said he would say nothing publicly "for a month or two."

He was joined earlier in the week by Miller, Burch, and John Grenier, executive director of the GOP national committee.

"Mr. Burch said, meanwhile, that he would seek an early vote of confidence from the Republican national committee. Mr. Miller predicted that he would win the confidence vote."

Miller was further quoted as saying:

Navy Can Search Out Objects Buried 10,000 Fe et in Ocean

Recent oceanographic research and development operations have given the U. S. Navy the capability to search out and inspect objects in ocean depths approaching 10,000 feet.

A task group consisting of the bathyscaph Trieste II, the cargo ship Mizar, and the salvage vessel Hois, conducted a three-month program utilizing the submarine Thdesher loss area as a target for testing new or improved deep search and inspection ideas and equipment. This area was chosen since it was the most thoroughly researched ocean section in the world. This area also afforded the Navy with the best opportunity to evaluate advanced undersea photography and search methods.

This operation was carried out in June, July and August, about 220 miles east of Boston.

Photographs of the Thresher's wreckage were taken by both the camera magnetometer array towed by the Mizar and the Trieste.

—The sail with the numbers 593 and the attached sail plane.

By means of an improved underwater tracking system aboard the Mizar, which uses sound to maintain a continuous location of the towed equipment relative to the towing ship, it was possible to accurately plot the position of the camera over the ocean floor.

During the operation the underwater research "submarine" Trieste spent a total of 37 hours submerged during five dives in the area. Following her first dive, motor problems occured, and Trieste returned to port—putting her out of this scientific operation for one month. As a result Trieste did not have as much bottom time as desired to develop herself as a deep-water search and inspection tool. However, Trieste's participation did demonstrate the "subs" capability of providing close range human observation on the ocean bottom.

Much valuable information for conducting future deep searches was gained from the operations of the Trieste. It is expected that the systems devised for orientation of Trieste II within a search area will be of great assistance in improving the capabilities of manned deep search vehicles.

Photographs and pilot observations in the area disclosed that the located portions of wreckage were covered with one to two inches of sand crust.

In addition to the underwater tracking system (used to assist in position Trieste II as well as to locate the underwater camera-magnetometer array) and her own navigational eqiupment, Trieste's underwater position was aided by a matrix of bottom markers that had been dropped in the adea both in last year's search effort and early this summer. Each marker consisted of a distinctively lettered and numberd two-foot nylon line and a heavy weight which ensured the markers' rapid descent to the bottom. The result was a 1,200 square yard field of 900 markers by which Trieste could locate herself relative to the search area.

Prior to this summer's operation Trieste underwent extensive reconfiguration and overhaul. Work done included a new hull, additional spotlights, an improved remote manipulator, and the relocation of her six-and-one-half foot spherical gondola. As was her predecessor, Trieste II is basically a submersible free-balloon which receives its positive buoyancy from a large lightweight superstructure fiiled with 45,000 gallons of gasoline. Her negative buoyancy comes from two metallic tubes filled with 20 tons of iron shot. She is manned by a three man team—pilot, copilot and observor. Trieste II has the same diving capacity as Trieste I — 35,800 feet.

Law Students At CU to Join In Moot Court

Three University of Colorado law students will compete Saturday in regional Moot Court Trails at Albuquerque, N: M., against teams from the University of New Mexico and Arizona.

All seniors, they are Richard H. Hart and William C. Wise, both of Denver, and Richard W. Phillips of Colby, Kan.

Moot Court is an annual competition in which three-man teams from more than 100 law schools throughout the nation participate. The teams argue a mythical law case, and regional winners proceed through national competition in New York City.

CU teams, under tutelage of Prof. Austin Scott, have won the regional competition 8 out of the last 10 years, and two years ago the CU team won the national competition.

Mathematician Warns Against Boring Pupils

Dr. Bernard H. Gundlach, mathematician and textbook author, cautioned District 11 arithmetic teachers against assigning their classes drill work that is only more of the same kind of work pupils have already done.

Speaking at Palmer High School, November 10, Dr. Gundlach declared that more of the same thing causes children to become bored with a resulting decline in learning.

Unlike animals, children do not continue to learn through unlimited repetitions, and the teaching of children should not be based upon studies of learning in animals, he stated.

Dr. Gundlach emphasized, however, that he was not belittling the need for practice but urged teachers to provide practice that appeals to pupil's imagination and requires them to use their creative abilities. He illustrated one kind of such practice involving the use of the four basic arithmetical operations in combinations.

Characterizing education as a do-it-yourself project, Dr. Gundlach told teachers not to expect too much of children in the beginning. "The first products," he said, "will be crude. It would be a miracle if they were perfect." But he added that if teachers help children do things for themselves, the products will become increasingly better.

A native of Germany, Dr. Gundlach received his doctorate in mathematics from the University of Hamburg. Since coming to the United States prior to World War II, he has served as consultant in mathematics teaching and has done research in the field. He is director of the Greater Cleveland Mathematics Study Committee.

Dr. Dwight Hamilton, director of elementary education, said it is the policy of District 11 to arrange talks by several educational specialists during the year to keep teachers informed of new developments and help them do more effective teaching.

In the horse and buggy days, no doubt! Which is where CF&I steel products come in. Steel for rail, tires, for reinforcing concrete highways, bridges and runways. No matter how it's used it's a strong, silent partner for the transportation industry.

And CF&I is a partner in Colorado's industrial progress in still another way. The very fact that steel is made and fabricated in Colorado makes the entire State a more logical choice for prospective new business and industry.

They are: William Kloer, John T. Daughaday, Fred Johnson and George J. Kubricht. Special recognition will be given to Herbert S. Riley, Vice President, who has been with the Company for the greatest number of years. He has just ended his 58th year of continuous service.

Gold plated service pins will be presented to 20 employees who have been in the Company's service from 10 to 24 years. Silver service pins will be given to another 6 employees who have been with the "Out West" 5 to 9 years.

The service pins will be presented by William C. Mason, President of the Company. Mason said that exactly half the "Out West" employees have been with the Company for more than 5 years and will receive awards at the dinner.

Now in its 93rd year, the Out West Printing and Stationery Company is the oldest business firm in Colorado Springs. The Company was established in 1872 by General William Jackson Palmer less than a year after he founded the city of Colorado Springs itself.

The "Out West's" original location home was in Colorado Springs' first 2-story building. It stood where Kaufman's Department Store is today. In 1890, General Palmer erected a new building at 13-15 East Pikes Peak Avenue, which still houses the printing division.

The Company published the city's first weekly newspaper, called "The Out West". Later, it began publishing a daily newspaper called "The Gazette". General Palmer sold the newspaper in 1896 and it grew into today's Gazette Telegraph.

After the sale of the newspaper, the Company concentrated on commercial printing. Special emphasis was given to the printing of city and county forms, legal blanks, election supplies, etc. Down through the years, the "Out West" has been recognized as "The County Supply House of Colorado." The Company also serves many hundreds of business firms in the Pikes Peak Region with their printing requirements.

The "Out West" opened its stationery store in 1898, at 11 East Pikes Peak Avenue, next door to the printing division. The stationery and office equipment division moved into a completely modern 4-floor building in 1952, at the same location. It houses the retail office supply and stationery store, the duplicating equipment and office furniture departments. It has often been referred to as "The Businessman's Department Store".

Veto on Water Export Nipped By Delegates

By STRAFORD C. JONES

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Western state delegates to the National Reclamation Association convention, by a 9-5 vote, rejected a move to give each state a veto over exportation of its water to other states.

After a lively floor fight Friday, the delegates approved a substitute resolution — for one that had embodied the veto powers—which urges Congress to plan programs for interstate movement of waters and at the same time guard states' existing water rights.

The resolution also suggests, if federal studies show such interstate movement to infringe a state's interests, "that the affected states create an interstate commission to attempt to resolve any conflicting interests."

Passage of the resolution was the final act of the convention.

Three topics that arose fredroelectric power, its role in development of water reclamation velopment of water reclamation projects and jurisdictions over building and administrating power facilities—were left unresolved.

Of the 17 Western states represented, Kansas and the Dakotas did not vote on the substitute measure. Utah, Montana, Washington, Wyoming and Idaho cast the dissenting votes, which in effect, supported adoption of the veto power.

William S. Holden, of Idaho Falls, Idaho, chairman of the resolutions committee, backed the original resolution's statement that "no water shall be exported from that state except upon prior approval of that state." The clause would "protect (against) encroachment of federal government agencies on the rights of states," he said.

U.S. Commissioner of Reclamation Floyd E. Dominy urged the convention to discard the original resolution, which he termed "rooted in fear and distrust." He said such a resolution would erect barriers between the states that would "make it virtually impossible to undertake any major . . . water development project."

World's First Guided Missile Is To Be Retired to the Smithsonian

An Army Nike Ajax air defense missile will be given to the Smithsonian Institution Wednesday as a lasting reminder to shield American cities.

Nike Ajax revolutionized the art of air defense in the early 1950s. It gave defenders a missile which could not only go faster and higher than bombers bu tout-maneuver them as well.

Lt. Gen. Charles B. Duff, commanding general of the Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM), will present the Nike Ajax to S. Dillon Ripley, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, on behalf of the Army. The missile — Serial Number 12062 — is representative of the last Nike Ajax missiles withdrawn from an active air defense role in the United States.

After the public ceremony in the main rotunda of the Arts and Industry building, the missile will remain there on temporary display. Then it will be removed and stored to await a more permanent place in the new Armed Forces Museum being built by the Smithsonian Institution.

The Ajax has given way to the more advanced and potent Nike Hercules, which can destroy swifter and smaller targets at greater ranges and altitudes, including cruise-type missiles launched by bombers and submarines.

Nike Zeus, a third generation of this Army missile family, has carried the U. S. across the threshold of an active space defense. Now a major component of the reoriented research and development program — Nike X — aimed at producing an active defense against ballistic missiles, Zeus scored the first Free World intercepts of ICBM-type target vehicles and of an orbiting satellite.

The sleek Nike Ajax, named for the mythological Greek "Goddess of Victory," was the first supersonic guided missile to become operational in the world. It was the first guided missile to take an active place in the air defense system.

Ajax, a pen-shaped missile 21 feet long and about one foot in diameter, is a two-stage, liquid-fueled missile with a solid propellant booster. The missile provided all-weather protection against high-performance bombers approaching a defended area from any direction and at altitudes up to 60,000 feet and at ranges up to 25 miles. Ajax took only a short time in flight to score its kill.

Thousands of training firings at the practice range earned for Ajax the reputation of a missile with a one-shot kill potential. This was in contrast to the limited capability of antiaircraft arillery guns, which in World War II engagements of aircraft flying at comparatively low altitudes and almost directly overhead, averaged about 600 rounds fired for each plane destroyed.

A large measure of Ajax's success, as in the case of successor Nike missiles, was in its ground-based components, including a computer and radars. The target was first detected at long range by an acquisition radar. Then other radars were "locked on" both the target and the intercept missile for the duration of the engagement. Data from the target- and missile-tracking radars was fed continuously into the computer, which automatically determined the best collision course for the Ajax to take and simultaneously transmitted in-flight "commands" to steer the missile to a fiery intercept with the target.

Ajax was moved on site for the first time in December 1953, at Ft. George G. Meade, Md. A nucleus of school trained missilemen began the task of training other former antiaircraft gunners of a 120 millimeter gun outfit — the 36th AAA Battalion — in the art of missilery on the job. The gun battalion was converted to a missile battalion in January 1954. Though units of that battalion were capable of firing missiles from on-site positions shortly after initial deployment, the first unit to become fully operational achieved its around-the-clock, combat-ready status on May 30, 1954.

That date is the basis for the Army Air Defense Command's observance this year of a "Decade of Guided Missile for Air Defense."

Though it can still knock down any known bomber in the weapons inventory of potential aggressors, Nike Ajax has been replaced by the swifter, more deadly Nike Hercules, a nuclear-capable missile. What Ajax can do against single aircraft, Hercules can do against entire formations of aircraft, should the bombers come in together. The gradual replacement began in mid-1958 and was completed this year.

The site from which Nike Ajax missile 12062 was retired last May is located at Churchland, Va. The site, located in the Hampton Roads Defense at Norfolk, was manned by Battery B of the 4th Battalion, 111th Artillery, Virginia Army National Guard. Four Ajax batteries of the Virginia battalion were phased out of the air defense system at that time.

FINAL SALUTE — A final salute is rendered to Missile 12062, representing the last operational Nike Ajax missiles to be retired from service in the U.S., before the missile is lowered for the last time at Churchland, Va.

Review Stocks Now for Year-End Tax Savings

A variety of changing elements — the market trend in 1964, domestic and international developments, reduced corporate and individual tax rates, new rules on loss carryovers — all combine to make it prudent for investors to review their portfolios for year-end tax savings, says Commerce Clearing House.

The closing weeks of 1964 offer investors time to review and calculate the income tax effect of current quotations on present holdings and on transactions completed earlier in the year.

In its 1964 "Security Transactions — When to Sell Securities for Income Tax Saving," CCH lists four major 1964 tax changes that investors should consider.

TAX RATE REDUCTION — The first stage in the rate reduction for individuals affects 1964 income. A further reduction will apply in 1965 and later years. Corporate rates are also lowered from 52 per cent to 50 per cent in 1964, then to 48 per cent.

DIVIDEND EXCLUSION AND CREDIT — The annual exclusion for dividends has been increased to $100 from $50. But the credit against the tax for dividends received in 1964 has been reduced to 2 per cent from 4 per cent and is eliminated after 1964.

NEW CAPITAL LOSS CARRYOVERS — Capital losses of individuals to the extent not deducted in 1964 or later years may be carried forward indefinitely. The former five-year limit on the carryover is removed, except for corporations.

TAX ON ACQUISITIONS OF FOREIGN SECURITIES — The tax on acquisitions of foreign securities from nonresident aliens is in effect through 1964 and applies to acquisitions after July 18, 1963, or, for listed securities, August 16, 1963. For stocks the tax is 15 per cent. For debt obligations the rates vary according to maturity, from 2.75 per cent to 15 per cent.

1. List capital gain or loss resulting from completed 1964 transactions.

2. List current holdings and their costs, and check their current paper gain or loss positions, paying attention to long and short-term positions.

3. Study these lists for tax-saving possibilities by checking them against capital gain and loss tax rules.

Tax-free gains may be taken between now and the end of the year to the extent they offset losses possibly incurred during the year. If capital gains have been realized, any offsetting losses will help to wipe out the potential tax on the gains.

While a sale is required, an investment position can be maintained by repurchasing securities immediately after selling for gain, or 31 days or more after selling for loss, the CCH report said.

A maximum of $1000 of net capital loss will offset other income. Thus investors with paper losses can save taxes by realizing at least $1000 in excess of any gains to deduct from other income. The tax saved is the tax in the highest bracket, according to the CCH booklet which adds that losses offsetting gains or ordinary income in 1964 will save more tax dollars than in later years because tax rates are lower after 1964.

In computing net position for income tax purposes, total all long-term gains and all long-term losses. Subtract the losses from the gains, or the opposite, to arrive at a net long-term capital gain or loss. Do the same for short-term gains or losses. If there is a net loss, either short or long-term, it is applied against any net gain, either short or long-term.

The final result determines the federal income tax treatment, the CCH booklet says. A net balance of short-term capital gain is taxed at the same rate as ordinary income. Long-term gain, however, is taxed at a maximum rate of 25 per cent.

UNFAIR TO CAR THIEVES!

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—A theft-prevention device scheduled to be put on the market soon may drive automobile thieves crazy due to frustration. When the unit is installed, any tampering with the ignition system locks the brakes. If the brakes are released, the fuel supply is cut off. If the fuel system is adjusted, the brakes will lock again and the ignition system is grounded. In a test, a mechanic without a key was unable to start an equipped car in 30 minutes. In a car without the unit, the mechanic drove off in 16 seconds.

Space Rocket Workhorse To Be Tested

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The new Air Force Titan-3A space rocket, expected to be a military workhorse for a decade, is scheduled to make its second attempt to orbit a dummy payload Friday.

Key to the test will be the performance of the booster's maneuverable third stage, which will act as an orbiting launch stand for a variety of manned and unmanned military spacecraft on later missions.

The Titan-3A is the nucleus of a more powerful model called the Titan-3C that is scheduled to make its first flight next April and give the United States a new challenge to Russia's claim of rocket power superiority.

The 3C, already assigned the task of lofting the Air Force manned orbiting laboratory (MOL) in 1967 or 1968, uses a 3A with two 1-million pound thrust solid rockets strapped to its sides.

Friday's launch will be a repeat of the Titan-3A's maiden flight Sept. 1 which failed to achieve an orbit because a faulty helium valve caused the two third stage engines to quit too soon.

Engineers have installed an alternative system to prevent a similar failure on the upcoming flight.

Nixon Issues Call for New Republican Unity

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, preaching Republican unity and urging the GOP to follow a center course, says Sen. Barry Goldwater's future as the party's titular leader may depend on how well he meets the challenge of unity over the next two years.

Calling his recent verbal assault on New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller "a closed book," Nixon said Friday that "The party is bigger than Rockefeller, and it is bigger than Goldwater, but it is big enough for both."

Nixon last week attacked Rockefeller as the "principal divider" of the party during Goldwater's unsuccessful presidential campaign.

But Friday, as he talked with newsmen at New York's Kennedy Airport before going to Japan on a business trip, Nixon stressed a need for the GOP to include moderates and liberals as it prepares for the 1966 congressional elections.

As for his own role, Nixon waved aside questions on whether he would be "available as a candidate" for president in 1968 by stating:

"I am not available for any position I can see."

As for the possibility that he may be a suitable "compromise choice" as Republican national chairman to unite the warring wings of the GOP, the former vice president and 1960 GOP presidential candidate, said: "I have no presumption to be a leader without portfolio."

At a news conference in San Francisco, Nixon said Republicans should begin reshaping their fortunes next January.

"We must make a comeback in 1966," he said, adding that Republicans should "close the book" on the 1964 presidential election defeat, restore party unity for the 1966 congressional elections and "avoid any speculation about 1968."

One of Goldwater's staunchest backers, Texas Republican Sen. John G. Tower, said those who want to oust National Chairman Dean Burch — hand-picked by Goldwater last summer to head the Republican National Committee — are putting "heat . . . on the wrong man."

Republicans who didn't support Goldwater's candidacy, Tower said, "are on weak grounds when they try to assess the blame" for last week's overwhelming Republican defeat.

Tower insisted Goldwater's margin of defeat would have been smaller if the Republicans who stayed neutral or hostile to his candidacy had lent their prestige and effort to eliminate what he termed the "false impression" that Goldwater is a "trigger happy ogre with no feeling for social problems."

He said Burch's job was to organize the campaign and raise funds and that this was "well carried out."

And, Tower said, "this is not the time to yell for scalps."

Asked specifically if he thought Burch should remain as GOP national chairman, Tower said: "I don't think we should try and decide who should be national chairman at this time. We should take a calm analytical look at the results of the election."

There were these other developments on the political scene:

In San Francisco, Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown and GOP Sen.-elect George Murphy agreed to work closely in trying to resolve California's problems. Brown said although he and Murphy are "far apart in political philosophy," on "the bread and butter issues affecting the state, I'm sure we'll stand together."

In Washington, Rep. John Bell Williams, D-Miss., said he is entitled to and expects to be seated in Congress in January as a Democrat. House Democratic liberals are trying to oust Williams and Rep. Albert W. Watson of South Carolina from the party caucus because they supported Goldwater for president.

U.S., West Germany Agree on Arms Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI)—West German Defense Minister Kai-Uwe von Hassel and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Saturday signed agreements governing West German military procurement in the United States and cooperation in research and development projects.

A statement issued by the Defense Department after three days of German-American talks here said McNamara and Von Hassel agreed that the concept of the multilateral nuclear force (MLF) should be implemented "as soon as possible after the prerequiste international political decisions have been made."

The statement emphasized that, until these decisions had benn reached, discussions relating to the MLF would be restricted to planning only. Particular attention was to be given to manpower problems, production, financing and training.

U.S. Atomic Sub Returns to Patrol at Sea

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SASEBO, Japan (AP) — The U.S. nuclear submarine Seadragon returned to its Pacific patrol today, leaving behind angry leftists who failed to produce the massive protest demonstrations they promised for the three-day visit.

About 30 Communists sat down outside the gates of the big American Navy base an hour before the submarine glided out of the harbor. Two minutes after the Seadragon left its mooring they got to their feet, raised clenched fists and shouted: "Atom sub go home... don't come back!"

Leftist groups — Socialists, Communists and some labor unions — tried to muster big protests against the submarine's visit. They predicted up to 15,000 persons would demonstrate but the peak was about 3,000.

Police clashed with demonstrators several times, but injuries were confined mostly to bloody noses and bruises.

The Seadragon came to Sasebo to take on provisions and give its 9 officers and 99 enlisted men a recreational visit. Japan and the United States recently reached agreement on such visits by nuclear powered vessels.

Leftists contended the visit would open the way for introduction of nuclear weapons into Japan. U.S. officials denied this and pointed out the Seadragon carried no nuclear weapons.

Police had brought in reinforcements today, believing the leftists might make a final push for a turnout to make it appear they had forced the Seadragon to leave. Sound trucks roamed the city during the morning, attempting to whip up support. But the move failed.

A spokesman for the leftists blamed the relatively isolated location of Sasebo and the lack of support among the people in this city of 260,000.

The Seadragon's crewmen went into the city and no incidents were reported, except for occasional shouts of "Yankee go home."

In Tokyo, the Japan Times quoted informed sources as saying the U.S. nuclear submarine Swordfish would arrive in Yokosuka, a big naval base 40 miles south of Tokyo Monday or soon thereafter. But a U.S. Defense Department spokesman said in Washington the Navy has no plans to send the Swordfish to Japan in the foreseeable future.

Americans to Reach Top Living Peaks in '65

During 1965 the average American family will reach the highest standard of living ever achieved, according to the Prudential Insurance Co.'s annual economic forecast, being released tomorrow by Orville E. Beal, President.

The average family income will hit $6,800, up $300 from 1964.

Gross national product — the sum of all goods and services — will climb to $661 billion, an increase of $37 billion, up six per cent over this year.

In comparing 1965 with 1960, the first year of the heralded "Golden Sixties," the forecast finds average family income up 21 per cent and GNP up a third. Even after adjusting foprice increases, it finds the GNP figure still up 25 per cent.

They see the f ritshalf of 1965 as "particularly strong, the second half good by not quite so buoyant."

Business capital expenditures to be a major factor in the economic expansion, rising 10 per cent to $64 billion.

— Inventories, now at low levels, to rise sharply early in the year and become more subdued later, with over-all accumulation up $1 billion and reing $4.5 billion.

— Government spending on the federal level to continue under restraint and rise only $1.5 billion to a total of $68 billion.

— State and local spending to continue its usual growth, up, $5 billion, equaling federal outlays for the first time since 1950.

— Housing starts to dip to 1,500,000 units; but spending, because of higher unit prices, to grow $500 million and total $26.5 billion.

— Foreign trade surplus to decline to $5 billion, a drop of $1 billion, and the balance-of-payments deficit to continue for other reasons, one being that the "rapidly growing European market still acts as a powerful magnet for direct investment by American business."

— Consumer buying — likely to climb sharply until April but more slowly after that — to rise $24 billion and $425 billion.

The Prudential economists say that consumer prices will rise 2 per cent in 1965, compared to the average rise of 1.2 per cent over the past five years.

They expect higher prices for transportation, food, apparel, medical services, and rent to account for most of the increase.

The economists comment that a family with a child in college will, of course, spend much more on education than the average family.

But they find that "education pays off." In 1965, the income of a family headed by an elementary school graduate will be $5,780, a high school graduate $7,450, and a college graduate $10,570.

In reviewing 1964, the Prudential economists note that the recent tax cut, which stimulated a 7 per cent GNP growth, represents a new approach to budgetary policy.

It came, they point out, not at a time of recession, when it might have been expected, but at a time of prosperity with the budget already in deficit.

The forecast states: "If this new approach to fiscal policy is continued in the future. . .the Treasury will depend increasingly on revenues arising from a more rapid rate of economic growth to bring the budget into balance."

Strike Launched Against 48 U.S. Paper Mills

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Whether West Coast pulp and paper workers will be loyal to their new union is a big question in a strike under way against 48 mills.

How workers react to management encouragement to cross picket lines will affect the bargaining positions of the disputing factions when they meet Monday in Washington, D. C.

The trend was unclear today.

Management said workers at Sumner, Wash., and Gardiner, Ore., were considering returning to their jobs. But where 16 of the 48 mills continued at least a partial operation Thursday, only 15 still were producing Friday.

The Association of Western Pulp and Paper Workers, which called the strike Thursday morning, replaced two AFL-CIO unions as bargaining agent in a National Labor Relations Board election two months ago.

However, the vote among 18,000 workeds was close, and many men sympathietic to the old unions have not joined the new, independent union.

The Pacific Coast Association of Pulp and Paper Manufacturers has held the mill doors open for any workers who do not want to continue the strike. It told workers in a newspaper advertisement that they would not lose their jobs by crossing picket lines. The manufacturers also said those who did not belong to the new union could not be fined by it for crossing picket lines.

The loyalty of many workers to the old unions—the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers and the United Papermakers and Paperworkers—is one reason why the new union wants a union shop in the contract.

It would require all employes to belong to the new union.

The other issue stalling talks that it should have authority to decide all issues not covered by the contract.

Conscientious Objector Issue Being Examined

WASHINGTON (UPI)— How far can Congress go in defining the kind of religious belief that exempts a conscientious objector from military service?

This delcate question will be argued in three cases before the Supreme Court next week, starting Monday.

Each case reflects changing ideas and ideals in American life.

Before World War II, the Selective Service Act was simply expressed. It exempted a person "who, by reason of religious training and belief, is conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form."

In 1948, Congress defined "religious training and belief," and this definition is the nub of the court's problem.

According to the 1948 statute, it is "an individual's belief in relation to a supreme being involving duties superior to those arising from any human relation, but does not include essentially political, sociological or philosophical views or a merely personal moral code."

Definition Affects Case

Daniel Andrew Seeger, 28, ran into this definition when he was called up for service. Although he had been reared in an "exceptionally religious" Roman Catholic household, Seeger said he had come to feel that the existence of a supreme being could not be proved or disproved. Therefore, he could not say definitely that he believes in one.

Seeger did say he believed that war, "from the practical standpoint, is futile and self-defeating, and . . . from the more important moral standpoint, is unethical."

The government decided Seeger's views did not qualify him as a conscientious objector. He was tried for refusing to submit to induction into the armed forces and sentenced to one year and a day in jail.

Conviction Reversed

The Second U.S. Court of Appeals reversed the conviction and found the law unconstitutional. The Justice Department brought the case to the Supreme Court.

The circuit court said that for many in today's "skeptical generations . . . the stern and moral voice of conscience occupies that hallowed place in the hearts and minds of men which was traditionally reserved for the commandments of God."

The opinion also noted that such "well-established religious sects" as Buddhism, Taoism, Ethical Culture and Secular Humanism do not teach a belief in the existence of the supreme being.

In another New York case, Arno Sascha Jakobson, 29, of Jewish parentage, was sentenced to one year and a day in jail on the same charge. A different panel of the Second Circuit reversed Jakobson's conviction but did not strike down the law. It said Jakobson's views fell within Congress' definition.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
Sunday, Nov. 15, 1964 Colorado Springs, Colo. Gazette Telegraph—1-D

A PROUD MOMENT—13-year-old Kerry Henson, formerly of Troop 19, is being presented with the Eagle Scout neckerchief by Navy Captain Hoyt D. Mann, Commander Naval Forces, CONAD, while Kerry's father proudly looks on. In receiving the Eagle award, Kerry became the youngest scout in the Pikes Peak Council to obtain this rank. Kerry and his father flew from Richardson, Tex., for Troop 19s Court of Honor.

Kerry Wanted to Be Eagle Scout Mere Miles Couldn't Stop Him

The florescent lamps are turned off. . . .a Boy Scout walks up to a table and lights 15 candles. Three of these candles represent the three points of the Scout Oath, and 12 candles for each segment of the Scout Law. As he lights each candle, a Boy Scout will explain the meaning of each lighted candle.

This is the beginning of a new adventure for the young boys who are commencing a new way of life through scouting.

This is the beginning of a new step, for some, in the scouting advancement program.

As each new scout stands before the Court of Honor to receive his tenderfoot badge, it's almost certain that his thoughts are on the day when he receives the coveted Eagle rank award from the same Court of Honor.

A little more than two years ago, a young lad stood before the Court of Honor of Troop 19. This was Kerry Henson. He was awarded the Tenderfoot Badge. . . .and he too was thinking of the day when he would become an Eagle Scout . . . .This was his beginning.

Scout Henson is no longer a resident of Colorado Springs. He now belongs to a Scout Troop in Richardson, Texas. He left this area in August, along with his parents and two younger sisters, when his father became director of Manufacturing Recognition Equipment in Dallas, Texas.

However, during his two years in the Pikes Peak Region he became an active scout. While in Troop 19 he advanced to Life Scout and even qualified for the Eagle rank. He was so active that he was voted as the Troop's outstanding scout for this year. The scouts and scouters of Troop 19 also nominated him to the "Order of the Arrow" . . . .an exclusive scout society composed of outstanding scouts and scouters.

But, Scout Henson moved before these honors could be bestowed upon him.

That was until Scout Master, Marine Corps Major David Tinius notified young Henson of the pending Troop Court of Honor . . . . and that at this session he would be awarded the coveted Eagle Badge.

On learning this, Kerry's father — Mr. S. R. Henson — asked his son if he wanted to receive this honor in person. According to Mr. Henson, his son replied, "I would like this. It would be great to have the scouts of my old troop to share this award with me. . . .after all if it wasn't for their help I would not be an Eagle Scout".

From this answer, Kerry along with his father flew from Texas to Colorado Springs. . . thus 13 year-old Kerry became an Eagle Scout. He also became the youngest scout to obtain this award.

Former Boy Scout, Navy Captain Hoyt D. Mann, Commander Naval Forces, CONAD, prestnted the Eagle award to Kerry. In presenting this award, Captain Mann told of his scouting experience and emphasized how these experiences have remained with him throughout his naval career.

In turn, Troop 19 honored Captain Mann as a scout and made him an honorary member of the Troop. He was also presented with a Life Scout Badge. . . .for his accomplishments as a youngster in the scouting program.

As the candles burned, scouts and their parents were called up to receive their awards. Another scout, Doug Montgomery received the Life Scout Award. This was presented by Mayor Harry Hoth.

Mayor Hoth told Doug, as well as the troop and parents, how the young scouts of today. . . through the scouting programs are becoming the responsible citizens of the community tomorrow. He too emphasized that scouting plays an important role in the life of every boy. through the teachings of scouting they will realize that "duty to God, to Country and self" are important factors in becoming a good citizen.

In this Court of Honor, Tenderfoot Badges were presented to Harold Goode, Mike Burkhulter, and John Heath. Scout Dave Thompson received his Second Class Badge. A First Class Badge went to Michael Talcott.

In Merit Badge awards, Pete Chisholm received Citizenship in the Home; Frank Burke received the Printing badge; Lynn Miller won Hiking, and Tim Tinius was awarded the Safety and Personal Fitness badges.

Also Troop Leader badges went to Noel Talcott, scribe; Doug Montgomery, senior patrol leader; and Michael Talcott, quartermaster.

The Court of Honor is over. Each scout of Troop 19 is beginning a new step in scouting. They will continue to learn and pass their achievements. . . . their acheivements will be realized when they receive their badges to the next rank.

PARENTS AND SCOUTING — Doug Montgomery, who received his Life Scout Badge pins a miniature Life Badge on his mother, Mrs. Donald Montgomery while Mayor Harry Hoth looks on. The Mayor was called on to make this presentation during Troop 19's Court of Honor. Because of the parents responsibility to their sons in helping them through the scouting program, they too are honored along with the son.

23 District 11 Seniors Receive Merit Awards

Certificates of merit for outstanding performance on the National Merit Scholarship Examination have been awarded to 23 District 11 high school seniors.

Over 800,000 students in 17,000 U. S. high schools took the examination last spring. The local students are among the two percent of the total to qualify for certificates.

Two of the Palmer winners, Anne Haney and Yvonne Thibodau, are already working on their bachelors degree. They were admitted to college under the early admissions plan.

Earlier in the year, the National Merit Scholarship Corporation named four Wasson students and two Palmer students among the semifinalists in the 1964 competition. They are still in the running for a scholarship award.

Demos Name Speaker of State House

DENVER (AP) — Rep. Allen Dines, 43-year-old Denver lawyer, was chosen Saturday by Colorado Democrats to be speaker of the new state House of Representatives.

Dines won on the first ballot at a causus of the Democrats who will make up the majority of the House.

State Chairman Robert Maytag said the vote was 31 for Dines, six for former Speaker Charles Conklin of Delta, who made a political comeback this year, and three for Rep. Forrest Burns of Lamar.

The other candidate, Rep. Phillip Massari of Trinidad, withdrew at the last moment and seconded the nomination of Dines.

Subsequently the election was made unanimous.

Dines' election reflects the shift in power in the Legislature from rural to urban areas or reapportionment, although no Denver-versus-outstate fight developed.

Dines is the first Denver man for many years to be named speaker.

He is beginning his fifth term and has served as Democratic floor leader for the past four years. When Democrats controlled the House in 1961-62, he was majority leader and has been minority leader during the [illegible] General Assembly, controlled by Republicans.

Lebanon Prepares For New Cabinet

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Charles Helou began consultations with Lebanese political leaders today to replace the cabinet of Prime Minister Hussein Oweini, who resigned Friday night.

Sinatra Appears at Kansas City Probe

Singer Frank Sinatra, accompanied by two lawyers, made an hour-long appearance before the jury. Sinatra's friend, Sammy Davis, flew in from New York Thursday, spent nearly two hours with the grand jury, and returned to New York immediately by plane.

Justice Department officials have refused to disclose the nature of the investigation.

Sinatra returned to Los Angeles after a brief stop in Wichita, Kan., to check on construction progress of an executive jet plane he has ordered.

A spokesman for the singer said that "in compliance with the request of the U.S. attorney and the U.S.

Three U. S. Attaches Confined to Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Three U.S. military attaches accused of spying on a train trip across Siberia a month ago have been refused permission to take trips outside Moscow, it was learned today.

It was understood the Soviet government has restricted them to Moscow. The same was believed to be true for a British military attache who accompanied the Americans on the 4,000-mile train trip from Moscow to Khabarovsk in the Soviet Far East.

The Americans are Col. George A. Aubrey of Annapolis, Md.; Lt. Col. Karl R. Liever of Osmond, Neb., both of the U.S. Army, and U.S. Air Force Maj. James A. F. Smith of Meers, Okla.

Moscow Discussions Said Inconclusive

TOKYO (AP) — Red China Premier Chou En-lai returned to Peking today after apparently inconclusive talks in Moscow. Communist Chairman Mao Tze-tung greeted him at the airport.

Chou took part in what the Russians called "frank, comradely" conversations with the new Soviet leadership.

The Chinese account of the meetings between Chou and Soviet party secretary Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexi Kosygin suggested even more emphatically than the Russian version that no important progress towards a resolution of Chinese-Soviet differences had been made.

WHAT IS THE FLICK?

The FLICK will be Colorado Springs' showcase for the Cinema.

The FLICK will provide the opportunity to view fine and unusual films under favorable conditions on a continuing basis.

The FLICK will be the Springs' most intimate theatre with appeal to that select audience for whom motion pictures can provide enlightenment as well as entertainment. Due to limited seating for only 120 patrons, reservations may be made in advance by phone, if desired.

The FLICK will be considerably different from most theatres in both design and programming. There will be no concessions sold yet there will be consistent program starting times so that patrons may better plan their evenings.

The FLICK will cultivate an informed appreciation of the cinema. Film notes will be distributed at each performance to enhance the understanding and enjoyment of the programs presented.

The FLICK will be located at Tejon and Willamette, just walking distance from the College and easily accessible from all parts of the city. There will always be ample parking.

The FLICK will bring to Colorado Springs a varied program of the world's finest achievements in the cinema. Films such as BANDITS OF ORGOSOLO, MY LIFE TO LIVE, MAFIOSO, THE TRIAL, POINT OF ORDER, THE SUITOR, JULES AND JIM and THE BALCONY will be at the FLICK in the next few months.

The FLICK will be an Art Theatre in the true meaning of the term and will open Sunday evening, November 29th, 1964 with the American Premiere of the brilliant and hilarious, French award-winner AMERICA THE STRANGE.

Immigration Law Revision Being Sought

ASHINGTON (UPI)—Presi- Johnson, who wants to get mmigration bill through the Congress, shares some of same problems as the man is planning to build a boat bottle.

e model-builder has to wor- about getting his ship ugh the neck of the bottle. Johnson has to get his bill past the House and Senate Judiciary committees, and the fit could be just as close.

The battle, and there will be a hot one, will be over proposals to repeal the 40-year-old national origins quota system of immigration control. It will involve basic U.S. immigration policy and probably excite more passion than anything since the civil rights bill.

The Johnson immigration bill is expected to be patterned closely after the proposal submitted to Congress in 1963 by the late President John F. Kennedy. That bill did not pass, principally because there were not enough votes in the two committees to advance it.

The same problem faces Johnson and his congressional lieutenants. But for a Chief Executive who in the last session was able to squeeze through Congress such bills as civil rights, school aid and tax reductions, the immigration bottleneck does not appear impassable.

Once the committee problems are solved, the resulting bill still has to stand up to debate on the House and Senate floor. But supporters feel the voies are there in both chambers.

The Kennedy immigration bill touched on a number of controversial questions, but the overriding issue it raised was abolition of the national origins quota system.

The quota system has been in the law since 1924, and has provoked arguments from the start. The system is a device for controlling immigration to the United States from other countries.

At present, 155,600 quota immigration "numbers" are divided among more than 100 countries. Each country's yearly quota is based upon its percentage of the nationality "mix" present in the United States at the time of the 1920 cenus.

The result has been to allot many more immigration numbers to northern and western European countries than to other parts of the world. Specifically, the system provides for 104,000 immigrants from Great Britain, Ireland and Germany and 51,000-plus to the rest of the world.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

HUNGER AND GROUCHINESS

Mrs. R. writes: "Several months ago my husband started skipping breakfast and lunch. He eats a large dinner at night (meat, raw and cooked vegetables and fruits, yogurt, and cheddar and cottage cheese. No fats, oils sugars, or starches). The evening meal and later snacks frequently are as much as three meals combined.

"He frequently is irritable in the evening—almost like a personality change. Could it be that his body is being deprived of needed elements or that his blood sugar is low all day? I keep telling him breakfast is necessary, as blood sugar is at its lowest ebb in the morning. He won't listen to me."

This is a good example of how poor eating habits develop. They usually start earlier in life but this man probably began to skip breakfast and lunch to lose weight. Now he is in trouble and his wife is upset as well.

Many people do not appreciate the importance of good eating habits. Proper nutrition is essential to growth, function, and the maintenance and repair of body tissues. Many don't like certain foods but this need not be a problem because our grocery stores and supermarkets are stocked with a wide variety of proocts.

A little of this and that will go a long way, provided we include the daily basic four: (1) dairy products (2) meat and meat substitutes (fish, poultry, eggs, cheese, nuts, dried greens and peas) (3) cereal products, and (4) vegetables and fruits.

It is unwise to skip breakfast and lunch, if for no other reason than to maintain a good disposition. An empty stomach creates hunger pangs and Mr. R. probably has this complaint after fasting all day. A small breakfast and lunch would idprove the situation. His main meal provides the basic four foods. Those "later snacks" usually contain luxury items—delicious but disastrous when it comes to calories.

EXERCISE FOR EMPHYSEMA

Mrs. M. P. writes: I understand there are exercises a person can do to help emphysema. I would appreciate any information you could give me regarding this condition.

REPLY

Exercises improve respiration and physical fitness. Send stamped, self - addressed envelope for leaflet on emphysema, which discusses the disorder and outlines helpful exercises.

HARDENED ARTERIES

C. H. writes: My mother died at age 59 and the death certificate read "arteriosclerosis." What kind of an examination is done to determine this condition as the cause of death?

REPLY

I assume your mother had stroke or coronary thrombosis—two conditions usually associated with hardening of the arteries.

SKIN AND NERVE TUMORS

Mrs. S. K. writes: Is the cause of von Recklinghausen's disease known?

REPLY

No, although there is a hereditary aspect to this condition in which tumors appear on skin, nerves, bones, and internal organs. These growths are removed surgically when they are large or interfere with function.

GOUTY SPOUSE

C. W. A. writes: Can a husband or wife transmit gout to the mate?

REPLY

Today's Health Hint —
Spare us from speeding ambulances.

MUNICH — Children up to three years are in the greatest danger while they are in the kitchen, on stairs, on terraces or in the bathroom. For the three-to-six-year group, accident centers shift a little more to outside, according to a recent survey here.

A Beauty Hint
Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water smooth on a little tropical oil of olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive but your drug store should be able to get you a small supply.

Auto - train Accident Damages Awarded

DENVER (AP) — A former Boulder woman has been awarded $65,000 by a Denver District Court jury against the Rio Grande Railroad for injuries received in an auto-train accident.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lipscomb, 32, now of LaCresenta, Calif., had sought $185,000 for injuries she said she suffered when her car collided with a Rio Grande engine in Jefferson County just west of Denver on July 27, 1961.

A six man jury deliberated about two hours before reaching its verdict late Friday.

Mrs. Lipscomb alleged that the railroad was negligent and failed to have warning lights flashing at the crossing which was protected by wooden cross arms.

BRITISH LIKE BEER

LIVERPOOL — Britain's drinking classes drank enough beer last year to float 100 battleships or fully submerge Soho. The Brewers' Society revealed recently that a record 9,545 million gallons of beer was consumed in the world last year.

AMMAN — Jordan will buy new street lights.

Cannel Advises Caution for 'Great Society'

NEW YORK (NEA)—Whatever else the election tally means, it is certainly a mandate for President Johnson to go ahead wit.h his plan to build a Great Society.

He has, in fact, already set up several committees to study the project and make recommendations for getting it done as quickly as possible. And knowing how impatient the President can be sometimes, we would like to offer a few words of caution and advice.

(This does not mean that we are against having a Great Society. On the contrary. But as we always say, Rome was not built in a day. And neither was the World's Fair. It has been our experience that you have to work just as hard to turn out a Great job as a Mediocre one.

(This does not mean that we have anything against the World's Fair. On the contrary. We are absolutely certain that Robert Moses did not hold back any talent on the job. He did the best he could, so the result is really not his fault.)

What we would like to offer in building the Great Society is patience. A project like this can take six months or more. But it should otn take much longer than a year, what with the improvements in technology. After all, it takes only eight weeks to build an underdeveloped nation, and 20 to build a slum.

In addition, we have discovered that there is a great body of scientific research already done on the subject of how Society is built, with new information being added to it all the time.

As a matter of fact, there is no longer any need to ask how the other half lives. They live very nicely on grants and scholarships, working tirelessly even in the fiercest weather to distill Society down to its Basic Values.

In a brief half - hour at the library yesterday, we were able to make a considerable list of references on the Basic Values in the U.S. Industrial Society, Agrarian Society, Mass Society, Urban Society, Open Society, Mobile Society, Elite Society, Sane Society, Alienated Society, Rural Society and Competitive Society.

All these works, of course, have considerable passages of print for the benefit of those who do not understand charts and graphs. But we cannot in all honesty recommend this approach as a suitable or quick way to build a Great Society.

In the first place, if we understand this science, it is very cumbersome to build anything out of Basic Values as you have to leave room for all the people who are against them.

And in the second place, from what we have read in the research, you cannot possibly understand any one report unless you have read six others first. As the late sociologist-historian Jacob Burckhardt so aptly puts it: "Wirsind unwissenschaftlich un haben gar keine methode . . ."

To our way of thinking, the only sensible way to build a Great Society is by conducting a national essay contest on the subject, open to everyone whether or not he has any basic values. It does not have to be complicated at all. Just write 200 words or less to complete the paragraph beginning:

"I see this here Great Society as ...."

Getting qualified judges is certainly no problem. In fact, the whole thing could be handled by the Editors of Life and Aya Rand (although we do think the list should also include Vance Packard, William Buckley, Gore Vidal, Otto Preminger, Robert Welch, James Baldwin, J. Edgar Hoover and Leonard Bernstein).

The way we see the Great Society, you do not have to know anything about music as long as you know what Leonard Bernstein likes.

U.S. Magazine Industry Has Smooth Sailing

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite recent problems at Curtis Publishing Co., the magazine industry generally is enjoying some of its smoothest sailing in years.

For most of the postwar years, however, periodicals were buffeted by changing social mores and shifting tastes, television and their own fierce circulation wars.

Collier's, the Woman's Home Companion and Coronet became victims. Curtis' Saturday Evening Post reports huge financial losses and internal discord.

Curtis Thursday named John M. Clifford president and chief executive officer in hope of finding more stability.

Even at Curtis, however, only the Saturday Evening Post, long its mainstay, is ailing. Three other magazines fare well and troubles of Ladies Home Journal appear manageable.

Advertising, a magazine's lifeblood, is rising. Circulations gain. A number of recently introduced magazines are flourishing.

Sports Illustrated, Holiday and Playboy have taken firm root only a few years after their debuts. Show magazine, however, is still trying to take root.

"After a decade of losing ground to television, magazines are becoming more competitive and are beginning to hold their ground against the newer medium," Bache & Co., Wall Street brokers, advised investor clients.

Printers' Ink estimated that national advertisers in 1964 will pour $1.2 billion into magazines, representing a gain of 8 per cent.

This would be over one-third more than newspapers receive from the same source, second only to television's expected take of $1.86 billion.

NOTICE

The Gazette Telegraph will accept no responsibility for errors after the first insertion. Errors, not the fault of the advertisers, which clearly lessen the value of the advertisement should be corrected the first day when extra collected insertions will be made without charge.

Claims for adjustment must be reported within seven days after advertisement appears.

American Guard Fires on Soviet Military Auto

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) — A Soviet military mission sedan was fired on by an Amedican guard when it failed to obey orders to halt, U.S. Army headquarters in Europe announced here Saturday.

The incident occurred Wednesday when the car approached a restricted U.S. military area near Nuremberg, the Army said.

The vehicle's two occupants, a Soviet colonel and an enlisted man driver, were detained for about seven hours and then released.

The Soviet military liaison mission is attached to U.S. headquarters. The United States has a similar mission attached to the Soviets in East Germany.

U.S. Army headquarters has protested to the Soviet military liaison mission, located in Frankfurt, that the Soviet car violated a well-marked restricted military area.

The Soviet sedan entered the restricted area at around 1:20 p.m. Wednesday despite signs in English, Russian and German warning against trespassing.

"The sedan's occupants refused repeated orders by a U.S. military guard to halt the car," the Army said.

The statement did not say whether the car was hit.

The Soviets stopped the car following the shot, the Army said.

The spokesman did not recall any such incident in recent years in which a U.S. guard had fired at a Soviet vehicle.

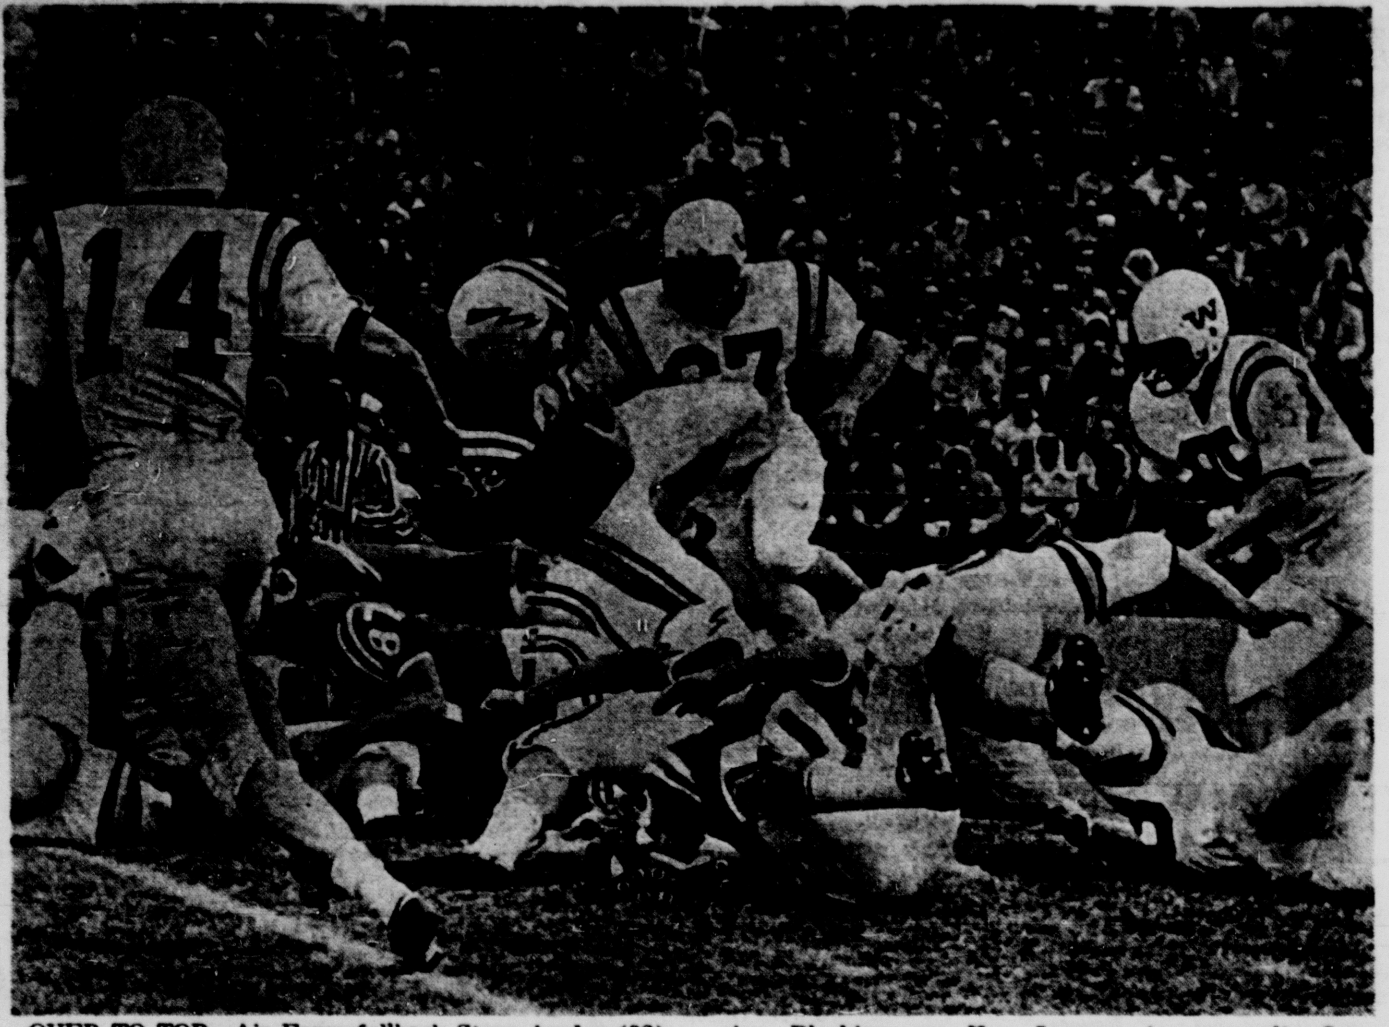
Air Force, Wyoming Play to 7-7 Standoff

GANGING UP ON TEE — Wyoming players bunch to tackle Air Force fullback Larry (Tee) Tollstam after a short run in Saturday's game at Falcon Stadium. This way typical of the brutal line play for both teams. Trying to throw a late block is Jim Greth (85) of the AFA, while making the tackle are Herman Memmelaar and friends from Wyoming. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)



OVER TO TOP—Air Force fullback Steve Amdor (32) dives over the top of a pile of linemen for a short gain during Saturday's 7-7 tie between the Falcons and Wyoming University. Amdor was the leading ground gainer for both teams, picking up 78 yards in 20 carries. Blocking are Ken Jaggers (on ground), Joe O'Gorman (87) and another unidentified Falcon. Wyoming players are Rick Engloff (14), Art Kissack (67) and Lanny Boleski (85). (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

A circus-like juggling act by senior end Jim Landes with a touchdown pass just before halftime enabled the Air Force Academy to end its home season with a 7-7 deadlock with an aroused Wyoming team at Falcon Stadium Saturday afternoon before a crowd of 25,244 chilled fans.

Landes fought off defender Jerry Marion to take a 37-yard looping pass from quarterback Tim Murphy with only six seconds left in the first half for the Falcons' lone score, and then the Air Force turned back a Wyoming drive that ended in a missed field goal from the nine yard line to preserve the tie.

Wyoming's equalizer came in the third period with fullback Don Klacking taking a seven-yard pass from Tom Wilkinson on a third down play and soccer-style kicker "Sir George" Squires booted the all-important extra point.

It was Squires' miss of what looked like a golden opportunity to break the standoff with a field goal that was the difference in the game. With fourth down on the four after a 66-yard drive to that point, the ball was placed down at the nine on the left hashmark. But the kick sliced off to the left of the goal and this was the last serious threat either team had.

The game was one of the most brutal seen in Falcon Stadium for some time, and both teams limped away with several minor injuries. It turned into a defensive struggle all the way, but was a suspenseful finish for the fans who suffered through a sputtering snow storm during all the second half.

The teams ended up just about even in the final statistics as was the score, with Wyoming having an edge of one in first downs and Air Force 47 yard advantage in total offense.

It was the second tie between these two regional rivals, with the first coming in their first year of competition back in 1957, and that also ended 7-up. Overall, the Air Force leads in the series with three victories against one loss and the two ties.

Air Force now has a 4-4-1 record and will have to defeat traditional season-ending rival Colorado U. at Boulder next Saturday to finish with a winning year. Wyoming, which had its second straight deadlock after a 20-20 standoff with Utah State last week, now stands at 5-2-2 for the fall. The Cowpokes finish up with Brigham Young University next week.

Only three times did the Air Force penetrate the 50 yard line throughout the game, and it was only by virtue of Landes' great catch that they scored at all. This was the sixth game this season the Falcons have pushed over just one touchdown or less, and again the Falcons had to rely on their fine defensive play to escape the loss. Wyoming got past the 50 four times in the game.

Nearly all the third period was taken up with two long Wyoming drives, one ending in their touchdown and the other the fateful missed field goal. And the Air Force was plainly out-played during this period.

The Academy did try a race with the clock in the final five minutes of the game, but got only to the Wyoming 28 when the game ended after quarterback Tim Murphy came in to spark the sagging passing attack.

The Air Force was foiled on two good chances to score on distant passing plays, with end Fritz Greenlee dropping the ball near the goal line in the second period after spring himself open for Paul Stein's aerial from the 35, and in the last seconds of the game when the AFA was trying for the distance on four straight passes, halfback Paul Wargo missed by inches taking a Murphy shot at the Wyoming five.

Wyoming had the best opportunity of all, however, and this too backfired. The Pokes recovered a fumble on the opening kickoff and had the chance to punch it in from the AFA 17. But this died on fourth down after reaching as far as the nine, when tackle Gary Fausti bolted through the line to throw quarterback Wilkinson for a four yard loss.

In somewhat of a turn-about to past styles, the Air Force had the better of the running by picking up 187 yards to Wyoming's 113, but the Pokes completed 12 of 23 passes for 119 yards, compared to 6 for 15 and 74 yards by the Cadets. The snow was never much of a factor in the passing, but the cold temperature was.

Wyoming appeared to get a "gift" touchdown in just the opening minutes after end Bob Dinges pounced on the fumble on the kickoff return, but the steady AFA defense tightened its belt right off the bat and held for downs. The Pokes passed for six yards to the nine, but on fourth down Fausti made his brilliant defensive play on a blitz from his tackle spot to nail Wilkinson.

The Fliers twice moved out near the 50 yard line, but both times during this first period action they stalled on third down with the running game and were forced to punt.

Early in the second period, a Wyoming fumble gave the Falcons good striking position, with co-captain Wendy Harkleroad gobbling up Bob Grant's bobble at the 35. But an incomplete pass and a penalty set back the Cadets and despite a nine-yard pass from Stein to Landes they couldn't make up the lost ground and the threat was killed.

The teams seemed destined to leave the field at halftime in a scoreless knot until the Air Force sent in Murphy with only a couple minutes left and he started moving the club upfield. Murphy hit end Jim Greth with a 10-yard pitch and then ran himself to the 43 of Wyoming. He connected to Greth once more to the 37, and then let loose with the bomb into the end zone to Landes.

Marion actually had good defensive position on Landes as the ball sailed goal-ward, but at the last second the 186-pound senior darted in across the promised land and virtually stole the ball from the Poke back. Landes tipped the ball out of Marion's grasp, and then as both were falling to the field he reached out to snag the ball for the AFA's lone touchdown. Bart Holaday added the point for the 7-0 lead with just six seconds left in the second period.

Wyoming took the second half kickoff and drove 68 yards in 12 plays with a crucial 15-yard penalty against the AFA mixed in. Wilkinson twice passed to split end Darryl Alleman for nine and 11 yards during the march, and he finally connected with Klacking for the score on a seven yard pass.

Klacking first stopped short at the five, then flared out into the right flat area where he took Wilkinson's easy shot and end zone. He was obviously a end zone. He was obviouly a secondary receiver for Klacking, who pumped three times before finding his target, but it proved to be the big play for the Pokes.

Again later in the third period the Pokes were driving, with Wilkinson still on the beam with his passes. He hit Alleman twice more for 33 yards, and wingback Garry McLean caught one for eight yards as Wyoming moved from its own 30 to the AFA 4 for 66 yards in 14 plays, but it ended with nothing on the scoreboard as Squires misjudged the field goal attempt from the nine.

Those two drives shot the third period, and both teams had trouble getting past midfield in the fourth stanza. Wyoming did get to the AFA 39 late in the game, but with fourth down and a yard to go they elected to test Squires' range with a field goal from the 46.

Irish Even Score With Michigan State

By WILL GRIMSLEY

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Sophomore Nick Eddy bolted 61 yards for a score in the first 3½ minutes and unloosed a cascade of touchdowns for top-ranked Notre Dame Saturday that ended 10 losing years against Michigan State, 34-7.

It was the eighth straight victory for the Fighting Irish, headed possibly for their first perfect season and national championship since 1949.

Eddy smashed five yards for a second touchdown and ace quarterback John Huarte figured in the other two, a 13-yard pass to Joe Farrell and a 21-yard dash into the end zone after a fake handoff.

The fifth score came in the fading minutes on a two-yard plunge by Pete Andreotti after an intercepted pass.

Notre Dame's blitzing defense, the best in the country against rushing, allowed one Michigan State score — a 51-yard pass from Steve Juday to Gene Washington in the third period — and three times threw back Spartan drives inside their 30.

Twice in the first half Michigan State, winner of 11 of its 12 games and eight straight against Notre Dame, moved to the 15 only to be stopped. In the fourth period the Spartans smashed 57 yards to the Notre Dame six but could go no farther.

It remained for a uniformed sheriff's deputy to make the best defensive play of the game. In the fourth period of the nationally televised game, two exuberant spectators jumped onto the field and began playing their own private game of run and tag before a capacity crowd of 59,265.

They cavorted for minutes — dancing and stiff-arming — before officers dragged them from the field. They came back moments later and joined the two teams. It was at this point that the deputy made a flying tackle on one of the interlopers. The crowd cheered wildly.

The triumph was a cherished one for the Irish, who hadn't beaten their bitter rivals from East Lansing, Mich., since 1954.

The reference was to Ara Parseghian, the former Northwestern coach who took over the reins of a chronically losing Notre Dame team this year. The Irish were 2-7 in 1963.

Two of the day's most spectacular plays were nullified by illegal formation penalties. Both were in the third period.

Wasson Sails to Semifinals; Closes Door on Cheyenne

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Wasson's South Central League champions fed Cheyenne Mountain a potent dosage of Jim Smith medicine Saturday afternoon as Gib Funk's Thunderbirds ripped out a 26-6 victory over the Indians in a State AAA quarter-finals contest at Wasson Stadium.

The long-anticipated struggle, which was witnessed by a surprisingly-small crowd of around 5,000, sent Wasson soaring into a rematch with Aurora Central, the Centennial League winner, in next Saturday's semi-finals. Central, a 19-6 victor over the Thunderbirds in the opening game of the season, advanced through the quarter-finals Saturday with a 33-0 crushing of Durango.

Wasson officials said Saturday that a coin flip with representatives of the Aurora school some time today will settle the site for next week's game. If the T-Birds should win the flip, the contest will again be at Wasson Stadium. If not, the Birds will travel to the northern city.

Saturday's bitterly-contested quarter-finals struggle was one of the fore bruising conflicts to invade Wasson Stadium in some time .Both clubs took some hard knocks from the vicious defensive play and it was in that area that the Indians proved they could stand toe to toe with their favored crosstown opponents.

But in the overall line play, it was obvious early in the struggle that Cheyenne was in over its head. That factor, plus Smith, made the difference.

The multi-talented Wasson quarterback, who has been poison to the opposition all fall, obviously saved one of his more sensational afternoons for the Indians. Smith provided Cheyenne with a quick preview of what to expect less than three minutes into the battle when he took a punt handoff from fullback Bob Toof, swung to the east sidelines and sailed 75 yards for Wasson's opening touchdown.

Before the afternoon had concluded, the Thunderbird star had tallied twice more, had an 84 yard scamper called back, had gained 117 yards rushing in 11 carries, completed four of six passes for 79 yards, and had intercepted three Cheyenne Mountain aerials.

Meanwhile, the T-Bird defense effectively contained Cheyenne's all-state fullback, Greg Cramblit. With his blockers unable to provide him with any kind of start, Cramblit was able to pierce the Wasson wall for just 19 yards in 10 carries. Shackled offensively, the Indian star thus turned to defense and there he was one of the shining knights of the Cheyenne cause.

The Indians did have an offensive standout, however, in end Bill Massarand whose excellent moves in the secondary gave the Thunderbird backs fits all afternoon. Massarand snared six passes for 108 yards, including the 25 yard bullet just before halftime that yanked the Indians into a brief 6-6 deadlock. With their ground game smothered, Cheyenne filled the air with footballs most of the afternoon as quarterback Ted Garcia fired 28 times and Cramblit added one extra.

Wasson's effectiveness in the first half was seriously crimped by another outbreak of the Thunderbirds' old fumble problems. Three times the T-Birds handed over the ball and the final one set the Indians into the position from which they scored.

Smith's opening blast, coming with 9:27 to go in the first quarter, might have shaken a team of lesser competitors, but the Indians shook that off and had the T-Birds still uneasy as late as the fourth quarter. The first fumble recovery came at the Wasson 22 by John Davis midway through the opening quarter, but the Indians saw that chance go up in smoke when Toof picked off a Garcia aerial. It was the first of five interceptions by the Thunderbirds.

Wasson then drove from its own 24 to the Cheyenne 23 on a typical T-Bird time-consuming march that ate its way into the second quarter. George Stowell then came up with a life-saver for the Indians, spearing a Smith pass near the goal line and returning it to the 14.

Minutes later Cheyenne profited from a booming 51 yard punt to the Wasson 11 but on the second play following Smith was on his way again, this time on an almost unbelievable run through hosts of defenders. His trip culminated 84 yards later in the end zone, but the officials ruled he had stepped out of bounds back at the Wasson 32, thus nullifying the touchdown.

On the following play Stowell covered another T-Bird fumble at the 35 and the Indians drove to the T-Birds nine before Smith pilfered a Garcia pass. Three plays later still another Wasson bobble was captured, this time by Cramblit, and on the next down Garcia fired a shot up the middle to the swift Massarand who grabbed it at the 15 and swung into the end zone with the tying points. Garcia's kick attempt hit the goal post and bounced away.

It was then that Wasson's explosive offense injected what was to be the killing blow. Smith returned the kickoff to his own 36 and with 40 seconds showing on the clock the 'Birds launched a swift drive downfield that culminated with Smith sneaking over from the one with seven seconds left. A 39 yard pass ignited the push by moving the ball to the Cheyenne 25. Smith then sent Toof to the 16 with a screen pass, fired Bruce Meade around the left flank to the 11, and hit Martin with a bullet up the middle at the one. He drove across on the next play and Mike Gillessen converted.

Cheyenne hung doggedly on in the third quarter, stopping one Wasson drive on downs at its 35 and then moving 39 yards on a journey of its own. That culminated with a punt to the Wasson 16, however, and from there the Thunderbirds unfolded the clinching romp downfield. Staying exclusively on the ground, the Birds ripped to the Cheyenne 28 in 12 plays and Toof then sped around right end, jarred his way through a pair of tacklers with an excellent second effort, and galloped into the end zone.

On the first play following the kickoff, the Indians tried an innovation, splitting the team into two groups, separated by some 20 yards. Garcia took the center snap and fired it toward a back across the field but the alert Wasson defense had diagnosed the play and Larry Schwartz broke through to intercept the ball and return it to the Cheyummd 17. Three plays later Smith rolled around the left and from the six with the final points.

In the dying minutes, the Wasson handyman came up with his third interception to cut down another Cheyenne threat that mad moved as far as the T-Birds' four. Smith then provided the crowd with one final thrill on the last play of the game by streaking 67 yards from his own 16 to the Indians' 17 as time ran out.

Kansas Crowns Colorado

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — Kansas needed four big defensive plays in the last half and some cool quarterbacking by Bob Skahan to squeeze by Colorado 10-7 Saturday, keeping alive its Big Eight football title hopes.

Kansas capitalized on a break for its winning 33-yard field goal by Gary Duff early in the third period. Colorado's Sam Harris, back to punt on fourth down, decided to run and was stopped for no gain at his 28 with Kansas taking over.

The Jayhawks brought their Big Eight record to 5-1, one game behind Nebraska. Hard luck Colorado, loser of four games by four points or less, finished 1-6 in league play.

Colorado drove 72 yards to score the first time it had the ball. Quarterback Bernie McCall hit three short passes, the last one nine yards to Harris for the touchdown.

Kansas came back to tie it, going 82 yards in 11 plays to score a touchdown.

Michigan Moves Toward Ohio State Big 10 Tilt

By RON SPEER
Associated Press Sports Writer

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Title-hungry Michigan swept to a 34-20 conquest of Iowa with the help of seven Hawkeye errors Saturday and will battle Ohio State for the Big Ten football championship.

The victory by the sixth-ranked Wolverines was their fifth against one loss in conference play. They finish the season next Saturday against Ohio State, which boosted its Big Ten mark to 5-0 by whipping Northwestern 10-0.

Quarterback Bob Timberlake and fullback Mel Anthony led Michigan, which has not won the conference title since 1950. Timberlake scored on a 14-yard run and tossed a six-yard touchdown pass. Anthony scored three times on runs of one, one and 10 yards.

But the Wolverines were helped by an erratic Iowa attack which sent the Hawkeyes to their fifth straight defeat and left them in the Big Ten cellar with a 1-5 mark.

Iowa gave up the ball on fumbles and pass interceptions seven times inside its 30-yard line, and Michigan converted three of the miscues into touchdowns.

Quarterback Gary Snook had one of his worst days for the Hawkeyes, although he managed to break another Big Ten mark by completing 13 passes for a season total of 110, two more than the old record.

Three of his passes were intercepted and he fumbled twice.

Halfback Karl Noonan also set a conference record for the Hawkeyes, catching six passes to boost his season receptions to a Big Ten high of 40.

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves has averaged 126 run's per year over the past five seasons.

Score Before Halftime Turned Tide in Thunderbird's Favor--Funk

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gadette Telegraph Sports Writer

"The turning point was definitely right before halftime, when we came back and scored," a happy Gib Funk said in the Wasson coaches' quarters following his team's convincing 26-6 triumph over Cheyenne Mountain Saturday.

The swiftly-executed touchdown came with just seven seconds left in the half and was engineered over a 64 yard path after Cheyenne had knotted the score with just over a minute to play on a 25 yard pass from Ted Garcia to Bill Massarand.

"That Massarand is really a fine ball player," Funk said of the Cheyenne end who caught six passes for 108 yards. "He had fine moves and he really kept our kids hopping."

Funk said Cheyenne's wide-open aerial game surprised his team somewhat. "We really hadn't worked much on pass defense this week, because they hadn't thrown much this year and we didn't suppose they would Saturday." The Wasson coach went on to explain that his team's seeming inability to put much pressure on Cheyenne quarterback, Ted Garcia, was partially by design. "We didn't rush our guards because they have been throwing a screen pass up the middle to Greg Cramblit and we wanted him to have as little running-room as possible," Funk said. "So, most of the time we only had two or three men rushing."

Funk lauded his defense for what he termed "an excellent effort" and added that he had not figured that the T-Birds would be able to contain Cramblit, Cheyenne's all-state fullback, as successfully as they did. "However, our line has really improved this year, especially defensively," the Wasson coach said. "One big thing has been the play of Greg McDonald since we moved him into defensive guard. He's strong as a bull—just stands there and throws people off."

Funk understandably had a few good words for his dazzling quarterback, Jim Smith, whose heroics were frequent throughout the afternoon. "Smitty played awfully well again," he said. "Many of the things he did required so much energy that he was really pooped at the end."

As for game strategy, the Wasson coach said Cheyenne's defense didn't exactly co-operate with what he had in mind. "We thought we'd be able to run against them better," he said. "I think we could have opened them up some by throwing but in the second half we were in a position where it wasn't advisable to pass. What we probably should have done was just drop Smitty back and let him run."

The Wasson staff was disappointed over the 84 yard touchdown run Smith had called back in the first half. "We were right there and he didn't appear to come within a yard of going out-of-bounds," Funk said. The T-Bird coach also added a few words in behalf of his fullback, Bob Toof, who was responsible for all three Wasson fumbles in the first half. "Toff had a bad first half," Funk said, "but he played us a fine game the last half."

According to early reports, the Thunderbirds came out of the game in good shape. Smith suffered a slight cut above his eye and there were several rather noticeable bruises. There was also the absence of halfback Bob Oyler, who missed the game due to illness. "He may have mumps," Funk said. "But we're certainly hoping it isn't anything serious. We'd really like to have him back next week for his blocking ability."

Barickman Praises Wasson; Gives Own Indians 'A' for Fine Effort

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

"What can you say, they were a better football team," commented a realistic Guy Barickman after his Cheyenne Mountain team went under to Wasson Saturday in the State Triple-A quarter-finals, 26-6, at Wasson Stadium.

"But our kids won't have to eat crow," Barickman continued while Cheyenne followers congratulated the Tribe's grid boss for the Indians' effort, "they gave an all effort but their line (Wasson) and Jim Smith proved too much for us to contain."

"Then too," Barickman further stated, "they stopped our main offensive ground attack Greg Cramblit."

Cramblit came into Saturday's state playoff game with a whopping 1,227 net yards gained in 10 games and the 190-pound fullback scored 21 touchdowns. But Cheyenne's forward wall couldn't spring the big fullback loose and Cramblit had to settle for only 19 net yards gained in 10 carries.

The Indians were forced airborne with Ted Garcia tossing to Bill Massarand for the Tribe's only touchdown in the second quarter. Massarand enabled the Cheyenne offense to jell and the towering 6-3 flanker caught six of the seven pass completions made by Cheyenne enne. Massarand picked up 107 net yards via his six completions, including the 25-yard TD pass.

Massarand also was the standout on defense, along with linebacker George Stowell who intercepted a Thunderbird aerial and recoved a crucial fumble.

Barickman had special praise for both Massarand and Stowell for their endeavors.

However, the game's most outstanding player was the Wasson front-line quarterback Smith. The T-Bird speedster directed the Wasson offense with complete authority and his running and passing were directly responsible for the key victory.

Smith raced down the sidelines in the first period after the Indians were forced to punt and the 150-pound Wasson senior outraced the Cheyenne defenders to register the first tally. From that point on, Smith was the contributing factor in launching the Wasson additional scores.

Prior to Saturday's state playoff game, it was known that the Birds would have to stop Cramblit and the Will Rogers League champions would have to contain Smith. But the game was won in the line.

Wasson's forward wall was expected to get a slight nod over the Indians' linemen. And the Thunderbirds also had depth.

But in the first half the Indians held their ground against the T-Birds on defense and even though they gave ground to their opponents while Wasson marched to a 13-6 half score.

Then Wasson's line strength and depth took its toll and the Thunderbirds controlled the ball the remaining two periods. The T-Birds proved this when they stopped the Indians' last minute bid to score on the three-yard line.

The Cheyenne team concluded its 1964 campaign with an 8-3 won-loss record, losing those three games to St. Mary's, Lamar and Wasson This was Barickman's first term as head coach at Cheyenne and he led them to the WRL championship undefeated.

Players Consider Tie as a Defeat After Saturday's AFA-Wyoming Tilt

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Visitors walking into either dressing room after the 7-7 tie between the Air Force Academy and Wyoming University probably would think both teams had lost—or at least that was the impression from the lack of celebration of any kind.

In both rooms players hung their heads in fatigue and disgust for not taking advantage of the opportunities that came for each team. A tie may be considered a half win by some, but it wasn't by the combatants in this case.

It was merely a reflection of how both teams wanted to win this contest. Also putting the feeling of at least the Air Force into words was the overheard statement by one of the Cadets:

"Well, we play our football season next week."

The Cadet was referring to the game in Boulder next Saturday against the University of Colorado. This, of course, has grown into the biggest rivalry on the AFA schedule and past records can be forgotten when the Buffs and Falcons get together. It could also give the Air Force more victories than defeats if they can beat the once-victorious CU team, which lost a heartbreaker to Kansas U, this weekend, 10-7.

Coach Ben Martin of the Air Force continually brought up the subject of "pressure defense" and field position as he talked with visitors and his assitants after the game. He was giving due credit to the Wyoming linemen who kept the Cadets bottled in their own end of the field almost the entire game.

"Our field position was bad again," Martin said of the way tht AFA always seemed to have nearly the length of the field in front of them when they got the ball. Only three times did they penetrate the midfield stripe, and one of those times resulted in the lone touchdown on a 37-yard pass from quarterback Tim Murphy to end Bill Landes.

"The third quarter was deciding in this game," Martin continued, "They controlled the ball through the whole period with the wind in their face, and after that it was hard for us to move against the wind. Keeping the ball against the wind was definitely the key for them."

"If I had known Amdor was hurt sooner I wouldn't have left him in there," Martin said. The AFA fullback picked up only short yardage on plays in the fourth period, just when the Falcons needed all the speed they could get in trying to score again.

"He had the injury before but I guess the cold just got to him," Martin said.

The AFA coach commented that "we knew they would be tough for us today. They had a real good start (winning five straight) and after losing a couple and last week's tie (with Utah State) we thought they'd be coming back like gang busters."

Martin said the Falcons tried so many deep passes mainly to get Wyoming out of its "pressure defense" with the linemen pinching tight for the Air Force runners. "They stayed with it, though, and we should have hit on a couple of those long ones."

The Cadets' pilot had praise for the catch end Bill Landes made of the lone touchdown pass, of course, and he pointed out the play of linebacker Wendy Harkleroad, end Joe O'Gorman, guard Tom Gorges and halfback Ken Jaggers. Jaggers may have been a major casualty of the game as he was taken out with an apparent dislocated shoulder, sustained when Wyoming roughed him while punting.

Martin called the TD pass by Wyoming a "touch football type play. Their fullback was supposed to block our linebacker, but he slipped the block and the fullback just floated out and suddenly was free. It worked for them, though," Martin said.

Lloyd Eaton was no more happy than Martin, in the Wyoming dressing room. He actually had little to say, mainly commenting that it's easier to look back on the game and figure out what should have been done than during the play.

As for the play in the middle of the fourth period when Wyoming elected to try for a 56-yard field goal by their specialist "Sir George" Squires rather than gamble on a fourth-and-one situation, Eaton said he'd probably do the same thing again.

"We went for fourth-and-one earlier and didn't make it," he said. "They were trying to break up the tie, too, and we didn't want to give up the ball in the middle of the field where they could move around.

"We thought he (Squires) might make it if he got it high and into the wind. But at least we put them back (to the 20) where we could peck away at them on defense."

Eaton was lamenting the missed opportunity in the first period the most. That's when Wyoming recovered a fumble on the opening kickoff and had the ball at the AFA 17, but didn't score. "We just let it go," he said.

And as for Squires' missed field goal in the fourth period from the nine, Eaton explained that he naturally kicks a slicking ball because of the soccer-type approach and kicking with the side of his foot. "He was at a bad angle, and the wind must of helped him curve."

Cats Leave Big 8 Cellar With Win

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State escaped the Big Eight cellar by edging Iowa State 7-6 Saturday but nearly 16,000 spectators were thrown into an uproar as the Cyclones scored an apparent winning touchdown with 26 seconds left. The play was nullified by a penalty.

The victory was the Wildcats' second in league play. They have lost four while the Cyclones are winless in seven starts.

Not since 1958 has Kansas State won more than two league games.

Coasting along on the 7-0 lead given them by Ed Danieley's one yard touchdown plunge and Jerry Cook's extra point, Kansas State got in trouble half-way through the fourth quarter. Rookie halfback Henry Howard fumbled a fair catch attempt and Iowa State recovered on the K-State 15. The Cyclones scored when Ron Halda sliced over from the two with 6:07 left.

Thus the stage was set for the first of three crucial plays. Quarterback Tim Van Galder attempted to run a two-pointer across but was bashed down a yard short.

With 1:27 left Kip Kiposki hit wingback Joe Beauchamp with a 34-yard pass good to the K-State 34. Eight plays later Iowa State had an apparent touchdown when Van Galder hit Eddie Barney in the end zone, but an illegal receiver down the field nullified the play.

Washington State Bows To Texas Tech, 28-10

Associated Press Sports Writer

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Texas Tech shrugged off a severe attack of fumblitis to crush Washington State 28-10 Saturday and boost the Raiders' prospects for a bowl bid.

Tech halfback Donny Anderson ran the hapless Cougars ragged, compiling 119 yards, to break a [illegible]-year-old Raider rushing record for one season and retain the Southwest Conference lead.

He also caught a 28-yard pass from quarterback Tom Wilson for Tech's first touchdown.

The Raiders fumbled away the ball five times, four in the first half, before Wilson and Anderson ignited the Tech offense in the third quarter.

Trailing 10-7, Tech punched [illegible] yards in six plays and sent [illegible] for the go-ahead touchdown with 4:20 elapsed in the quarter.

Five minutes later they capped a 60-yard drive with Wilson sneaking in from the one. A play earlier, Lee Lowery smashed across, fumbled and State recovered, but a penalty wiped out the miscue.

Jim Zanios ended the Tech scoring, hurdling in from the one after a bad pass from center prevented a State punt three plays earlier.

Washington State took a Tech fumble at the Raider 29 early in the contest and drove in for a touchdown on Clarence Williams' 13-yard scamper. [illegible] added a 28-yard field goal in the second period.

Missouri, Oklahoma Tie, 14-14

By NORMAN ROWLAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Missouri drove 87 yards for a fourth quarter touchdown Saturday that gave the Tigers a 14 - 14 tie with the Oklahoma Sooners and eliminated both teams from the Big Eight Conference title race.

The Missouri touchdown came with 3:45 left. Misouri Coach Dan Devine elected to go for a tieing conversion kick, rather than a possible win with a two-point conversion. Kicking epecialist Bill Bates did the job.

Missouri scored first on Charlie Brown's nine-yard run in the first quarter after Bill Powell recovered a loose Sooner hand-off at that point.

Oklahoma went ahead in the third quarter on halfback Tom Pannell's 35-yard touchdown pass to Ben Hart.

Oklahoma gave up an almost certain touchdown in the second quarter when fullback Jim Grisham fumbled and Missouri's Bob Ritter recovered on the Tiger three.

Roberts Sets Pass Mark In Ivy Game

By JOE RIECHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Roberts established a major passing record and equalled another as he threw three touchdowns and scored another in leading Columbia to a 33-13 victory over Penn in an Ivy League football game Saturday.

Playing his final home game of a brilliant college career, Roberts thrilled a Baker Bowl crowd of 9,363 by completing 14 of 19 passes for 175 yards. He also added 202 rushing for a total yardage gained of 377, a Columbia record.

Roberts, in leading Columbia to its fifth straight triumph over the Quakers, boosted his career completions to 305, the most by a college player in the East. Chuck Moloy of Holy Cross, in 1950-52, held the former mark of 304 completions.

The brilliant quarterback has amassed 3,610 yards in the air in his three years at Columbia.

Roberts also boosted his career touchdown passes to 29, matching the Columbia record set by Gene Rossides in 1945-48.

Roberts had a hand in all Columbia's scoring.

He had the 25 MPH wind to his back, but it still fell far short.

Air Force took over and threatened once more, thanks to a defensive holding penalty getting them off the hook on a punting play from deep in their own territory. With a minute remaining, Murphy threw three long passes trying to the TD but each fell incomplete. The one to Wargo on third down from the Wyoming 38 came the closest to breaking the tie, but it was slightly over-thrown.

This was the fourth tie in Coach Ben Martin's career at the Air Force. Others were in key games against Iowa in 1958 (13-13), Texas Christian in the Cotton Bowl that season (0-0), Army in '59 (13-13), and this one.

Ill Cassius Resting Comfortably, Liston 'Feels Bad'

Sonny Doesn't Plan To Make Interim Fight

By JACK HAND

BOSTON (AP) — Cassius Clay was in excellent shape and resting quietly in a hospital Saturday after an operation for a hernia forced postponement of his schedule heavyweight title defense Monday against ex-champ Sonny Liston.

With the champ out of action for six or seven months, the promoters planned vaguely for a new date in Boston next April or May. They estimated they lost $75,000 and the closed TV circuit sponsors figured their red ink "bath" at between $100,000 and $400,000.

Liston, who lost the most of all—a chance to win back the title he lost last Feb. 25 when he sat in his corner at Miami Beach with an injured left shoulder—arranged to return to Denver almost immediately.

"I feel very bad," said Liston at a news conference. "I was ready to go. If it had to happen, I wish it happened earlier instead of waiting until all the hard work was over."

Liston said he didn't think the postponement would have any bad effect on him. He also said he didn't think he would try to take another fight while waiting for Clay to recover.

"No," he said in answer to a question. "I don't plan to visit Clay in the hospital."

Bill Faversham, who manages Clay for a Louisville sponsoring group, said he personally was willing to waive a clause in the contract and permit Liston to take a tuneup bout if he wanted.

"If he couldn't win it easily, he shouldn't be in there anyway," said Faversham.

Both Faversham and Angelo Dundee, the champ's trainer, visited Clay Saturday morning. They reported him in fine spirits.

"Most of the time we were there he was worrying about how his camp people would get home," said Faversham. "He was still under sedation but he was clearly able to appreciate the fact that it was a good thing the injury took place last night instead of in the ring."

"He is resigned to the fact that he won't fight for a while, but is quite satisfied that he is on the way to recovery from this acute condition."

Faversham, said that the same three cooks who always work with Clay had prepared the dinner he ate Friday night.

After the meal, Cassius complained of pains and became nauseated. He was taken to the hospital and underwent an operation late in the evening for an incarcerated hernia.

"He had a very simple diet," said Faversham. "Steak, baked potato, tossed salad. All the food was prepared in his own private kitchen."

Dr. Nathan Shapiro, examing physician for the Massachusetts Boxing Commission who checked Clay at the hospital before the operation, said such hernia attacks happen suddenly about 20 per cent of the time.

Dr. Shapiro had examined Clay thoroughly Monday and said he found absolutely no traces of any hernia then.

"The food had absolutely nothing to do with it," said Dr. Shapiro. "He had a hernia. The food could not have caused a hernia. Clay had a herniated muscle in the right groin."

The operation was performed by Dr. William McDermott, a Harvard surgeon.

Dr. Shapiro said Clay should be able to fight within five or six months. Another doctor put the date at seven months.

"This should not incapacitate Clay in any way," said Dr. Shapiro. "He should be stronger and better than ever when he has recovered."

Liston said he planned to continue training but would not fight until a new date had been set.

Asked how he felt when he heard the news, Sonny said, "I guess like a father waiting for his first child. I was pacing the floor."

Bill Cherry, attorney for Inter-Continental Sports, Inc., the promoters, said the contract included a six-month disability clause covering illness or injury of either Clay or Liston.

"The only way out of the contract would be for Clay to be flat on his back in the hospital for six months," Cherry said.

Harold Conrad, the publicity director, said the advance sale totalled $275,000 for Boston Garden and box office officials estimated a gate of $400,000.

Frederic Brooks, head of the closed circuit TV firm, Sportsvision, said his firm had no insurance on the fight. He said losses were "between $100,000 and $400,000" but necessarily vague because of doubt about payments due to the telephone company.

"There was no insurance," said Brooks. "That would be a question of rate. Unfortunately Liston had forced postponements of a fight with Floyd Patterson, scheduled for Miami, due to a knee injury and had trouble with his shoulder against Clay in their first fight last February. I suppose that does not make him a desirable risk."

A LONG WALK HOME — Sharply dressed Sonny Liston walked from his training camp Saturday with Mrs. Liston for a sightseeing trip in the Plymouth, Mass., area. Liston's heavyweight title bout with champion Cassius Clay, set for Monday, was postponed when Clay underwent a hernia operation Friday night. Liston planned to return to Denver Saturday.

HOME GROWN FRESHMEN

UNIVERSITY PARK (AP) — Penn State's freshman football team of 25 members includes only four players from out of the state.

They are tackles Bill Lenkaitis of Youngstown, Ohio; Mike McBath of Woodbury, N.J., and Frank Linski of Newark, N.J., and Russ Minkowitz, a guard from Canton, Mass.

Tackle Rich Buzin of Youngstown, Ohio was sidelined with an injury.

CC Wins First Game; Fight Victor Still Undetermined

By DICK FOSTER

Colorado College scratched its first victory onto the 1964 football ledger Saturday at Washburn Field, downing Colorado School of Mines, 13-7, in a real "blood and guts" performance.

Most of the blood and guts, although spilled on the football field, was not that of the gridders, but of the spectators of the ancient rivalry. Opposing stands carried on periodical scuffs throughout the contest, and turned the whole place into one big brawl at halftime.

Some of that rivalry did carry into the game itself. Tiger quarterback Mike Denson and tackle Dave Hayes were ejected for taking indecent liberties with the limbs of some Mines gridders.

The Tigers rolled up a sizeable edge, statistic-wise, and showed some of the best defense to date. Mines was able to get 106 total yards, 48 by the ground and 58 in the air.

Most of the visitors' yardage was made in the Mines only sustained drive of the afternoon, that being a second half drive originating at the Golden school's 28 and going for their lone score.

Offensively, the locals piled up 279 yards. 186 of that figure came on the ground and of that, the major chunk of 102 yards was compiled by the afternoon workhorse of the Tigers, fullback Ray Jones. Jones did all the scoring for the Bengals also.

The 68th meeting of the squads started at an even back forth pace, both having moving troubles offensively. But Colorado College got the first big break on a Mine fumble at the latter team's 33.

From there Jones, with the aid of a Mine penalty, carried across in three plays for the Tiger talley, with 3:45 left in the first period.

About that time, the first riot broke out. Some Bengal rooters made off with a megaphone belonging to the Mines, and made for the CC stands.

Also moving towards the CC stands was a large band of Mines men. The game had to be stopped while the field was overrun with them. An attempt at kidnapping a Tiger cheerleader failed, and after much swinging and bone-breaking, the Mines retired with their megaphone.

As far as grid action went, the Mines had a break in the second quarter on a Tiger fumble deep in CC territory. The Mines moved from CC's 18 to the five in six plays, but when the drive ended, they were back on the Tiger ten. CC defense nailed 38 yards in losses on the visitors, most of it at crucial times.

The fans probably dug up more turf than the gridders during that halftime "thing" that took place. When the gun sounded, both bleachers poured onto the field, and fists flew. Fighting was spread over the whole field, and it was easy to see people getting their heads smashed by some pretty lethal blows. One report had it that a CC hockey man will not see action for a while — he now has a broken nose.

Scoring Summary

Score by Quarters

CC	6	0	0	7	—	13
Mines	0	7	0	0	—	7

CC — Jones 1 yd. run. (kick failed.)
Mines — Robbins, 11 yd. pass from Gantner. (Bennot kicked.)
CC — Jones 21 yd. run. (Williams kicked.)

Both sides regrouped their ranks and clashed in one big mass of mutilation in the center of the grid, and there were a lot of groans coming from that area.

The Orediggers' best effort, and their only real drive of the afternoon came with the second half kickoff. Starting from their own 28 yard line, the Miners went on short runs and aerials by Gary Gantner.

It took five minutes for Mines to finish the march, as Jim Robbins carried a Gartner pass over from the 11. Stuart Bennett added the extra point.

Mines rallied for a brief period immediately after the touchdown, and went across two minutes later, with Robbins hauling down a 41 yard Gantner pass, but a holding penalty wiped that score out.

Jones put the Tigers in front in the early fourth period with a 21 yard run around left end. It ended a drive that the locals started on their own 27. Jones again was the chief instrument, gaining 36 of the 73 yards. Roger Williams kicked the extra point.

Mines tried some last ditch efforts, but it was strictly defense for both squads in the closing minutes, and neither team went far beyond midfield in the remainder of the contest.

All was not lost for Mines though. They went home with the southern goalpost of Washburn Field.

Longhorns Gore Way to Oranges

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Marvin Kristynik ran and passed Texas to a 28-13 victory over Texas Christian and marched the Longhorns into the Orange Bowl Saturday.

Fifth-ranked Texas, the 1963 national champion, thus will be playing in its 14th bowl game in 21 years.

Texas probably will meet undefeated, untied Alabama, the nation's No. 2 team, at Miami — the second time the Longhorns have met the team of Bear Bryant in a bowl game. They played a 3-3 tie in the 1960 Bluebonnet Bowl.

Attendance 34,529.

The Longhorns, with Kristynik and fullback Harold Philipp tearing the Texas Christian defense to bits, ran their record to 8-1 and hung onto second place in the Southwest Conference.

Kristynik and Philipp each gained 100 yards or more.

Texas still has Texas A&M to play and could tie for the conference title should Arkansas lose its final game to Texas Tech next week.

Representatives of both the Orange and Sugar Bowls were here to look over Texas.

The fifth-ranked Longhorns accepted the Orange Bowl bid immediately after their victory. Alabama reportedly has accepted an invitation but a Southeast Conference rules forbids a public announcement until the end of the season.

Kristynik figured in all the Texas touchdowns against TCU and scored two of them, while Philipp got the other two.

David Conway converted after each and ran his record for the season to 21 extra points.

The Longhorns threw away other opportunities to score with a pass interception and two fumbles.

Baylor Slips By Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Baylor's Bears all but scrapped their touted passing attack, then ran over Kentucky 17-15 Saturday in an intersectional football game.

Led by fullback Tom Davies, the Bears struck for two touchdowns, using only one pass in each drive.

Baylor quarterback Terry Southall threw only 11 passes, completing 6 for 64 yards. The Bears' Roger Marshall hit 2 of 20 for 31 yards.

Kentucky, too, used less passing than was expected. The Wildcats moved only 120 yards in the air, more than one-third of it in a fourth-period touchdown drive.

A GAME FOR DAMES

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Jerry Walke is the new assistant dean of men at Capital University, but one of his first ventures had to do with coeds. Walke, who coached at Ohio University and Muskingum, explained football to the girls during a special "The Game to a Dame" night on the east side Columbus campus.

Utah Defense Bucks Bruins

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Ron Coleman dashed for two fourth period touchdowns and a sensational Utah defense lived up to its advance billing Saturday as the Redskin football team stopped California 14-0.

The Ute defense, which hasn't been scored on in 22 straight quarters, stopped Cal passer Craig Morton's streak of tossing at least one touchdown per game at 16.

Morton completed 22 of 37 for 222 yards, but two interceptions stopped Bear drives.

Utah, now 7-2, started their initial touchdown drive late in the third period.

Minnesota Stops Purdue Hopes for Rose Bowl Trip

By LEW FERGUSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — John Hankinson, passing with precision, fired Minnesota to a 14-7 victory over Purdue Saturday to virtually wipe out all hope the Boilermakers harbored for making their first Rose Bowl trip.

Hankinson set two Gopher season passing records, with eight completions in 15 attempts for 159 yards and two touchdowns.

His 43-yard touchdown pass to Kent Kramer came one minute after Purdue had tied the score 7-7 in the battle of hard-knocking Big Ten foes.

Earlier, Hankinson passed 31 yards to Ken Last for the other Gopher score.

The defeat dropped Purdue's Big Ten record to 4-2 and left the Boilermakers trailing Ohio State, now 5-0, by 1½ games with one to play. Minnesota also is 4-2 in the Big Ten.

Purdue quarterback Bob Griese was unable to get his passes clicking with star receiver Bob Hadrick out with an injury. The Boilermakers scored late in the third quarter after Griese hit Sam Longmire on a 49-yard pass. Randy Minniear punched over from the Gopher one.

Purdue then kicked off, Minnesota taking the ball at its 27. Hankinson hit Last for 30 yards, then tossed the winning aerial to Kramer, who caught the ball at the 25 and raced in.

Hankinson brought his Gopher record-passing total for the season to 79 completions in 147 attempts for 996 yards.

Hankinson bettered the two Minnesota records in the first quarter when he completed two aerials for 37 yards to Last. Those completions wiped out Duane Blaska's 1962 school marks of 71 completions in a season for 862 yards.

The Gopher quarterback hit only one other toss in the first half, the 31-yard touchdown strike to Last.

Rhome-Twilley Combo Set Nine New Records

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Jerry Rhome, Howard Twilley and Tulsa blasted nine football records and North Texas State 47-0 in a Missouri Valley Conference game Saturday.

With Sugar Bowl scouts watching, Tulsa's defense throttled the Eagles while Rhome tossed six more records aside. He's broken nearly every individual passing mark now.

Rhome completed 17 of 23 passes for 68 yards and four touchdowns and ran for another 21 yards. That gave him season records for completions, 185; touchdown passes, 27; yards passing, 2,320; and total offense, 2,541.

It also gave him a record 134 completions without an interception and a career passing mark of 4,932 yards.

Twilley caught six passes for 84 yards and two touchdowns to set a national receiving mark for one season of 76 catches. He also booted five conversions for a total of 17 points in this game and 92 for the season, in which he stands to become the first end ever to lead college scoring.

Rhome's passes also gave Tulsa team season records for most touchdown passes, 30, and most completions, 202.

Glenn Dobbs III, son of the Tulsa coach, came in to direct Tulsa's last scoring drive.

Snow Muddies BYU Triumph

By KAY HUFF

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Sophomore John Ogden scored four touchdowns as Brigham Young University defeated Western Michigan 43-8 Saturday.

A light snow fell during the game, leaving a wet and muddy field that caused both teams to slip and fumble often.

Ogden's first touchdown culminated a 65-yard drive that started when Brigham Young took the opening kickoff.

He scored again in the second, third and fourth quarters, all touchdown on the first play of drives.

Western Michigan got its lone touchdown on the ifrst play of the second half. John Klein took the kickoff and ran 97 yards down the sidelines to the end zone. The Broncos' Bob Radlinski and Gary Crain hooked up on a pass for the two-point conversion.

Adams State Masters Highlands

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP) — Ron Wieser scored both touchdowns for Adams State College Saturday as the Indians continued their mastery of New Mexico Highlands University with a 14-7 victory in the annual Spud Bowl football game.

Wieser took a 39-yard pass from Jim Paronto for the first touchdown, in the second quarter, and ran 10 yards in the next period for the other score.

For Highlands, the only touchdown came in the fourth quarter on a seven yard pass from John Williams to Rosie Hunter. The touchdown was set up by a fumble on the Adams State five-yard line.

The teams played in 42-degree weather with the wind blowing in gusts up to 29 miles an hour. Adams State, which has a 6-3-0 record for the seasn, has beaten Highlands in their last six meetings. Highlands' season record is 4-4.

Razorbacks Rap SMU, Gain Cotton Bowl Berth

Associated Press Sports Writer

Fayetteville, Ark. (AP) — Third-ranked Arkansas vaulted into a Cotton Bowl berth and assured itself of a tie for the Southwest Conference title by pulverizing Southern Methodist University 44-0 Saturday.

The Razorbacks, with a 9-0 record, can win the conference title outright and finish an unbeaten season by beating Texas Tech in Lubbock, Tex., next Saturday.

Arkansas powered 65, 50 and 50 yards with steamroller precision for first half touchdowns. The Razorbacks defense, led by Ronnie Caveness, muffled the outmanned Mustangs with 55 yards total offense in the first two quarters as Arkansas rolled up 215 yards.

SMU crossed the 50 on its first and last possessions but played the rest of its offense in Mustang territory.

Defense spectaculars led to Arkansas' second half points with substitutes seeing most of the action for the Razorbacks.

Wingback Jim Lindsey got Arkansas' first two scores on a four-yard pass reception and an eight-yard run. Tailback Bob Burnett plunged a yard for the third touchdown.

SMU stalled a 69-yard drive inside the Mustang 10 but Tommy McKnelly booted a 23-yard field goal for a 24-0 lead.

Tackle Jim Williams blocked an SMU punt and end Bobby Crockett covered it in the end zone for another Arkansas touchdown.

Howe Sets Goal Score Record

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens whipped Detroit 4-2 Saturday night, despite a record-breaking goal by Gordie Howe, and tied the Red Wings for first place in the National Hockey League.

Each club now has 16 points in the tight NHL race.

Another Detroit veteran, Ted Lindsay, scored the Wings' other goal. It was his first since coming back after a four-year retirement.

After Howe stole the puck from Montreal rookie Claude Larose and beat goalie Charley Hodge from close range, the Canadiens struck for three straight goals. Dave Balon tied the score at 5:42 of the first period and Larose put the Canadiens ahead at the 12:00 mark.

Bobby Rousseau and Lindsay traded goals before the period ended and Montreal added an insurance marker late in the second period on Jean Beliveau's power-play goal.

Hoge, returning to the nets after a one-game absence, stopped 28 Detroit shots, including 15 in the final period. Roger Crozier, Detroit's rookie goaltender, turned away 29 Montreal bids.

Balon's third goal came after passes from Ralph Backstrom and Jean Guy Talbot. Rousseau, who assisted on Larose's fourth goal, scored his third on feeds from Claude Provist and Ted Harris.

Lindsay, whose goal was his 366th in regular-season play, was set up by Parker MacDonald.

Beliveau, the NHL's most valuable player last season, netted his third goal at 16:33 of the second period, 27 seconds after Detroit defenseman Gary Bergman was penalized. Provost and Gilles Tremblay drew assists.

Howe, whose record includes regular-season and playoff games, is in his 19th NHL season.

Shadwell Leads Florence's 21 - 12 Victory

FLORENCE — Dick Shadwell scored all three of Florence's touchdowns and Dave Christelli added three extra point kicks as the Huskies advanced in the state Class AA football playoffs, clipping Del Norte, 21-12.

Shadwell tallied in the first period on runs of 52 and 8 yards. He scored the clinching TD in the final quarter on a 68-yard scamper.

Del Norte scored in the third period on Rudy Vigil's seven-yard sweep, and in the fourth on a two-yard plunge by fullback Jim Cook.

Florence will play the winner of Saturday's Fruita-Rangely game in the semifinals Saturday. Fruita has scored 310 points and allowed 25 in nine games this year. Fullback Don Paris has tallied 22 TDs.

NM Blasts CSU, 42-0, In Wind

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico Lobos overwhelmed Colorado State University 42-0 in a wind-blowen homecoming football game Saturday.

The Lobos unleashed a wide-open attack, gaining 438 yards in total offense, behind the passing and running of junior quarterback Stan Quintana, which boosted New Mexico's season record to 7 - 20.

Quintana's block got tailback Joe Harris loose for New Mexico's first touchdown. He set up the third TD with a 26-yard pass and capped his performance with an 80-yard scoring sprint. He also passed to end Gary Plumlee for a two-point conversion.

The chilly desert wind, gusting to 28 miles per hour, made a wind tunnel out of University Stadium and kept the visiting Rams in a hole after the opening period. Ram Jack Cory's 10-yard punt into the wind at the start of the second period opened the gates for New Mexico. On the next play, behind a crunching block by Quintana, Harris skirted left end and rambled 33 yards for the score.

After the next Ram series, Cory punted 11 yards to his own 39. With the help of a 34-yard pass interference call, the Lobos scored with tailback Carl Bradford sweeping the left side from the three.

Another short punt by Cory, following the ensuing kickoff, set up the third UNM touchdown. Fullback Chuck Kelly plunged in for the score on the next play.

In the second half, fullback Steve Leigon scored on a two-yard dive. Quintana ran through the Rams on his 80-yard rollout and sophomore tailback Albert O'Neal picked off a Bob Wolfe pass and returned it 46 yards for the closing tally.

Data Processing Fine for Betting

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Football parlay cards apparently designed to be fed through an electronic data processing machine for quick checking were seized by Internal Revenue Service agents here Friday.

Raymon Enos, 36, and Gary Ethridge, 28, were arrested at a large glass plant where they worked and charged with failure to have $50 wagering stamps.

IRS agent W. R. Gray said the cards were designed so that bettors punched out small holes opposite the teams they picked rather than marking them. The cards then could be fed through a data processing machine, he said.

Pitt Thrashes Army; Stichweh Breaks Mark

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Rollie Stichweh broke the Army one-season total offense scoring record Saturday but rival quarterback Fred Mazurek made his efforts show on the scoreboard as he guided Pittsburgh to a 24-8 victory in the Cadets' final home game of the season.

Mazurek, who accounted for 128 yards passing and running compared to Stichweh's 153, passed for one Pitt touchdown and gained important yardage in paving the way for the others as the Panthers won their third of the season.

Stichweh's 50 yards by passing and 103 running gave him a one-year total of 1,354 yards, with the important game against Navy still to come. Joe Caldwell set the old Army record of 1,258 yards in 1959.

Pitt took a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on James Jones' 26-yard field goal. The Panthers got their first touchdown in the second period after John Seymour fumbled a lateral from Stichweh. Bernard Laquinta recovered on the Army 40. Mazurek passed 32 yards to Eric Crabtree, then Barry McKnight went over from the six.

Pitt added two more touchdowns in the third quarter.

The Cadets punted out to the 35 and three plays later Mazurek pitched a 30-yard pass to Crabtree.

Army fumbled a kickoff and Pitt recovered on the Cadet 18. In four plays Crabtree went over from the two.

Sadair Wins By Ten at Cherry Hill

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Sadair, a fleet son of an Argentine sire, opened the throttle wide one-quarter mile from the finish line Saturday and went on to a 10-length triumph and a track record performance in the $301,700 Garden State Stakes.

The son of Petare-Blue Missy, already winner of the Arlington-Washington Futurity in taking the world's richest race, carried the silks of Mrs. Mary B. Hecht's North Forty Stable of High Falls, N.Y. over the 1 1-16 miles in 1:41. The time clipped two-fifths of a second off the track record.

Under Manuel Ycaza's well-timed ride, Sadair came from out of the pack rounding the far turn and make a farce of the 12th running of the rich event for 2-year-olds.

Michael Ford's Royal Gunner was second, one-half length in front of Mrs. Ben Cohen's Hail To All. George D. Widener's Eurasian closed fast for fourth, another 2½ length back, in the field of 10.

Sadair, choice of the crowd of 42,024, paid $7.60, $3.40 and $2.40. Royal Gunner returned $3.60 and $2.80 and Hail To All paid $4.20.

Stanford Dumps Beavers

Oregon State-Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Stanford's Indians snapped Oregon State's seven-game winning streak and dimmed the Beavers' Rose Bowl chances Saturday with a 16-7 Pacific Athletic Conference upset.

The Indians' sophomore quarterback Dave Lewis started his first game and his passing, plus the running of Ray Handley, proved the major factors in beating the favored Beavers.

All three Stanford scores came after breaks provided by Oregon State mistakes.

The loss put the OSU conference record at 2-1 and 7-2 overall as Stanford treated the Beavers the same as they did two weeks ago in handling Oregon its only loss so far.

Ohio State Trounces Northwestern, 10-0

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State took a giant stride toward the Western Conference championship and a Rose Bowl bid Saturday as it won its fifth straight in the conference by 10-0 victory over Northwestern.

The game was a dice-players' dream as the seventh-ranked Ohioans parlayed Willard Sander's seventh touchdown and Bob Funk's seventh field goal into their seventh victory of the season.

Sander's score came in the first period on a five-yard plunge ending a 38-yard 11-play drive, and Funk's three-pointer came in the second session. The final half was the most sensational of the game, but produced no scoring.

Defensive halfback Mike Buckner came up with Northwestern's big play as he intercepted a Don Unverferth pass on his six and raced 71 yards to Ohio's 23, where Unverferth caught him. The long run came to naught, however, as Ohio took the ball on downs on the six.

In the final minute Northwestern's defense returned the compliment and stopped Ohio on the six-inch line after Tom Bugel had intercepted a Dave Milam pass and chased it 18 yards back to the 10.

Ohio State, deflated 27-0 by Penn State a week ago after six straight victories, was a different team. The Bucks broke out a new "I" formation and did a lot of gambling. On the drive leading to Sander's touchdown, the Bucks went into punt formation needing five yards for a first down, but passed to blocker Doug Drenik, who raced six yards to keep the assault going.

Generally, Coach Woody Hayes calls for a punt if he only needs inches on fourth down.

The victory, before a crowd of 83,525, dropped Northwestern to 3-6 over-all and 2-5 in the league.

Princeton Runs Past Yale, 35-14

By LOU BLACK
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Princeton's undefeated football team led by Cosmo Iacavazi capitalized on two big breaks to trounce Yale 35-14 and capture the Ivy League title Saturday.

The season's largest Ivy crowd of 60,173 saw Iacavazi score the Tigers' final two touchdowns on springs of 39 and 53 yards and wrap up what had been a thriller most of the way.

Tied at 14-14 at halftime, Princeton capitalized on a blocked kick to go ahead 21-14 in the third period and stretched it to 28-14 after pouncing on a fumble.

It was the fumble that broke the game wide open for the speedy Tigers. It set the stage for Cosmo's 39-yard run and moments later, while Princeton had Yale groggy, he raced 53 yards to leave no doubt about the outcome.

But even in defeat Yale fullback Chuck Mercein was an outstanding performer all afternoon in the colorful 87th battle between the ancient rivals. Yale leads 42-35 in the series. There have been 10 ties.

Princeton's record is 8-0 overall and 6-0 Ivy. A year ago Princeton shared the Ivy title with Dartmouth.

The defeat was Yale's first in eight games but the Bulldogs were tied by Columbia. The victory gave Princeton the Big Three crown also. The tigers blanked Harvard 16-0 last week.

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska's pint-sized fullback, Frank Solich, scored a go-ahead touchdown on an 89-yard second quarter kickoff return Saturday and the fourth-ranked Cornhuskers protected the margin for a 27-14 Big Eight football victory over Oklahoma State.

Attendance 49,500.

The tally, coupled with a 34-yard touchdown later in the same period on a Bob Churchich pass to Harry Wilson, gave Nebraska a 21-7 halftime lead, which OSU reduced by a touchdown in the third period before yielding.

The victory clinched at least a share of the loop crown for unbeaten Nebraska and ran the nation's longest major college victory string to 16 games.

Currently 9-0 for the year and 6-0 in the conference, the Huskers need only to conquer Oklahoma next week to round out their first all victorious season since 1915.

Scouts from Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowls were in the record crowd of 49,500.

A 92-yard touchdown drive made good on a one-yard run by Kent McCloughan got Nebraska off to a 7-0 first quarter lead. Oklahoma State countered with a 67-yard drive cashed in by quarterback Glenn Baxter on a one-yard plunge early in the second quarter.

Oregon Slips by Indians

Associated Press Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Oregon came from 14 points behind at halftime and beat Indiana 29-21 Saturday on a great passing and running performance by Bob Berry.

Indiana's previously leaky pass defense was ready for Berry and the Hoosier linemen kept him scrambling. However, he picked his receivers with precision and ran for good gains when they were too well covered.

Berry was thrown out of the game for slugging midway in the fourth period. He had finished his job by then. It included throwing two touchdown passes and a conversion pass and running over one touchdown.

Berry's show overshadowed a big day by fullback Tom Nowatzke of Indiana, who set Hoosier scoring records for game and season in the first half by plunging for three touchdowns and kicking three extra points. His season total reached 67 points, breaking his own mark of 58.

Bart Moore of Indiana intercepted Berry's second pass and started the Hoosiers on their way to their first touchdown. Oregon tied the score on a 17-yard pass from Berry to Chuck Miller, but Nowatzke and Indiana dominated the second quarter and took a 21-7 lead.

Oregon opened the second half with an on-side kick, recovered by its Les Palm, and moved 42 yards in seven plays to score. Berry passed to Dennis Keller for the tally.

Attendance 53,505.

The victory was the Tide's ninth straight without a loss this season and it came so easily that a record crowd of 53,505 Tech partisans sat in dead silence most of the time.
lence most of the time.

The victory came on the arm of quarterback Joe Namath and offensive direction of alternate signal caller Steve Sloan. Namath, who played only when Alabama needed the big yardage, threw for one touchdown and set up another on a 49-yard pass.

This was the final meeting between the two Southern gridiron powers and the Crimson Tide let it be known from the kickoff that it was ready.

The Crimson Tide got things rolling by recovering a Bruce Fischer fumble on the 50-yard line with 1:45 to go in the first half. Namath passed to David Ray, who went to the Tech one before being brought down.

With 1:18 to go, Steve Bowman punched it over from the one and Ray added the extra point to make it 7-0.

Alabama showed it was playing this one for keeps by trying an offside kick which Tech's Tom Ballard fumbled and the Tide's Creed Kilmer recovered On the next play, Namath hit Ray Ogden on a 45-yard pass to give the Tide first and goal on the Tech five.

Georgia Tech scored its only touchdown with 21 seconds lef. to play when quarterback Jerry Priestley hit Giles Smith on a five-yard touchdown play.

Grabowski Breaks Big 10 Grange's Marks in Victory

Ill—Grabowski 3 run (Dorr run)
Attendance 55,077.

Grabowski carried 33 times for 239 yards and scored two touchdowns on runs of 27 and two yards. It was the best individual game ball-carrying effort since Minnesota's Bill Daley set a conference record with 216 yards in 1943.

The 211-pound Grabowski also bettered Grange's total of 212 yards in the Galloping Ghost's legendary performance against Michigan in 1924.

In Illinois' four-touchdown drive, Grabowski turned in these remarkable efforts:

—Carried four times for 55 yards in an 80-yard Illini march, capped by Fred Custardo's one-yard scoring sneak.

—In the fourth quarter, carried five times for 57 yards, sparking an 80-yard drive which halfback Tony Parola climaxed with a two —And, still in the fourth quarter, swept the Illini to the three-yard line with 53 yards on four rushes and a pass reception and then banged over for a touchdown and the final 29-0 Illini margin.

Wisconsin wasted two scoring chances in the third period, yielding on downs at the Illini eight and having a Harold Brandt pass intercepted by George Donnelly in the end zone from the Illini 12.

CHICAGO (AP) — The $54,000 World's Invitational Match Game Bowling Championship Tournament, drawing a 160-man and 80-woman field from 35 states, Australia, Canada and Japan, opens a 10-day run next Friday.

The men's champion gets $7,500 and $4,000 goes to the winning woman.

The field was selected on basis of established championship ability.

The men will bowl five games daily for four days, with the field then trimmed to 80 based on total pinfall. The women also will bowl five games daily for four days, trimming the field to 32 for eight more games Nov. 24. The high 15, by pinfall in 28 games, join Mrs. Ladewig in the finals. The women bowl three-game matches in their finals.

Last year St. John set 12 tourney records and tied two more aleraging 226.94 pins, including one 300 game and 21 games over 250 n a 100-game span.

Back Runs Kick For 128 Yards

OTTAWA (AP) — Ottawa half back Gene Gaines ran a kickoff back for a record 128 yards Saturday in the opener of the Eastern Football Conference playoff series between the Rough Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Gaines, a defensive back from the University of California, took the ball 18 yards in his end zone and cut left behind masterful blocking.

Gaines, obviously not used to the 100 yard dash, was staggering wiwen he crossed the Hamil ing when he crossed the Hamilton goal. The gridiron in Canada is 110 yards in length.

League statisticians said the run was a Canadian record for a kickoff return.

Four Pro Teams Can Move Closer to Division Titles

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore and Cleveland in the National League and Buffalo and San Diego in the American League can take huge steps toward wrapping up divisional titles Sunday in an 11-game pro football schedule.

The runaway Colts, (8-1) winners of eight straight since opening day, get a chance to square accounts with their lone tormentors, the Minnesota Vikings (5-4) in a big game at Baltimore

Cleveland, (7-1-1) leading the NFL's Eastern Conference by two games, faces a tough hurdle in its old jinx club, the Detroit Lions (5-3-1), in an inter-conference battle The Lions never have lost a regular season game to the Browns

If the Browns falter, St. Louis (5-3-1) could move up closer by beating New York (2-6-1) in their rematch at St. Louis and Dallas (4-4-1) could close in by defeating Philadelphia (4-5) in Any stumble by the Colts would be welcomed by the Lions and Los Angeles Rams (5-3-1), tied for second in the West. The Rams play the slumping defending champion Chicago Bears (2-7) in Los Angeles. Green Bay (5-4) gets a shot at the 49ers (2-7) in San Francisco. Washington and Pittsburgh, each with 3-6 records, play at Pittsburgh.

Buffalo (9-0) puts pro football's only unbeaten record on the line at home against the Boston Patriots (6-2-1), the second place team in the AFL's Eastern Division. Buffalo is all steamed up about the big game. The Bills still are smarting from last year's beating by the Pats in the playoff for the Eastern title

San Diego (6-2-1) can scuttle Kansas City's ambitions by beating the Chiefs (4-4) at Kansas City. The Chargers hold a 6-2 edge over Hank Stram's men and are riding a five-game winning streak.

The New York Jets (4-3-1), hoping to close ground on the Bills and Patriots, will be at Denver (1-8) and Houston (2-7) plays at Oakland (1-7-1), rounding out the schedule

Baltimore will be without Raymond Berry, the prime target for Johnny Unitas' passes in their rematch with the Vikings who beat them 34-24 on opening day The Vikings staged four long touchdown marches in that game and rolled up a total of 488 yards. Linebacker Bill Jobko is lost to Minnesota for the year with a broken arm.

Cleveland's Jim Brown may find the Lions more vulnerable than usual because of the loss of Joe Schmidt, the veteran linebacker who suffered a shoulder dislocation last Sunday. Dennis Gaubatz will take his place.

The Cards may be without Joe Childress and Bob DeMarco but the Giants have lost John LoVetere, Del Shofner and Dick Pesonen since they thumped the Cards 34-17 two weeks ago. Y. A. Tittle and the Giants had their best day of the season, picking on the Cards' defense and smothering Charley Johnson in their first meeting.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry thinks his Cowboys still have a shot at the title and figures a 9-4-1 record can win it. That means he must win them all, including Sunday's battle with the Eagles. Jerry Tubbs is still out for Dallas. The Eagles have lost Red Mack but get back Dave Lloyd, their middle linebacker.

Despite Chicago's earlier 38-17 victory over Los Angeles the Rams are favored at the Coliseum. The Bears have lost four straight and the Rams have won three of their last four Dick Bass is doubtful for Los Angeles and Chicago expects to get Doug Atkins back in action.

Green Bay is healthy but the crippled 49ers have been hit with new injuries to Mike Dowdle and Abe Woodson. The game will be seen in some parts of the country as the second half of a television (CBS) doubleheader. Green Bay won earlier 24-14.

Washington invades Pittsburgh with everybody in shape except reserve linbacker Rod Breedlove, while the Steelers will be without tight end Jim Kelly.

Buffalo hopes Elbert Dubenion, the Bills' fleet flanker, will be ready to cut loose with his old speed against the Patriots. The sellout crowd of 40,000 plus may see a field goal duel between Pete Gogolak and Gino Cappelletti.

Paul Lowe is on San Diego's doubtful list because of a leg muscle tear, but the other big guns are ready. Len Dawson has thrown 10 touchdown passes for the Chiefs in the last two games.

Coach Mac Speedie counts on getting Lionel Taylor back in action for the game with the Jets who beat them 30-6 in early season. The Jets expect rookie Matt Snell to pick up yardage in his battle for the league rushing title.

George Blanda and Cotton Davidson will be firing passes at Oakland in the second meeting of the Oilers and Raiders. Houston won the first time 42-28.

Staubach completed 21 of 30 for 217 yards and ran 17 times for 91 yards.

On four occasions he took the Middies into touchdown position on drives where they failed to score and had to call on Fred Marlin for field goal attempts. Marlin made good on two tries of 21 and 28 yards.

Navy completely dominated the first half, allowing Duke only two first downs. But the Blue Devils scored after a pass interception which Mike Shasby returned to the Navy 26 midway in the first quarter.

Duke drove 91 yards for a second score to cut the Navy lead to 20-14. On Scotty Glacken's last two pass attempts in the drive he hit Jim Scott for 35 yards and Dave Dunaway for 18 and the score.

It was the final home appearance for Staubach and as he trotted from the field he was given a standing ovation by the crowd of 28,000.

Spies Looking for Secrets Of Yankee Cage Power

By W. B. RAGSDALE Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of foreign agents fans out across the nation Sunday in an effort to solve a U.S. secret — one that keeps the United States in possession of the Olympic gold medal for basketball.

The agents are coaches from Tunisia, Greece, United Arab Republic, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, Trinidad, Libya, Argentina and Romania.

Quite frankly, they think basketball, as played by U.S. Olympic teams and the professionals who have toured their countries, is pretty wonderful.

For example, even in uncertain English the praise comes out clearly when V. Popescu, coach of the Romanian national team, talks about the professional group headed by Boston Celtic Coach Arnold (Red) Auerbach which toured Iron Curtain nations and the Near East last spring.

"It was good propaganda for basketball," he said. "They play very spectacular. The technique is very, very good."

In addition to working with the coaches and teams at Newton High School in Newton, Mass., and the University of California in Los Angeles, Popescu will spend eight days starting Tuesday travelling with the champion Celtics.

He will be a special guestof Auerbach, who has spent a lot of time promoting basketball in foreign lands.

Another visitor, Vladimir Heger, top basketball coach in Czechoslovakia, will spend his college period at Boston College under the tutelage of Coach Bob Cousy, the one-time backcourt wizard of the Celtics.

The exchange program is sponsored by the State Department program but administered by a private group, sports national.

The program for the basketball coaches is an 86-day affair, starting in Washington.

Sunday, the coaches travel to the towns where they will spend two weeks as guests of high school coaches. Then they move on to colleges.

In January, they will gather — three to a city — in Los Angeles, St. Louis and New York to observe the professional teams in those cities and to study the various recreational basketball programs.

On Jan. 25, they go to Bartlesville, Okla., where the Phillips Oilers, long a top team in Amateur Athletic Union compition, will sponsor a four-day clinic.

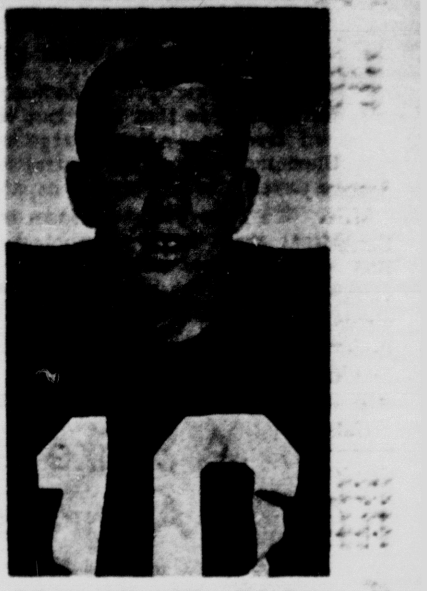
Basketball is the only purely American sport to be placed on the Olympic agenda. It is one of the most popular in Europe.

Phaedon Matheou, coach of the Greek Olympic civilian and military basketball teams and an Olympic competitor himself both as a rower and basketball player, said at a news conference that basketball ranks after soccer and track and field among European sports.

The sport was brought to Greece by the 6th Fleet after World War II. Matheou said 15,000 people turned out last spring at the Olympic Stadium in Athens for the finals of the Balkan basketball games, a competition among Greece, Turkey, Bulgaria, Romania and Yugoslavia.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants were the only major league team that failed to sweep a doubleheader in 1963.



BEAR LEADER—Ed Pittock, 6-1, 200-pound quarterback from Manitou Springs, was among the leaders in three departments this fall for the Colorado State College Bears. Pittock scored seven touchdowns to lead the conference in scoring. In the rushing department, Pittock finished third with 332 yards for a 3.6 yard average. Ed ranked second in total offense for the Bears with 332 yards rushing and 231 yards passing for 563 total yards. A distributive education major, Pittock played his best game of the season November 7 against Southern Colorado when he rushed for 69 yards and passed for 66 yards for a total output of 135 yards. Pittock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Pittock, 420 E. San Miguel, Colorado Springs.

TALENTED TOE

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Placekicking specialist Lou Groza of the Cleveland Browns set the National Football League record by scoring at least one point in 107 consecutive games from 1950 through 1959.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Here's a football fact that's hard to believe, but it's true . . . Remember that famous championship game in 1940 when the Chicago Bears beat the Washington Redskins 73-0? . . . Well, although the Redskins were outscored by 73 points, in the worst defeat in pro football history, they actually made MORE FIRST DOWNS than the Bears did that day! . . . It seems impossible, but here are the official totals . . . The Bears made 17 first downs in that game, and the Redskins made 18!

Here's one to bring back memories for you . . It was just 24 years ago this season that Stanford revolutionized college football by popularizing the T formation . . . Can you recall their great backfield which made the T so famous? . . . They were Frankie Albert, Pete Kmetovic, Hugh Gallarneau and Norm Standlee.

As you know, the goal posts are on the goal line in pro football . . . But, did you know they also used to be on the goal line in college football, too? . . . Old-timers might remember when they were on the goal line in college ball.

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

A Strike Is an Act of Aggressive War

Many people seem to harbor the illusion that a strike occurs at a given business or industry when the workers are digusted with what management is doing and actually feel they have been wrongly used.

This is not true. A strike is a device held in the control of powerful professionals within the union. It is used to enhance union prestige, to justify its existence. The professionals within the union employ the strike technique to condition their members into believing they have been wrongly put upon. Without a carefully engineered program of thought control and intimidation, strikes would not occur at all. The rank and file members of a union ordinarily don't want a strike. But the union professionals can whip them into line and force them to carry placards when they employ a specific set of rules, patterned after the waging of a military campaign in an aggressive war.

We have in our possession the Union Strike Manual, prepared, presumably, by the professional agitators and provocateurs of the AFL-CIO. It is widely used by all locals when a strike is planned and organized. So it is important that the public comes to realize that strikes are not "spontaneous" demonstrations of dislike of company policies or rules. Strikes are engineered masterpieces of human deceit and power seeking. We propose to bring the contents of this manual to public gaze through this and subsequent articles in this space.

The preface says this:

"This publication is issued after careful study by men experienced in the conduct of strikes. By following it carefully, the strike leader can greatly increase his prospect of victory.

"It is impossible to blue print all the arrangements necessary for any one strike because each strike requires different handling. Unexpected problems always arise. But if the rank and file is welded into an effective unit under capable leadership in whom they have confidence, nearly any emergency can be dealt with.

"Some typical strike plans are presented in this manual. For some strikes they are not detailed enough, for others, they are too elaborate. But they may be used as a starting point for organizing and maintaining the strike.

"This manual cannot be considered infallible as a guide to successful strike action; however, any union leader who conducts a strike without carefully considering the feasibility of each suggestion in this book is derelict in his duty.

"The successful strike does not run itself automatically. It requires planning. It requires detailed organization of the available manpower. It requires careful consideration of many factors; economic conditions of the community and the company, social attitudes of the strikers and the community, legal position of the union, public opinion, maintenance of morale, and many others."

The preface alone should convince you at once that strikes are not "spontaneous." They are first planned and worked out like military strategy aimed at taking over a foreign country by assault and force.

A STRIKE IS A WAR . . . .

"The strike is a form of economic war. To fight a WAR is hell — to lose one keeps you in hell. So when a strike starts, the idea is to win.

"As in military war, PREPAREDNESS is important in the strike war. That is the keynote of this manual. BE PREPARED. Do plenty of strike preparation work before the plant comes down and you will find fewer emergencies arising in the third, sixth, ninth, or twentieth week of the strike.

"Read this book LONG BEFORE you strike. Study it carefully if you think there is the remotest chance you may strike. The advice given in every chapter is best used BEFORE THE STRIKE."

Since it is important for the public generally and for businessmen in particular to understand the declared objectives and methods of their enemy, we will proceed to reveal the whole sordid concept of "economic war" as set forth in the AFL-CIO plan for coercion on a mass basis.

Relativity

Most ideas are step-by-step children of other ideas.

The 'Right' to Strike

The Union Strike Manual continues as follows:

"THE LAST RESORT . . .

"The strike is war. It is a last resort. Successful unionism is not best served by useless striking. Victory without a strike is always best. But the threat of a strike is often used as a weapon to obtain union demands.

"This weapon, like any other, is not very effective unless it is powerful. Scare talk and empty bluffs usually backfire. But quiet and methodic organizing for a strike often will convince the employer that the union means business. A minute's real preparation will do more to convince the employer than an hour's loud talk at the negotiation table.

"That again proves the point that the time to use this manual is LONG BEFORE a strike develops. Use it and follow its suggestions while you are still hoping and believing there will be no strike. Then chances are you'll have no strike for the employer will know you are in position to hand him a hard battle.

"But, if the employer insists on a shutdown, you'll be ready. You won't be embarrassed into backing down at the last minute, or into calling a disorganized strike that may collapse."

The foregoing is quite revealing. Notice the assumption that the strike agitator is going to have his way. Notice, too, that it is the employer who is placed in the position of ordering the shutdown when, in point of fact, it is the agitator who is forcing it. This twist of facts is characteristic of union activity and propaganda. Whatever the union agitator wants, he is justified. If anyone opposes him, the one who does, is wrong. This point of view is carefully nurtured even to the selection of just the right word at the right time in order to convey this idea to the rank and file.

It would be important for all reading this article to realize at once that union activities are centered on propaganda. The union argument is always a distortion and a twist, making for conditioning of the mind in a blind acceptance of the union view. The union propaganda follows the old Hitler technique. If you tell a lie often enough and cleverly enough, people will finally be conditioned to believe it. This is precisely the case here.

"THE RIGHT TO STRIKE . . .

"The right to strike is fundamental in a democracy. Without this right to strike, unionization of labor is almost pointless. For the strike is the basic weapon of the union to enforce the wishes of its members."

That is an important statement and we'll break in here to discuss it. If you'll take the time to evaluate it, you'll see that what it is saying is that no effort to organize labor would ever come off if force weren't used. The labor goon is wholly dependent upon force. Of course, the wording does say "almost" pointless. But the inference is clear. In other words, the professional agitator knows that he MUST use force and compulsion. Therefore, he is going to twist and distort everything he says in an effort to justify his action.

"For many decades, the right to strike has been recognized in America. The strike is protected by the law and generally sanctioned by informed public opinion."

Notice this emphasis upon the legality of the strike, with nothing said about the moral concept of imposing force, forcing men to quit work, forcing other men to pay them more than they are worth. This concept is reserved for later treatment. Notice, too, the slick way in which you are advised that "informed" public opinion is on the side of the striker. Actually, the reverse is true. Those who are truly informed, including millions who have been through strikes and some of the finest writers and analysts in the country, are wholly opposed to the strike.

"The striker, when he walks off the job, must realize that he is exercising a fundamental right. It is through the exercise of this right that he protects his independence."

This is pure hooey. Obviously, anyone has a right to quit work who wishes to. But no one has a right to quit work and then prevent someone else from taking the job. And that is what a strike means. This phrase is obviously put in because of the fact that each worker, when he finally does walk off the job, has a severe twinge of conscience. He knows he shouldn't. The professional agitator must be on hand to deceive him, or his conscience would rule and he'd go back to work.

The Local Scene

Historical Notes

By RUFUS L. PORTER

I received a letter today from my old friend William E. (Gene) Higby of Monument and it brought back a flood of memories of other times and other ways in the not so distant past.

Gene, as you may or may not know, was once a power in state politics. He served as state representative and state senator and was lieutenant-governor for two terms. And he came near to being nominated for governor. I was a precinct committeeman in the Springs in those days and I worked for him to the last ditch.

I also worked for him and his father many years before that as a ranch hand on their big (16,240 acres) ranch at Greenland. The road bisects their property as you drive past the marker that says "Greenland" on the Denver highway.

Gene was running a grocery store in Greenland at that time, 1915, and his father was ranch foreman. They made a good team. Gene was the business manager and his father was the cattleman. Although my stay at their ranch was a short one, Gene and I have remained friends down through the years. His father died in 1916. Gene and his brother Lou carried on in the cattle business.

The next time I saw him after quitting the ranch, a period of several years, he was running the Higby Mercantile Company in Monument. This was in the '20s. It was during the late '30s and early '40s that he was active in politics or, I should say, in political office, for he is still an active Republican and has been most of his life.

They also loaned out a great deal of money to other ranchers, with Gene acting as banker. I have heard one or two complaints by disgruntled borrowers over the Higbys' "money-grabbing tactics." But I have had many ranchers in the area tell me that "if it hadn't been for Gene carrying us during the bad times, every stockman around here would be broke today."

And they are the ones who are still in the cattle business.

I haven't seen Gene recently and I was glad to hear from him. Also, with his permission, I am going to publish his letter here because it contains some personal glimpses of two other important men of the recent past. The letter follows:

"Dear Rufus:

"Your article in this evening's Gazette Telegraph — Fighting Danny Sullivan — is very good and the title fits Danny very well. I first knew him after he moved to Denver and he was still fighting for the good of the people. He was one of my best friends while I served in the Colorado legislature during the time Ralph Carr was governor of our state.

"Danny gave me some good advice on many things and also told me the story you have ably written in this article. He and Ralph Carr made a good team of fighters. They both fought for what they considered right and what was best for our people. On many occasions we discussed the Franklin Roosevelt administration and how it was heading for a socialistic government.

"The Democratic Party is still continuing this same policy and is still leading us to a centralized government, not only in Washington, but in the state, county, and even in the small town of Monument. It seems to be the policy of the Democratic Party to control not only the people and their every action but all business.

"Ralph Carr was a great governor and fought against this and saved the state from bankruptcy. He was very religious and for two days before a man was put to death in Canon City he stayed from his office and prayed and walked the streets of Denver, unshaven and without food, both day and night.

"Your articles are fine, Rufus.

"Sincerely yours,
Gene"

Ralph served two terms as governor and did literally "save the state from bankruptcy." For its affairs were in a pitiful mess when he took charge of the state house. He retired from public life in 1942 after serving his two terms. But in 1948 he was "drafted" to run again and was nominated as the party's candidate. But he died shortly before election and Dan Thornton was chosen to run in his stead and was elected.

The American Way

Something Better

BY HARRY BROWNE

In the recent election (you know, the one on Nov. 3rd), 42.8 million people voted against Barry Goldwater; 26.5 million voted against Lyndon Johnson; and 44.7 million people voted against both of them!

Only 37.6 per cent of the American people of eligible voting age thought enough of the president to go to the polls and vote for him. Yet this man will now make awesome decisions that will affect all of our lives.

He will make decisions for men to die in Viet Nam. He will choose to plunder all Americans on behalf of the welfare measures he will muscle through Congress. And only a little over one adult American out of three chose him.

FACTS OF LIFE

What about the 44.7 million potential voters who didn't think enough of the issues to go to the polls? Before we lower the boom at them for being unpatriotic or un-American, let's recognize a few facts of life. What were the issues?

Both candidates felt that massive economic intervention into our lives is necessary. Neither favored getting rid of the impediments to economic progress — both seemed to like the anti-trust laws, minimum wage laws, high taxes, "Social Security", etc. The fact that all of these programs lower our standard of living and create unemployment was not an issue.

Both candidates wanted it known that they don't like communism. So both favored the loss of American lives in Viet Nam — in order to "contain" communism.

Neither candidate suggested that we get back on the gold standard, so that inflation could be halted once and for all. Neither seemed to be particularly concerned about the one trillion dollar debt that is so heavy it is bound to tip over our civilization.

Oh yes, one candidate appeared to be the "lesser of two evils." But so what? The question degenerated to one of "Do we go under with a well-intentioned president or an unscrupulous one?"

What were those 44.7 million Americans thinking of? Who would they have voted for, had they been given the chance?

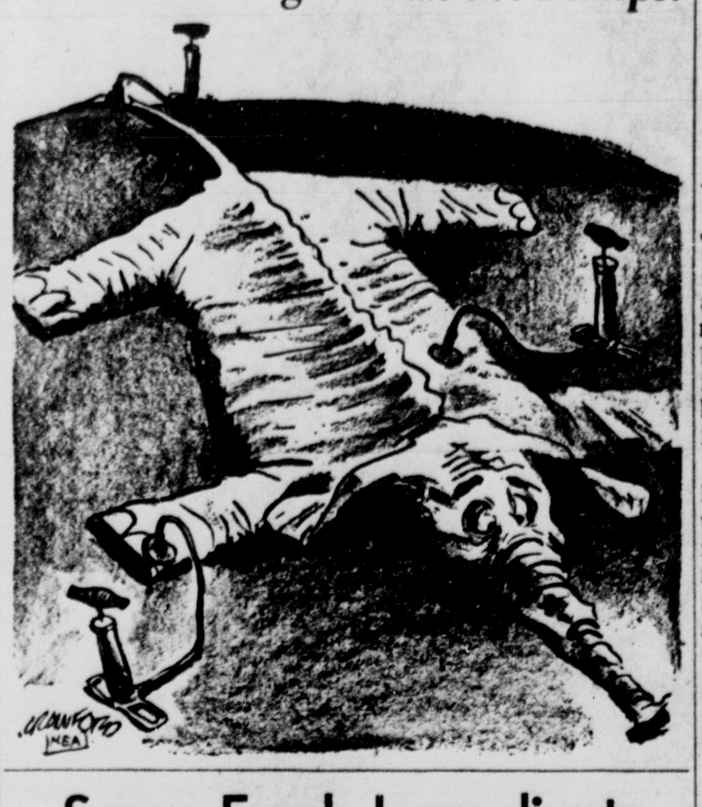
INDIVIDUALISM

Perhaps they would have voted "no" for president. Perhaps each would have said: "I prefer not to delegate my responsibilities to anyone. I refuse to believe that my future should depend upon who is in the White House. I believe I'm capable of governing my own life and property."

If that is the purpose behind 44.7 million abstentions, then these people should not be chastised. They should be praised. For they are the vanguard of a great new society — based upon total self-control of life and property. They are the forerunners of the first true revolution in history. They recognize that all states eventually perish by becoming too big and oppressive.

Will ours be any exception? Maybe we should be more concerned about saving our civilization than we are about saving the state.

So Who's Going to Man the Pumps?



Some Fresh Ingredients

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

It looks pretty silly to see a five-digit zip number following a zero box number and unless you arrived lately you are entirely familiar with my opinion of the zip code. It is becoming evident that the post office must use its power to force the use of the ridiculous zip numbers. I can see that my refusal to add five numerals to the naturally inefficient confusion of the post office department may eventually force me out of the column writing business but in the meantime I will continue to refuse to kowtow to the post office department. As a matter of private conscience I will also do what I can to avoid any acceptance of mail which carries the zip number. Dawn and I are having quite a few difficulties which must be overcome before we can get moved from here but when we do, the post office will not be authorized to forward anything but first class mail.

I have just received a short paid or bulk-rate mailing piece from an organization which should know better than to give in to the post office department. But what I want to call to your attention is the fact that complete with zip number the mailing piece was missent to Oatman, Ariz. I don't suppose a week passes without one or more pieces of our mail being missent to Oatman, Gila Bend or even Winslow, Arizona, and as far as I am concerned I'm certain the zip number will get stuck just as easily as other types of zippers.

No, Mrs. Price, I don't believe use of the zip code will speed up the mail or do anything but provide an excuse for government to waste more money in the post office department. Only private enterprise will improve the efficiency of transporting and delivering mail from one place to another.

Occasionally, I encounter articles and other items which suggest it will take some kind of a super genius to solve such problems as the transportation of mail in the market place. Whenever I encounter tid-bits of this nature I realize that the author must have had only a fleeting relationship with private enterprise on a practical basis. I wonder how long it will be before some people who preach about the merits of capitalism begin to behave and think and write as if they mean it. It seems to me that people who want others to get on with the business of doing a little plain and fancy thinking should provide a few examples which might help to inspire others.

Let me give you an example; what do you suppose would happen if Dawn discovered she had mixed the wrong ingredients while preparing to bake french bread? You may have seen dough but if you haven't, possibly you can imagine what it looks like and understand that my bright girl friend would never attempt to disassociate the various ingredients one from the other in order to finally get on with the business of making the french bread. Quickly, and probably with a little muttering, she would consider whether or not anything could be salvaged from the dough which contained the wrong ingredients. After proper consideration she might even use it for modeling clay but the chances are that she would get rid of the mixture and begin anew with the proper ingredients. If you don't realize that a tremendous number of Americans are busily engaged in trying to separate the ingredients which should never have been used in the first place, you probably won't recognize what I'm writing about anyway. Without bitterness, I want to suggest that only idiots try to again separate the ingredients which constitute a batch of dough.

When I write that the market place can do anything better than government I do not mean that private enterprise can follow in the inefficient steps of government, separate all the areas of inefficiency one from the other, then put them together again to provide a pattern of efficiency. The market place by the very nature of the individualistic people engaged therein will logically ignore the make-work acrobatics of government and get about the business of doing the job with a great deal more efficiency from beginning to end. This is to suggest that any attempts to reform the government are a total waste of time; no matter how hard you might work at trying to separate the ingredients you would always wind up with government. And only self-government is a compatible correlative of the philosophy of freedom. Don't bother to try to unscramble a rotten egg — fresh eggs are available in the market place.

Good luck and good health to you in freedom.

FATHERLY BIRD

To the Editor:

There once was a satanical and cunning bird who aspired mightily to become king of his bird kingdom. Even as a fledgling he dreamed of the day when he alone would become supreme in Bird Land.

To this end he devoted himself at an early age. He worked hard in bird politics for many years and never deviated from his original goal. He found, however, that while pursuing this goal, it was both convenient and pleasant to feather his own nest, even to overflowing, as others in politics around him were also doing.

Although this bird was by nature despotic and cruel, he had learned through many years of political activity to hide his true nature and reflect, instead, a profile of benevolence, paternalism and deep moral conviction — the better to get votes. Because of his outward appearance and increasing age, he became known affectionately as "Fatherly Old Bird" to all those who would support him in the upcoming election campaign.

"Fatherly Old Bird's" campaign was ageless in its appeal to the citizenry — full employment, relief from poverty, medical and health care, lower taxes, and strong defense from Bird Land's enemies. And so the slogans sounded throughout Bird Land — "Bird Brains for Business," "Two Kernels in Every Crib," "Health from Nest to Rest," "Tailfeather Taxes to Go," and finally the deciding slogan, "Think Peace, Act Peace and 'Peace Forevermore.' "

On election day the birds of Bird Land flocked to the polls in great numbers chirping and peeping the supposed virtues of their candidate, "Fatherly Old Bird." They did indeed believe that a great new society was at hand and they could forevermore devote themselves to pruning their feathers and feeding at the public troughs.

And so it came to pass that "Fatherly Old Bird's" great dream, a dream to which he had clung tenaciously for many years, found its culmination in a landslide victory at the polls on one election day. The combination of smiles and slogans and slanted press were overwhelmingly sufficient to elect to White Perch (Bird Land's highest office) a most satanical and cunning old bird.

Although "Fatherly Old Bird's" election had been in such proportions as to be called a "mandate" for his programs, the campaign had been most severe. Those who had opposed him and had supported instead Golden Bird, who lived near the water, had worked hard at the "water roots level" for many months on behalf of their beloved candidate.

Golden Bird had campaigned from a Conserve-a-bird platform decrying the ever increasing size and cost and power of government. He had constantly warned the birds that they were losing their precious freedoms, that their defenses were weak and that immorality and evil were flourishing at White Perch, to the great detriment of Bird Land.

He preached in every corner of the land the principles of self-government, individual responsibility, reduced spending, less government control, and above all a return to Constitutional Government. On this last point he warned repeatedly that a government by laws was much to be preferred to a government by birds.

Alas, his preachments fell on deaf ears and closed minds and Golden Bird went down to defeat — defeat at the hands of an avaricious and false philosophy unrelated either to reality or Bird Land's heritage.

A foreboding chill of anxiety and apprehension crept like a great storm cloud across Bird Land and many birds of thoughtful mind were frightened.

"Fatherly Old Bird," his dream achieved, and with a firm mandate from his subjects set immediately about the task of governing and ruling Bird Land. His first chore as he saw it was to enforce his will over the senator birds, whose obligation it was to implement and legislate the laws of Bird Land. To this end he smilingly told the senator birds that he, "Fatherly Old Bird," would henceforth institute all new laws and if they did not approve them, grave repercussions would result. He made it quite clear that White Perch controlled the drawstring of the Bird Land Treasury, and that string would be pulled if the senator birds veered from the decreed path set down by their new Ruler.

Charges resounded of "blackmail" and "coercion," but the reaction among the senator birds was almost unanimous. Some out of ignorance agreed — others out of complacency acquiesed. Most, however, from fear of economic retaliation in their home areas grudgingly and with foreboding, handed away their duties, their obligations, and their heritage to "Fatherly Old Bird," the satanic and cunning new Ruler of Bird Land.

The second chore to which the new King set himself was the control of the Court of Owls. It was the duty of these judicious appearing creatures, to rule on the validity and constitutionality of the laws written by the senator birds. "Fatherly Old Bird" met the problem with characteristic cunning. He convinced the heavy-lidded judges of the desirability and advisability of his great new society and ended his argument by saying, "After all, the Constitution of Bird Land is no more or no less than you say it is." Then with further enticements and reprimands and cajolery of every nature the normally wise old birds also acceded. They likewise relinquished their duties, their obligations and their heritage into the hands of Bird Land's new Ruler, a most satanical and cunning old bird.

"Fatherly Old Bird's" power was now supreme. He had succeeded where no previous king had been successful. He had moved into areas where all prior kings had feared to move. He had achieved power never before held by a single bird. He had in fact destroyed the historic division of power between the branches of Bird Land's Government. He smiled maliciously to himself plotting his next move. Henceforth, he decided, he would be known as "Supreme Father Bird" of Bird Land.

PRAISES CHENOWETH

To the Editor:

In recent issues of southern Colorado newspapers, there have been published, by Congressman J. Edgar Chenoweth, messages of thanks to those of us who "have been of such great help" to him.

This is one "bill" that our beloved congressman has gotten wrong end to.

I wonder if the large number of readers of your grand newspaper can see it as I can.

Congressman Chenoweth has been the one on the helping end. He has given 100 per cent attention to his citizens in this part of Colorado. He has done everything in his power for us in Washington. He has paid attention to us, no matter what our station in life, whether Democrat, Republican, Independent or what. In fact it made no difference to him. He was there to serve all of the people all of the time, no matter whether they had a second shirt to their name, drove the most expensive car or a jalopy, lived in the finest mansion on the boulevard or in a little shanty on the river bank, were white, yellow, brown, red or black.

The thoughtfulness of Congressman Chenoweth came to me so very forcefully when my parents, of this [illegible], celebrated their [illegible] wedding anniversary February 3, last. Much to the surprise of everyone they received a very kindly letter of congratulation and good wishes, from Mr. Chenoweth. None of us knew what to say, we were all so surprised and very happy that our congressman would take the time to congratulate an old couple who lived on "the other side of the tracks" and had absolutely no political influence except in the voting booth. (He got four votes from our house.)

This incident is, I am sure, only one of the multiplied acts of thoughtfulness and kindness that have been shown by the man we have lost for the time, as our representative in Congress. Thoughtfulness and concern to the humble and lowly in life, are the yardstick by which one can measure, with infallibility, the man we have had for our faithful servant these many years. (Would to God they were that many more and then some.) His kind is all too few and far between. If he could see the abstract of the votes cast in this precinct, he would see how truly many who will go along with me in this.

It is my hope and prayer that the many honest citizens in this district, who have thanks to express to Congressman Chenoweth, will do so now. It is also my hope that the term of his opponent will just be a recess in his service for Colorado and the nation, that he will be back in the saddle come next election.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION No. 613: "Have we really had a tax cut, or is it simply a tax shift?"

ANSWER: The government is spending more than it is taking in federally, and most of the states and the cities and counties are issuing bonds rather than levying taxes on a pay-as-you-go basis. Therefore, it is a shift in taxes.

This tax shift is the most unfair form of taxation there is. It catches the widows and orphans and the inexperienced men who don't understand business or how to invest savings to give them the most protection.

Of course, there is no protection against the government that is determined to buy votes and keep in power.

It seems that the local politicians are just as guilty as the federal politicians. They practice the great deceit of fooling the public.

Those who have foresight will be better able to defend themselves against this tax shift than those without experience in business or without foresight.

Most widows are afraid to invest in anything other than keeping their money in the bank or savings and loan, or bonds. They do not realize that purchasing power is deteriorating and that this is a form of taxation.

The young man who thinks he is going to get social security when he gets old and is now paying it in, will find that by the time he is old enough to be entitled to some of the money which he turned in, that his social security will be virtually valueless as it was in Germany, when the mark wasn't worth carrying home.

No, it is not really a tax-cut. It is simply a deceptive tax shift.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well being of all mankind on this earth.

Wit and Whimsy

The young father was wheeling the baby carriage around the block on a hot afternoon.

Voice (from an upper window): "My dear!"

Young Father (called back): "Now let me alone! We're all right."

An hour later the same voice pleaded:

Voice: "Charles, dear!"

Young Father: "Well, what do you want? Anything wrong in the house?"

Voice: "No, Charles, dear, but you have been wheeling Nancy's doll all afternoon. Please give the baby a turn."

The vices we scoff at in others, laugh at us within ourselves.

BEHIND THE FACADE

JOHN C. SPARKS

(The Freeman)

Certain countries have earned dubious reputations because of the method used to change rulers. As the leader of the most recent coup ascends to the throne, one pities the people who enthusiastically and trustingly turn to the new despot, seeking in him the "magic" that will bring them better living conditions.

Citizens of the United States are inclined to view such governmental instability with a lofty smugness. For we have not resorted to revolution to determine our governmental leaders since the founding of our Republic nearly two centuries ago. Election of our presidents and legislators has been a product of sane, peaceful majority rule—not armed revolt! Thus, we may think we have cause to feel superior.

The truth is that such conceit must pertain to an inheritance, rather than any accomplishment of our own. This inherited blessing is the concept of individual freedom and limited government espoused by our leaders of the 1770's in reaction against the tyrannical rule of an English king.

The colonists in America had experienced a set of circumstances unique in history. The mother country had been so fully occupied with other matters of state, a civil war, and European wars for a century and a half, that the English rulers had little time left to govern the colonists. Left alone, they had tasted freedom of choice, the right to own property, and the exhilarating spirit of self-responsibility. They liked it! When King George III finally gave attention to America and imposed relatively minor restrictions on the colonists, they arose in jealous wrath at infringement of the freedom to which they had become accustomed.

And so, they established a government of their own—a government of limited power to intrude into its citizen's decision-making areas. The mechanism they used to resolve public differences of opinion is called "majority rule."

As interpreted by the founders, majority rule was keyed to strictly-qualified citizens who under specified circumstances would be privileged to vote on a restricted list of issues, or for candidates for office. The founders visualized the potential tragedy of an unimpeded use of this mechanism, and they took great pains to define and limit the powers of government so so that the tyranny of the English king would not simply be replaced by a tyranny of the majority. The Bill of Rights, the careful listing of the powers and limitations of the executive, the legislative, and the judicial, the explicit reservation to the state governments and to the people of power not specifically given the Federal government—all are illustrations of the fear of a "Frankenstein-monster" if the majority-rule mechanism were ever to get out of hand.

Their fears were not without foundation.

Majority Rule

In "The American Tradition" Dr. Clarence B. Carson describes the latter-day acceptance of this widespread fallacy in those "who apparently believe that the onus of compulsion is removed from any prescribed action by voting on it. But the fact that a majority favors it does not remove compulsion from government action, certainly not for the minority. Majority approval does not make government action voluntary; rather, it intrudes elements of voluntarism into what would otherwise be unmitigated compulsion. Today, majority rule has become the popular front for all kinds of coercion committed against some men by others.

The contemporary method of governing our nation may give an appearance of a genuinely advancing civilization, but a look behind this facade will reveal a government of too much power under a leader duly elected by vote of the majority. A critical examination of the majority rule mechanism is justified. Is it truly a practical means to guarantee freedom? Just how democratic is a society that is based on indiscriminate use of majority rule?

The use of majority "magic" approaches the hysterical level, as our inherited freedom wanes. Elected officials, through opinion pollsters, strive intently to detect the pulse-beat of the nation so that their utterance may coincide with it.

There are implications in the terms democratic action and majority rule that bear critical examination. There is implied a fervent hope by the people for maximum freedom and self-determination. There is a fear of tyranny. There is the distrust of kings and dictators. These are good, healthy hopes and fears. But unfortunately, there also is a faith that voting in itself is a sure way of achieving freedom and protection against despotism. The act of voting is the tangible evidence of a kind of participation in government that had been long denied. Before the advent of the American Republic, people everywhere were considered subjects of their respective kings. Participation in government consisted of following the dictates of the king.

Participation By Voting

Then came this new opportunity for the American people to govern themselves. Self-government meant real participation; and what better way to manifest personal participation than to vote! With a semblance of logic, they reasoned that the more opportunities to vote, the greater would be the citizen's participation in government. To live under freedom required that one participate, and the proof of participation was in the voting. Personal participation, voting and majority rule came to be the magical, infallible road to freedom from tyranny.

So strong has grown this faith that majority rule is now deemed appropriate for resolving any subject or issue no matter how private, intimate, or individual the matter may be. In place of the original premise of limited voting on limited subject matter we find the irresponsible temptation to vote on everything. The quality of a Congress is often measured by the number of laws it has passed. Pseudo-liberals look at unlegislated areas of human action as challenging new fields to conquer. Thus, freedom is lost within the very nation specifically designed to hold it safe for succeeding generations.

Much is made of the duty to vote. The usual "get out the vote" cliche urges the citizen to vote—how he votes being of much less significance than the act of voting. The more votes cast, the better the ensuing government, as if by magic!

We have been hypnotized by our own delusion. The statistically tabulated votes of poorly informed or morally bankrupt persons can add up only to a sizable volume of misinformation or poorly directed political action, thus diminishing the private sector of personal choice and responsibility.

"Freedom" Misunderstood

The philosophical political facade of our nation can be stated in one word—freedom. Our young people write essays about freedom and democracy. Having judged numerous essay and speaking contests for high school students, I have read and heard hundreds of them. It is disconcerting to observe how many of the meanings assigned to freedom miss the target. Only a small percentage of the students read into it a true, meaningful freedom of individual choice. For most of them, "individual choice" is of little significance except that each person has a "sacred right to cast his individual vote—as though individual choice and individual vote were synonymous. Many imply that a person ought to be forced to vote! The magic of the facade! But there his right to choose seems to come to an abrupt end, at least, as such choosing applies to any vital area of human action within society. The word "freedom" continues in prominent use in our land of the "no longer free." Behind the facade of freedom grows totalitarianism.

Sleeping citizens have become accustomed to it. The government's democratically-elected president creates for himself, through powerful tax-paid public relations programs, an air of tremendous power and wisdom, like the mystic divine right of the kings of old. People are encouraged to picture the President of the United States as a great leader—not leading toward individual choice and individual responsibility—but as a "god" to whom all citizens should refer their important needs and problems.

With the vigilance of the people relaxed, the Federal government's executive department acts in a manner that seriously jeopardizes the concept of private ownership of property, the pillar of freedom. It interferes in labor-management disputes, often dictating terms of settlement. Unbelievable pressure is exerted on members of Congress to pass civil rights legislation, further eroding freedom of choice and use of one's own property. Scandal that presumably should rock the nation's capital is minimized, while talk persists of blackmail wielding its fearful influence on congressional voting.

It is unnecessary to list here a full bill of particulars. Steep taxes, innumerable interferences in local and individual affairs, questionable adequacy of national defense are only a few of the more serious items behind the false face of "freedom." A personal sense of responsibility, long ingrained in the American people, is fast diminishing. By majority vote it has been made to seem that society is now responsible to provide each person an income whether he works or not, to educate his children whether he pays or not, to take care of him in his later years whether he has been frugal or not.

On the surface, it may sound good. It may look like self-determination, but it's not! When each one unloads his responsibility upon society, no one is responsible. Lying beneath the disguise of freedom provided by the mechanism of democratic action and majority rule grows an alarming rottenness and deterioration. The mere use of one of the mechanical techniques of a government of free people does not in itself bring about freedom. As we have seen, the same technique can be and is being used to take away freedom—the right of individuals and minorities to choose for themselves.

Real freedom means the least government—government conspicuous by its absence—with sufficient power only to protect life, liberty, and property from frauds, thieves, and murderers. Real freedom means the full right of ownership and to make decisions for one's self and one's family. The right to vote—while an important mechanism if properly used—should be employed sparingly by the people and by law-making bodies. Lawmaking activities ought to be directed, for a change, toward the removal of government interferences and restrictions already on the law books.

When government is confined to its proper, limited scope, there will be no necessity for opinion poll-takers to find out what Mr. and Mrs. America think. Each one then will decide for himself — privately, separately, individually — and the matter will concern no one else when real freedom once again exists behind its facade.

The Problem Corps

(California Feature Service)

The enthusiasm of President Johnson and his poverty director, Sargent Shriver, for the impending Youth Job Corps program isn't exactly shared by the communities about to be blessed with the modern version of CCC camps.

A Yorktown, Va., county supervisor commented acidly that the Youth Camp proposed for his area is "just a relocation of other cities' problems and we have enough problems as it is." A Yakima, Washington citizen learned to his discomfiture that the federal assurance of "non-political" administration of the program was slightly less than accurate when he was officially turned down as a camp director because those jobs were to be disseminated politically.

It is especially understandable why Youth Corps site cities view their blessing with some dismay if one considers the questions asked of applicants for camp director jobs. Mr. Shriver's questionnaire inquires, among other things, how the applicant would handle thefts of tools by the corpsmen; what he'd do about homosexual activities; how he'd handle race problems; what he'd do about knifings, since "once knifings begin, they tend to become prevalent;" and what do you do if the chief of police says one of your boys has raped a girl?

Wise Old Uncle Sam

Is Business Dishonest?

(Christian Economics)

By Hans F. Sennholz, Ph.D.

The incessant growth of government bureaucracy receives an important impetus from the wide-spread idea that business activity has a strong tendency to be dishonest, that the quest for profits presumes some degree of cunning, a disposition to cheat, steal, or lie. Large profits are said to flow from inside information that is kept from the public, or from misleading communications fed to the gullible public. Business advertising is attacked as a tool of fraud and deceit that induces people to waste their incomes so that businessmen may reap higher profits.

Such widespread beliefs continue to breed an ever-growing bureaucracy of government. They have caused a multiplication of rules with which businessmen must comply, bureaucratic rules not resting on settled law but administrative decisions. Businessmen are called upon to provide detailed information on their trade practices, prepare replies to a great mass of questionnaires. They must give considerable time and thought to the interpretation of the laws and rules regulating business conduct. Corporate lawyers are added to the staff.

If the effects of this attitude towards business were merely economic we would have to acquiesce only in higher production costs and higher goods prices. For the business reports to government involve immense labor on the part of the accounting and managerial offices which entails a great increase in costs. Higher costs, however, reduce the supply of goods and increase their prices. They tend to depress business activity by depressing profits.

But this is not the only effect. The assumption that business practice borders on fraud and deceit makes the government bureaucracy the guardian of honesty and virtue. This must lead not only to an omnipotence of politicians and bureaucrats but also to immoral or evil practices. In fact, wherever government undertakes to control business, deceit and corruption, theft and fraud seem to be commonplace.

In free economic intercourse, honestly always prevails over dishonesty.

In a free and unhampered economy, honesty has many rewards. Dishonesty is self-eliminating. The honest business that has earned the respect and confidence of investors can raise capital at lower costs than the business that has lost investors' confidence. For business success, the trust and confidence of bankers and creditors, suppliers and customers is of crucial importance. To have lost their good will spells economic disaster.

The same principle applies to advertising. False claims as to the quantity and quality of a product make for disappointed and dissatisfied customers. It is true a misleading claim may occasionally create a sale. But business success cannot be built on an occasional sale. It rests on continuous sales to a growing circle of satisfied customers.

Many sociological studies have shown that the ruling classes, i.e. kings and princes, dictators and governors, probably are the most criminal classes of society. Throughout the ages they have spilt more blood, committed more crimes in the form of plunder, fraud and theft than all other classes combined. The reason for this frightening phenomenon can probably be found in Lord Acton's observation that "power tends to corrupt, absolute power corrupts absolutely."

To some extent the same applies also to the leaders of democratic government whenever it is endowed with ample power. It applies to the modern economic state, commonly called the welfare state, in which politicians, bureaucrats, labor union and party leaders wield a tremendous power over the rest.

Corruption in fact is built in wherever authoritative decisions flowing from naked power have superseded the decisions of free individuals acting under the moral restraints of a free society. This is why corruption forms an integral part of the welfare state that proposes to make politicians and bureaucrats the guardians of morality.

Bold Step Taken

Topeka (Kansas) Free Lance

Surely all right-thinking, red-blooded American citizens remember with chagrin and disgust the expose of those dirty little capitalists of GE and Westinghouse who were caught, not long ago, conspiring to fix prices on their products!

Who can forget the anguished cries or righteous bureaucratic outrage as our elected leaders—those valiant protectors of all that is chaste and innocent—mounted their chargers once again to battle the enemies of the Republic?

Nothing brings greater pain to the magnanimous heart of a pious liberal, a Keynesian economist, or a labor leader than discovery of a little capitalist collective bargaining — "price-fixing" as it is called in this instance.

Now — Let it be known that we, the people, owe yet another debt to these fearless fighters for "truth, justice and the American Way."

Honors this time go to the stalwart bureaucrats of the Commodity Credit Corporation who, since July first, have dumped 34 and one-half million bushels of wheat in the Kansas City area at the statutary minimum price in an attempt to fix the price of wheat as low as possible.

Our government has long recognized that it has a duty to protect farmers from the vagaries of "ruthless" competition with price supports establishing a high minimum market price. Now it has taken a bold new step to protect the consumer by establishing a low maximum price. Mr. Freeman said the cost of bread shouldn't rise, and by LBJ and all that's holy it won't!

Thus, with renewed evidence of governmental dedication to our "free competitive market" the citizenry can bed down for another night, glad of heart and easy of mind.

On Babylonians And Russians

(Life Lines)

Many years ago the king of a powerful nation welcomed some ambassadors of a growing and ambitious country. The diplomats were graciously escorted throughout the land. The historical record points out that the king "hearkened unto them, and shewed them all the house of his precious things, the silver, the gold, the spices and the precious ointment. They saw the house of his armour, and all that was found in his treasures: there was nothing in his house, nor in all his house, nor in all his dominion, that Hezekiah shewed them not."

The biblical record says the prophet Isaiah questioned Hezekiah about his foolish activities and warned that Babylon would invade, plunder and conquer the nation.

In the 6th Century B.C. the armies of Babylon did just that: Judian cities were plundered, and the king and thousands of his people were captured and enslaved.

This historic lesson shows the danger of trusting the enemy; but our no-win policy of appeasement proves to the American people their leaders are ignoring the lesson.

The pages of the past are filled with accounts of men willing to sacrifice a little freedom to gain temporary safety. In 1938, the Western Allies willingly sacrificed the freedom of Austria to maintain peace and safety with Germany. And then they allowed Czechoslovakia to fall into the hands of the Nazi dictator. Neville Chamberlain and his colleagues were discredited when, in 1939, Hitler invaded Poland. What our allies had fail- to realize was that Hitler was a master at the game of deception. With smiles and promises, the German dictator was able to win the trust and confidence of the West.

We should not be so quick to pass judgment on the English or the French for their action at Munich. Since 1933, our nation has been selling out to international communism. Never before has a nation been so deceived as has the United States, nor has any nation so little to gain, as has the United States through its determined efforts to please atheistic communism.

Because of defeatist policies of appeasement, the forces of freedom have been pushed around, bullied and used by communism. The reasons are many, but a significant one is that we often have not realized the nature of those with whom we have dealt.

In 1933, the U.S. government recognized the Soviet Union. The Soviet representative during the conferences preceding official recognition was Maxim Litvinov — on record at the time as a thief and murderer. So was the Soviet leader, Josef Stalin. These two revolutionaries had been involved in the 1907 robbery of the Tiflis Branch of the State Bank, according to the book, The Naked Communist. Author W. Cleon Skousen relates that a bomb, thrown in front of a convoy carrying the money to the bank, killed several bystanders and wounded more than 50 adults and children. The 341,000 rubles ($170,000) was found in Litvinov's possession when he and a companion were arrested in Paris trying to exchange the rubles for francs.

Skousen says, "The crime reflected such complete disregard for human life that authorities both inside and outside of Russia attempted to run down every possible clue" as to the identity of the criminals.

For 16 years our government had refused to recognize the communist regime because of its record of broken promises and subversive activities in the affairs of other governments. In 1923, the U.S. Secretary of State said: "There can be no question of the sincere friendliness of the American people toward the Russian people. And there is for this very reason a strong desire that nothing should be done (such as granting recognition) to place the seal of approval on the tyrannical measures that have been adopted in Russia, or to take any action which might retard the gradual reassertion of the Russian people of their right to live in freedom."

Why did we give in and decide to extend peaceful, diplomatic relations to a nation whose blueprint for world domination called for the removal of the American way of life? Why did we suddenly allow the enemy to come into our midst, establish an embassy, and thus give him an opportunity to infiltrate every area of American life? These are questions which should be remembered but, like the lesson of Hezekiah, are not. Why?

Since 1933, the communists have spread their menacing doctrine around the globe through subtle acts of deception. Such tactics are the cornerstone of Soviet foreign policy. Lenin spelled it out when he said, "Capitalists the world over and their governments will, in their desire to win the Soviet market, shut their eyes . . . and be turned into blind deaf mutes. They will furnish credits (the wheat deal!), which will serve as a means of supporting the Communist Parties in their countries, and, by supplying us with materials and techniques which are not available to us, will rebuild our war industry, which is essential for our future attacks on our suppliers. In other words, they will be laboring to prepare their own suicide . . ." Such mistakes have already delivered a billion people into slavery.

The international conspirators against freedom have been labeled by J. Edgar Hoover as the "masters of deceit." But they are something else. They are tireless workers.

The House of Representatives' Committee on Un-American Activities proved this when it held a hearing in Pittsburgh, Pa., which revealed evidence of current communist strategy and tactics in the United States. Two undercover agents of the FBI, Mary and Hamp Golden, who had served as members of the Communist Party for a number of years, were among the witnesses. They testified that the communist operation is at present more dangerous than in the past.

Characterizing the Communist Party as a revolutionary group, the Goldens described the arduous discipline the Communist Party requires of its members. In portraying the communist dedication and zeal, Mr. Golden stated: "(You) never sleep. You work 24 hours a day. You attend maybe two meetings in an evening and at midnight or early in the morning you pass out leaflets and literature at plant gates. You never have a moment of your own, no social life whatsoever of your own."

As FBI Director Hoover said before a national convention of the American Legion, "To dismiss lightly the existence of the subversive threat to the United States is to deliberately commit national suicide. In some quarters we are doing just that."

Those words of warning should be heeded. How often have you heard some well-meaning American say, "Oh, I would like to help out with patriotic effort — I know it's needed — but I just don't have any spare time!"

The communists don't have any spare time either. They use all their time in their effort to end freedom in America. They can, if we do not stop them, lead this nation to slavery under the communist yoke.

How does an individual fight communism at home and abroad?

A few guidelines will show the way and suggest other means: (1) know what communism is and what it seeks; (2) resist any move that tends to reject the personal enterprise system or encourage further socialistic inroads on our free way of life; (3) resist, by revealing your views to newspapers and congressmen, formulation of foreign policies that aid the Soviet bloc and socialist-oriented nations.

The only reason freedom continues to lose to communism is because the American people are not fighting it, and by not fighting the enemy, they aid the enemy.

Aesop was trying to tell us something when he wrote:

"The shaft of the arrow had been feathered with one of the eagle's own plumes. We often give our enemies the means of our own destruction."

The American Way

By HARRY BROWNE

Editor, Freedom Magazine

VICTORY OVER COMMUNISM

Cures for communism are a-dime-a-dozen. Everything is advocated from an invasion of Cuba to greater foreign aid to the Soviets. Meanwhile, American men are drafted to fight and die before the dreaded enemy in Viet Nam.

What is communism? In effect, it is the theory that man exists solely for the benefit of the state. Its high-sounding phrases about "victory of the proletariat" and "collective strength" soon degenerate into simple slavery: man exists for the benefit of the state.

Such a concept is not new. It has existed since the beginning of time. And all historical evidence points to the fact that men do not create and produce abundance in such a stifling atmosphere. Soviet Russia can be no exception.

And yet, here we find ourselves today in a position where our own government takes $50 billion out of the economy every year for the purpose of defending ourselves against the "threat of communism." And pundits and thinkers around the world treat the U.S. and USSR as productive equals.

How?

How could this be? What threat could come from a weak economic system like communism? All else equal, the "free enterprise" U.S.A. must be a hundred times stronger than the weak Soviet Union.

But, unfortunately, all else isn't equal. There's a distortion imposed upon this simple equation. It seems that the 100-1 ratio has been seriously diluted.

The distortion comes from the fact that the American taxpayer has been assessed by his own government to help prop up the Soviet economy. For a few examples: the recent wheat sale in which the Soviets' credit was guaranteed by our government's Export-Import Bank; similar sales of critically-needed machine tools where our government has guaranteed the credit; arming the Yugoslavian Army and Air Force.

Perhaps worst of all is the direct foreign aid sent to Communist Poland. For Poland has its own foreign aid program, and one recipient is North Viet Nam. Recognize the name? That's the communist country that's waging war against South Viet Nam where American soldiers are dying.

So our own money is being used to finance the deaths of our own citizens. And it becomes rapidly apparent just why communism has become such a formidable threat.

What To Do

We can now see a much more lasting cure for communism. The answer isn't to invade Cuba, nor to fight to the death in Viet Nam, or to send more foreign aid to Brazil, nor to improve the quality of our diplomats.

The total answer to the communist threat is to simply stop helping them!

Without our help the communists couldn't keep their inept system going one year. Without our nuclear secrets, our agriculture know-how, our scientific knowledge, and our money—the Communists would be forced to either change their system or suffer inevitable collapse.

If victory over communism is the goal, it's true that there's a simple solution: stop helping them.

ANITA GAMES

Enthusiastic but lost are words that possibly could describe the parents of a great deal of Harrison students. Tuesday, November 10, at the "Back to School" night activities, and open house at Harrison, in regards to National Education Week. As the parents stepped into their son's or daughter's shoes they found themselves in a different realm, the world of busy school corridors, corwded with lost parents, and tardy bells, of which most used to their fullest extent. One additional item usually not featured on the regular school curriculum was a refreshment period after the "school day" ended. Despite some reminiscing of their "good ole school days". the majority of the parents enjoyed this evening.

Also in connection with National Education Week, five of Harrison's students were selected in co-operation with the Optimist Clubs for Youth Appreciation Week. The students were, Becky Richardson, a senior, Anita Games, a junior, Dick Maki, a senior, Tom Slade, a junior, and Karen Davis, a senior. One of these will be chosen the winner and presented with a trophy at the end of National Education Week.

This week Harrison also temporarily lost two of its students, Jerry Williams and Becky Richardson, as exchange students to Cheyenne Mountain High School, but as a counteraction Harrison was honored to have two of Cheyenne's students in return, these students being Jeff Posner and Cheryl Vetter.

The seniors, this week, were presented with the annual problem of selecting their announcements for graduation next May. They had a choice of three types and they selected the first example.

WHERE WOULD OUR MANUFACTURING BE WITHOUT COLORADO STEEL?

In the days of the kerosene lamp and wind-up phonograph, no doubt! Which is where CF&I steel products come in. Used as a raw material or bought as a finished product all CF&I steel and steel products are silent partners in the manufacturing industries of the State.

And CF&I is a partner in Colorado's industrial progress in still another way. The very fact that steel is made and fabricated in Colorado makes the entire State a more logical choice for prospective new business and industry.

Real Dilemma Exists In Accountant's World

The job of an accountant is changing — and his education must change also.

But University of Colorado Prof. Robert S. Wasley says "a real dilemma" exists among educators regarding the scope of education in training all types of accountants.

Wasley, head of the accounting division of the CU School of Business, believes a revolution in his academic field is beginning — and it should continue.

"A ferment exists," Wasley says, "and will continue to exist over what should be taught to the student who has four years to spend in college."

There are many ideas for change being proposed, he said, and to coordinate the effort to modernize teaching standards, a study committee has been formed to find a common body of knowledge which will be useful to the CPA in the future.

The study group, equally supported by the Carnegie Foundation and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, hopes to lay down education requirements necessary for a CPA to keep pace with the rapid changes expected.

Wasley noted that educators "are constantly striving to teach the student the 'why' rather than the 'how.' The learning process in this profession will only be started at the college level," he said. "It will continue as long as the student is in the profession."

He feels changes are necessary, because accountants are doing vastly different jobs and are performing different services than they were 30 years ago. However, he said in many instances an accounting education hasn't changed much since the 1930s.

"In the past, accountants have been historians — they have concerned themselves with what has happened and not with the future," Wasley said. "But now computers — which have caused most of the change in the accounting function — can be relied upon to keep the history, to interpret it and to forecast trends of the future."

The versatile computers can be used to do much more than Man's physical capabilities ever could, Wasley said, and thus the accountant, by using the computer as a tool, can broaden his services.

"In order to fully use the computer and education as tools," Wasley said, "the accountant must have a better understanding and broader perspective of the needs of management. He can then use the computer to help solve the problems."

Wasley said if the computers are relegated to a job of replacing the detail chores only, "it's like using a Rolls Royce to do the job of a Model-T."

Besides learning the effective use of computers and automation, the accountant in the future also will have to be versed in dealing with the complexities of international business methods, Wasley said.

"Business procedures differ in many places," he said, "and a problem exists in meshing operations when they come together."

Official Urges Special Tribute To the Late JFK

Parents and friends of the mentally retarded were urged today to pay tribute publicly and privately to the late President John F. Kennedy during the 1964 observance of National Retarded Chidren's Week.

The suggestion came from Dr. Stafford L. Warren, Special Assistant to the President for Mental Retardation, who recalled that President Kennedy was assassinated during the 1963 observance of the Week for the Retarded.

"Because of what happened in 1963," Dr. Warren said, "for years to come this special week for the mentally retarded will be observed with a mixture of sorrow and gratitude. Sorrow because of his untimely death, gratitude because he lived long enough to plan and inaugurate the world's first national program to combat mental retardation."

Dr. Warren noted that the program President Kennedy planned and signed into law has been gathering momentum; that research has been speeded; that educational and training programs have been expanded, and that new emphasis has been placed on providing good prenatal care to mothers as an aid in preventing mental retardation. All these programs, he added, are being advanced further now.

"During this week, especially, then," Dr. Warren said, "we must pause time and again to pay tribute to John Fitzgerald Kennedy. For it was he, more than any other single person, who took the retarded by the hand to lead them from the attics and into the schools, the businesses and the playgrounds of their own communities."

SEA GOLD

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's gold indeed to be had from the seven seas, the experts agree, but Prof. Elmer W. Pehrson of Columbia University School of Engineering and applied Science doubts it will ever pay off the national debt.

Although cheerful estimates have placed the value of the gold in a cubic mile of seawater as high as $210 million, a more reliable figure, Pehrson says, is $20,000, not enough to meet the costs of mining the precious metal.

NEW GOLF TUNNELS — Progress in the expansion of the Broadmoor Golf Course, from 27 holes to two 18 hole Championship courses, continues with the laying of two tunnels which will permit two golf carts to pass under the road simultaneously. These pipe arch tunnels are 70 feet in length, weigh 22½ tons each and are made of ½ inch thick corrugated steel. Concrete walls will be built out from the sides of the tunnels and a paved ramp will take golf carts to ground level. Both courses will be ready for play in 1965.

Computers Help Steel Production

By TOM NOLAN

White - hot, 800 - pound steel shafts slide out of a furnace and crash onto a set of powerful rollers. They are whipped back and forth becoming longer and thinner.

The bars are then dumped into cooling beds. Then they are cut to prescribed lengths and shipped.

In this spanking new plant—just now going into full production—there's just one noticeable absence: in all the acres of floor space, the casual observer never sees more than two or three men.

The simple fact is that there aren't many workers—at least not as many as there used to be. Bethlehem's new bar mill employs only half as many men per shift as the old conventional works.

Yet, the company expects production to double.

As steel production heads for a record high of 120 million tons this year, mills across the country are employing fewer men. And today's highly trained steel speicalist is a far cry from his counterpart of 10 years ago, who relied on his strong arms and shoulders for job security.

The worker of today may operate computers to control furnace inflow. He watches closed-circuit television to check the furnace's interior, and pulls a lever to take the temperature of the molten mass. He wears a sports shirt and works in air-conditioned comfort.

For the steel industry is more and more becoming an automated business. Often now the metal is squeezed not by human force or manipulation, but by means of automatic controls and punchcards and computers.

Workers now complain of mental strain rather than physical exhaustion.

This is not to say that steelmaking has become a dainty, egghead process. Many of the 520,000 U.S. steel hands still have dirty, sweaty and backbreaking jobs.

But this work is dwindling each year.

In Jones & Laughlin's new basic oxygen furnace works in Cleveland, Ohio, an asbestos-suited worker wearing a plastic face visor stands only five feet away from the tilted furnance as he checks its temperature with a 15-foot rod.

But the furnace requires only 40 men to man it. To pour the same volume of steel in its now closed - down open hearth furnaces, Jones & Laughlin employed 100 hands per shift.

At Armco Steel's giant Amanda blast furnace in Ashland Ky., a worker dons protective clothing when it's time to tap the slag.

Ten-man shifts keep Amanda blasting 24 hours a day. To cast the same amount of iron earlier took 40 men on five of Armco's smaller furnaces.

In a huge welded-steel chamber in Bridgeville, Pa., Universal - Cyclops Steel puts special alloys through forging, rolling and welding tests in an atmosphere of pure argon. The metals can be worked at temperatures up to 4,500 degrees. In the presence of oxygen they would burn completely.

The one worker inside the chambers wears a special space suit to survive. The rest of the job is done by three outside men — all wearing T shirts—who push buttons and pull levers.

At Republic's Canton Ohio, vacuum degassing works, gas impurities are sucked out of molten steel in a special vacuum chamber. One man wearing a heavy overcoat and special goggles tosses sacks of vermiculite into the ladle to form a coating over the molten steel, protecting it from the atmospheric gases.

The other two men on the job sit in a 12-foot-long-control room crammed with dials, switches and gauges.

Workers at Inland's No. 3 open hearth plant in Indiana Harbor, Ind., work on the floor some 50 feet from the furnace door. Yet only three men are needed to operate the furnace which turns out single batches of 330 tons.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company's new tin mill and galvanizing line at East Chicago, Ind., almost seems to run itself. A fully automated assembly - line technique pickles and oils huge coils of steel, uncoils them, tolls them into thinner sheets, galvanizes and anneals them in preparation for shipment.

Recent visitors to the plant—impressed by an operation where no human hand could be detected—rounded a corner to find a suddenly incongruous sight:

Two men, clad in levis and workshirts, were pounding on a huge coil of steel with timbers to bang it into position for a crane.

Well, that's the steel busiing but pick-and-shovel work."
ness today," answered the plant manager with a wink. Noth-

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Don't Attack Teeth, Gums

"Dear Doctor: My mother-in-law constantly embarrasses me by picking her teeth in public. Recently at a birthday party, with about 30 people sitting around the table, she picked her teeth with her place card! Isn't that something?" — MR. AL F.

A — Disgusting is the best word to describe the ungenteel art of picking teeth in public. I know someone who tries to make it less obnoxious and somewhat mysterious, by holding a napkin in front of his face while he pokes his teeth with his fingernail. And there's the guy who uses his tongue as a toothpick, desperately pushing it between his teeth, almost but never quite succeeding in loosening a piece of lobster.

And it's all quite unnecessary. If you get food caught between teeth it indicates that there is no contact between those teeth. And something can be done about it.

Fillings are placed in teeth not merely to fill cavities. They are contoured and carved so they match opposing teeth perfectly and fit against neighboring teeth snugly. This prevents food packing down between them.

In some mouths, contact points between teeth are perfect but shrinkage of the gums has left triangular spaces below the contacts. If this is the case, mechanical means must be employed to get food impactions out. Toothbrushes are probably the best instruments with which to cleanse these these areas. Lacking that, toothpicks and dental floss can be used, but they should be used with caution so as not to injure the gums.

If toothpicks are pushed too vigorously, they become lethal weapons causing irritation, bleeding and infection of the gums. Don't attack your teeth and gums. Use toothpicks to delicately explore the impacted areas, pushing the food out the opposite side.

Dental floss requires even more care. Floss should be held tightly with the fingers about an inch apart. Use a sawing motion to slide it past the contact point. Watch out. If it slips into the gum, OUCH! Don't remove the floss the way it went in. Instead pull one end. If this doesn't get the food out, a loose knot may be tied at one end and then pulled through.

Best of all, let your dentist eliminate food pockets by: adjusting your bite, reshaping fillings and teeth, rebuilding or replacing the offending fillings.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

Highway Commission To Meet Here Tuesday

The Colorado Highway Commission will meet Tuesday with El Paso County Commissioners, city officials and other persons about the state's next highway budget.

Last year delegations from Colorado counties requested $170 million in projects. Only about a third of the construction requests can be granted.

The highway budget for the 1964 - 65 fiscal year provides about $68 million for construction.

The commission will submit its proposed budget to Gov. John A. Love for final approval, probably in June.

Sorority Will Celebrate 90th Founder's Day

Gamma Phi Beta members here at Colorado College and the Colorado Springs alumnae chapter will celebrate the 90th Founder's Day of their sorority with a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Saturday in the Colorado Springs Country Club.

The international sorority was founded Nov. 11, 1874, at Syracuse (N. Y.) University, and from four founders has grown to have college and alumnae chapters in the 50 States and in Canada.

The Colorado College chapter, Alpha Phi, received its charter for 18 members on Oct. 15, 1932.

Mrs. Loring Lennox, a member of Gamma Phi Beta at the University of Denver, was appointed organizer and advisor by the Grand Council.

Graduate alumnae members of Colorado Springs organized an alumnae chapter in 1932; also to assist the college chapter here. Mrs. Lennox, Mrs. Ruth W. Smith, Mrs. Frank H. West, and Mrs. Vera Hebert were charter members and remain active in the organization.

The first three are members of the sorority's Golden Crescent Club in recognition of 50 years of service. Mrs. Hebert has held the office of international province alumnae director for the sorority.

Other chapters are located at the University of Colorado and at Colorado State University.

Camping for deserving girls, 8 through 12, has been a philanthropic program that started in Denver for all chapters. The sorority owns two permanent summer camps, one in British Columbia and the other in Indian Hills west of Denver.

Girls, recommended by welfare agencies, are guests for a two week-camping period made possible by annual "Camping Contributions" from all sorority members.

In acknowledgement of Alpha Phi's 25th anniversary at CC in 1957, the "Lucy Moore Lennox Honor and Service Roll" was established by the Colorado Springs chapter.

A college member is elected annually to receive this honor on the basis of above average scholastic ability, leadership qualities, and constructive service to Gamma Phi Beta. This award is presented as part of the annual Founder's Day service.

Cook's Tour

By JEANNE LESEM
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—A cook who boasts that she never follows recipes exactly is asking for trouble if she tampers with directions for such baked goods as cakes, cookies, bread and ropes.

Even the wrong size or shape pan can cause recipe failure. The size and shape of baking pans affect both the volume and texture of the baked goods, says the utensil committee of the Aluminum Association. The association represents primary manufacturers of aluminum.

Pans with sides too high for the batter they contain prevent good browning. Cakes baked in pans too small for the recipe will run over and acquire burned edges. Baking pans that have darkened through usage will abosorb too much heat, which causes overborwning on bottom and sides of cakes.

Shiny pans such as those made of medium weight aluminum are ideal for most baking, and are easy to keep bright. Three commonly-used sizes of aluminum cake pans are an 8 by 8 by 2-inch loaf pan; 8-inch diameter round layer cake pans 1¼ inches deep; and muffin pans designed for 6, or 8 or 12 medium - sized cupcakes 2-2½ inches in diameter.

Since few home cooks have a full range of pan sizes, here's a substitution list:

Instead of 2 (8 in.) round layers, use 2 thin 8 x 8 x 2- inch square pans or pans to make 18 to 24 cup cakes 2½ inches in diameter.

Instead of 3 (8 - inch) round layers, try 2 squares 9 by 0 by 2-inches each.

2 (9-inch) round layers — 1 rectangle 15 x 10 x 1 inch or 30 cup cakes, 2½-inches in diameter 1 square, 8 x 8 x 2-inches-1.

1 square 9 x 9 x 2 inches—2 thin 8-inch round layers.

1 loaf pan 9 x 5 x 3-inches—1 tube pan 10 x 4-inches.

Most baking pans currently available are stamped with the size. If yours are not, measure with a ruler or yardstick across the bottom of the pan.

Another invitation to failure lies in altering amounts of ingredients, especially such key ones as flour, sugar, shortening or liquid. Some flavoring agents, such as grated orange rind for grated lemon rind, can be substituted successfully. Fresh grapes for raisins can not, even though raisins are dried grapes. Liquid from fresh grapes would throw the recipe off balance.

Doubling a recipe or changing baking time and-or temperature also can spoil a recipe. You'll save money and effort in the long run by making up an exact recipe by exact directions as many times as needed to get the number of servings desired.

Be sure the oven is preheated to the needed cooking temperature before you place filled pans in it. Place them at or near the middle of the oven where the heat is most even; but leave space between pans so that air can circulate freely. If necessary, place pans on different racks, but stagger them so that the no one pan is directly above another.

Resist the impulse to peek before the minimum baking time of 20 minutes — for most cakes —has passed. Don't open the oven door until the last 10 or 15 minutes of baking time for angel food cakes and never shift pans around during the baking period for any cakes.

Two difficulties in baking still may result even if you heed all these warnings. If foods consistently are over or under baked at the end of a recommended cooking time, have the oven temperature control checked for accuracy. And if cakes come out consistently lop-sided, check to see if racks are inserted properly and if the range itself is level.

List Popular Quick Foods

NEW YORK (UPI)—Frozen vegetables, canned soup and instant coffee rank first, second and third, respectively, in research to determine what consumers regard as the most typical convenience foods.

A dozen other product types, listed in order of importance, were: frozen fruit juices, packaged cake mixes, canned vegetables, packaged cereal, frozen dinners, canned juices, canned fruit, frozen seafood, packaged rolls, canned beans, dry soup and canned tuna fish.

The search was preliminary to a study of convenience food usage, made by Drexel Institute of Technology's College of Home Economics under a grant from a soup canner (Campbell Soup Co.) The study was made to determine the contribution of 30 popular convenience foods and their homemade counterparts in terms of cost and preparation time.

Researchers found that seven typical meals using convenience foods took one-quarter of the time to prepare as their homemade versions.

The average convenience food meal in the study cost 23 cents more than a home prepared meal of the same foods.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣

You would probably not expect to encounter the phenomenon of an optical illusion at the bridge table, but it does sometimes occur there, and today's hand is offered as an illustration.

South's final bid is somewhat on the aggressive side, in view of his previously having made a jump shift and a feature bid in diamonds. North's two diamond bid was made as a temporary device and when it elicited a jump in hearts from South there could be no question about the small slam, inasmuch as North held better than an opening bid himself. The four club bid was routine and when South followed up with the four diamond bid I think North could be excused for going the whole way himself if he chose to do so.

The opening lead was the jack of clubs and the ace was, of course, played from dummy. Declarer immediately drew the trumps and then proceeded with the spades in the hope that the suit would break, so that dummy would obtain two diamond discards. When this failed to materialize, a spade had to be ruffled in the North hand and then everything rested with the diamond finesse. When this failed declarer was sunk.

The contract was more or less a cinch and I am sure declarer would have made the hand if he had been sitting in the North seat, and South's hand had been the dummy.

After winning the opening lead declarer should cash the ace and king of trumps to see if there were four in one hand. When this comes off pleasantly, a club should be ruffed in the South hand. North should be entered with the king of spades and the last club ruffed. The ace of spades is then cashed and a low spade ruffed safely with the eight of hearts in the North hand. The last trump is drawn and South discards the two of diamonds. Spades and diamonds take the rest of the tricks. A slight case of dummy reversal.

College Helps Needy Students With Promise

By JOE SARGIS
United Press International

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A new scholarship program aims to reach students who have intellectual promise but little likelihood of going on to college.

It had a trial run this summer at the Berkeley campus of the University of California.

Early analysis of the trial experience indicates it was successful.

The program was created by the faculty committee on special scholarships and was financed jointly by contributions from faculty and staff at Berkeley and U.C. Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, and by matching funds voted by the university regents.

Dr. Owen Chamberlain, professor of physics and 1959 Nobel Prize winner, and Dr. Mark Rosenzweig, professor of psychology, were placed in charge. For their trial run they put 34 students from 11 East Bay High Schools through a seven-week course of special study and exposure to campus life.

The students included only those with good or average grades who were unlikely to go on to college.

"After selecting the students, our first problem was to build up their desire to go to college," explained Dr. Chamberlain. "We tried to do this by giving them a general introduction to campus life, and having them meet and talk with professors.

"Secondly, through summer school, and through tutoring at the university, we tried to help prepare them to meet the university's entrance requirements."

Next summer, they will be put through another summer session, while a new group of 11th graders will begin their first phase.

Ultimately, it is hoped, that students who stick with the program and meet university entrance requirements will be assisted, if necessary, in obtaining employment, loans and scholarship aid.

Dance Spectacular Honors Ruth St. Denis

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — The image of Ruth St. Denis, still the living legend of American dance at 90, flickered on the motion picture screen in the darkened hall.

Draped in the silken costume, a mark of her past, Miss St. Denis said:

"The artist is the priest of beauty as the saint is the priest of truth. These two are the centers around which revolve the progressive levels of a nation."

The screen darkened and almost simultaneously the stage brightened to reveal a ghost-like replica of Miss St. Denis.

Borrowed from a Czechosolovakian form of movie art, this new dance device was originated by William Skipper, of Mobile. A dancer, producer and choreographer, he has appeared in nearly a half dozen Broadway productions and hundreds of television shows.

Skipper's technique, probably the first major diversification in American dance this century, is formally unnamed. In its simplest form, it is film and flesh, a story of love or philosophy or what-have-you put together through mechanics and onstage movements.

Skipper plans to launch his method in December through a series of concerts at universities, art houses and museums.

Miss St. Denis, who adopted Skipper as her only protege about 20 years ago, will play an integral part in the concerts with her dance partner-husband of 50 years, Ted Shawn.

Although they may not appear on stage at many of the performances, it will be Miss St. Denis' life and philosophy which will set the stage for each presentation.

During the early months of the concert Miss St. Denis will introduce each performance, usually by one of two methods.

She may lead into the live portion by talking casually to the audience about her past. The reminiscing will be the cue for the onstage dance. Or Miss St. Denis may accompany the dance throughout by reading her own poetry.

Skipper said there may be still another form; one more closely aligned with the Czechoslovakian method. In this, Skipper will have prepared film of Miss St. Denis in which she will carry on a conversation with her onstage partners or perhaps even direct their interpretation of her dances.

Skipper emphasized the concert will lack a key part of the St. Denis style. There is no dancer, except Miss St. Denis, who can perform her famous "white jade," "yogi," or "black and gold sari."

These are hers alone, he said.

Skipper and his partner, Barbara Andres, of Huntington, N. Y., aim to recreate the dances of Miss St. Denis and Shawn as a living memorial to their contributions to the dance.

At Sagamore Hill, the Long Island home of President Theodore Roosevelt, Thanksgiving dinner was traditional and prodigal. It was heavily loaded with sweets because the president was fond of anything sweet, particularly chocolate. He often put as many as seven lumps of sugar in his coffee.

That note of history comes from the new handsomely illustrated American Heritage Cookbook, an authentic and lively history of eating and drinking in the United States. We rate it as one of the really important book on the origin and development of American food habits. It is scholarly, gay and practical with its 500 traditional recipes and historic menus.

Here's the Thanksgiving menu from Sagamore Hill:

Oysters on the Half Shell
Celery Radishes Olives
Consomme
Roast Turkey with
Chestnut Stuffing Giblet Gravy
Roast Suckling Pig
Cranberry Sauce
Spiced Crab Apples
Spinach Mashed Potatoes
Onions in Cream
Brussels Sprouts
Salad
Mincemeat Pie Pumpkin Pie
Vanilla Ice Cream
Nuts Fruits Chocolate Dragees
Coffee

Sagamore Hill Cranberry Sauce

Pick over and wash 4 cups of cranberries. Combine 2 cups sugar with 1½ cups water, bring to a boil, and cook for 10 minutes. Add the cranberries, cover, and cook until they stop popping. Skim off broth. Cool before serving. Add a dash of cognac if you wish.

Spice in the Dish Pleases the Palate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The day of plain ol' meat and potatoes is on the wane; more and more housewives are willing to take a culinary chance and "live a little."

This is apparent in an increasing awareness and interest on using herbs and spices in all types of daily cooking, says Fred Caliguiri, president of the Spice Islands Co., South San Francisco.

In one recent year, the wholesale value of herbs and spices sold in the United States was $125 million — double that of 20 years ago.

Caligiuri ticks off these reasons: people travel more and are exposed to cosmopolitan cookery; more and more herbs and spices and blends are available on grocery store shelves; doctors don't take such a dim view of spices any more; and since times are better, women don't mind taking a chance on cooking something new.

"If you know the ground rules of using spices, they'll help improve your cooking," he said.

Caligiuri, shose company grew from a "backyard" wine vinegar operation in 1941 to a present-day multi-million dollar spice, herb, tea and vinegar business, said spices are currently popular in preparation of vegetable courses.

"A woman gets tired o fthe same old creamed spinach so she adds a little rosemary and gives it an entirely new character."

The executive offered a short course in spices for the neophyte. The idea is to start modestly, he said, by selecting perhaps six herbs and four spices of distinctly different scent and flavor.

The herbs might be basil or oregano; marjoram or thyme; bay leaves, rosemary, tarragon or savory. Spices could be cardamom or mace; ginger, cumin, or anise seed, spice parisienne.

Before adding them to the recipe, taste the unseasoned base . . . smell the seasoning several times . . and taste the unseasoned product often while cooking.

Gradually, you become more knowledgeable on what ingredients emphasize the national or regional tastes of food. For instance, adding garlic, parsley, basil or oregano to tomato sauce results in an authentic Italian sauce for spaghetti. Or, using curry distinguishes the foods of India.

Some do's and don't's:

—Use restraint. Usually a quarter of a teaspoon of dried herbs or spice is enough for four servings.

—Crush herbs in palm of hand before adding to recipe — and after measuring.

A—Add dried herbs and seasonings to salad dressings, fruits and juices well in advance. This allows flavors time to mingle.

—Balance seasonings. If the main course has an emphatic flavor, be cautious on salad and keep vegetables and dessert simple.

—Don't use the same quantity of dried herbs as fresh. Usually, one teaspoon of dried herbs equals three teaspoons of fresh.

Legion Group Will Meet On Thursday

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water smooth on a little tropical oil of olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive but your drug store should be able to get you a small supply.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Prayer for a Mother

DEAR ABBY: My beloved mother passed away recently, so I called the minister and asked him for the wording of some prayer I could say for my mother, and he said, "I'm too busy — and a lot of good prayer will do her now!" You see, Mamma went to church long ago, but my father never liked to go so Mamma finally quit going. Abby, I can't believe that Heaven is open only to church members. I've called all the book stores in town and they say there aren't any prayers for the dead in any of the prayer books they have. I've heard there are places where you send a few dollars and they pray for the dead, but I don't know their addresses. Abby, I'd be so grateful if you would print a short prayer I could say for my mother before I go to sleep. Any faith is acceptable. I can't let you send it to my home because my father looks over the mail first and I'm sure I'd never get it. Please don't turn down my odd request. It means the world to me. Thank you, and God bless you, Abby. Sign me— A PRAYER FOR MAMMA

DEAR PRAYER: From a Hebrew prayer book: "I remember thee in this solemn hour, my dear mother. I remember the days thou didst dwell on earth, and thy tender love watched over me like a guardian angel. Thou hast gone from me, but the bond which unites our souls can never be severed; thy image lives within my heart. May the merciful Father reward thee for the faithfulness and kindness thou hast shown me; may He lift up the light of His countenance upon thee, and grant thee eternal peace. Amen."

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 56 and I am 55. We have been married thirty years and aside from the usual differences other married couples have, we have had no major marital problems. Yesterday my husband came home from a business trip and flatly announced to me that he was "impotent"! Naturally, my first question was, "How do you know?" He turned red, never said a word, and walked into the other room. Did I do anything wrong? — PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: No. But he probably did.

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive middle - aged woman who lost her husband 7 years ago after 20 years of happy marriage. (No children.) I hold a good position and have an adequate income. The first five years of widowhood I threw myself into my work and shut myself off from the world, socially. Then I started to go out occasionally. Two years ago I met a man I could really love. We had everything in common and it was just like a young first romance. Here's the catch. He told me from the start that he had been deeply hurt once in marriage and he will never marry again. He repeatedly tells me how much he loves me, but marriage is out. He could replace me in a minute because he has much to offer. I know no other man who could compare with him. Am I wise to end it right now? — DISTRESSED

DEAR DISTRESSED: Yes. When a marriage-minded woman is told by the man she loves that marriage is out because he was "hurt" once, she should head for the nearest exit and never look back. His excuse is a poor one, but it always works. Some "deeply hurt" men have been known to recover quickly when they learn that the lady won't have them on any other basis.

DEAR ABBY: I'm tired of reading letters from these tramps who are "in love" with married men whose wives don't understand them, and they're just staying married for the sake of the children.

Maybe a wife knows that her husband is no prize, but the love of a mother for her children takes first place over everything else. If any "other woman" is willing to wait until my children are educated and on their own, she's welcome to my middle - aged old goat, or what's left of him when I'm through with him. — SHEVEPORT

Try Your Hand at Attractive Apron

Look at the remnant counters for an unusual print, percales and drip-drys and make up several aprons for the bazaar, for a gift or for yourself.

The four aprons illustrated can be made from one to 1⅜ yards of 36-inch fabric.

"A" is made from 1⅜ yards of 36-inch plaid-printed percale; "B" needs 1¼ yards of cotton; "C" is made of 1 yard of organdie and ⅜ yard of cotton lace; and "D" takes 1 yard of 36-inch cotton and a pretty motif cut out of drapery remnant.

A — Straighten both crosswise ends of fabric. Tear from one crosswise end two 3-inch strips for waistband and ties. Next, for pockets, tear off a crosswise strip 14¼ inches wide. Divide this into three 12-inch wide strips, as diagram shows. Two of these make the large side pockets; the third one can be used to cover a worn washcloth and make a very nice potholder.

B — Tear off two 3-inch crosswise waistband ties. Tear off one 10-inch crosswise strip. Divide this pocket piece lengthwise into three equal pieces. A hem 2 inches deep is made in the top of two pieces.

The only difference between aprons "A" and "B" is that "A" has deep pockets. These may be shaped at top or not, as you wish. "B" has two less deep pockets on each side. These are made by stitching lengthwise of the apron through the center of "B" pockets after the pocket is in place.

Gather waistline into a space 14 to 16 inches wide. Stitch band on from wrong side; turn it over to the front and stitch down. Continue stitching to end of ties, thus concealing all raw edges. A 2½-inch hem is put in the bottom of each apron.

C — This apron is made the same way as "A" and "B," with these exceptions: Make a 1-inch hem in lace across top. Turn edge of lace under and stitch to each side. Stitch lace lengthwise to divide it into three pockets as shown. Make two rows of stitching in each of the panel lines. Turn hem to right side to catch bottom edge of lace inside hem when it is stitched.

D — Make this apron the same way as "B" except for pockets. Appliqueing is not difficult. Cut carefully, turn edges back evenly and baste neatly. Apply motif by hand or by machine. The machine zigzag attachment is ideal for doing applique work. If you wish, hand-hem top of applique piece and leave top open to serve as a pocket.

STARS IN THEATRE GUILD PLAY — Miss Gloria Green, formerly of Colorado Springs, was featured in a comedy, "Sunday in New York" presented in the Panama Canal Zone, by the Theatre Guild of that area. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Green of Colorado Springs. Several complimentary reviews followed in the papers there. One columnist said: "Gloria Green . . . has far and away the toughest role. She is on stage practically throughout the play, most of the time defending (with gradually increasing apathy) her presumption that she is the only 22 year old girl in all the world whose honor is still intact. The show ran the latter part of October.

Drinking Water Enough?

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Is it true that my feeling of weakness and confusion is caused by not drinking enough water?

A—It could be. Drinking too little water causes some form of dehydration. The result can be a feeling of weakness, also fatigue and dryness of the mouth. Extreme dehydration can result in confusion, too.

Q—How much water should I drink every day?

A—Most nutritionists and doctors recommend from six to eight 8-ounce glasses a day. Tea, coffee, fruit and vegetable juice, carbonated beverages also supply large amounts of water, too, remember. Furthermore, practically all food contains some water, with a few exceptions such as lard.

Good Tailoring Brings Rewards

Learn to tailor beautifully! Learn to stitch straight, to use the right length of stitch for your fabric, and to press.

All are essential to good tailoring.

Wool fabrics — the market is full of beautiful soft flattering ones — beg you to steam and press them, smoothly caress them to place in their seams. You will be fully repaid each time you wear the garment if you tailor it with pride.

Ben Zuckermans is a great house for tailored clothes. His workmen know the art of fine tailoring. Every seam, every lapel, cuff, or pocket is put to place so perfectly that the fabric, silhouette, weave all benefit.

Davidow, another great house, boasts good tailoring. Prove this to yourself by examining a Zuckerman or Davidow in your local store. Norell, Trigere, Vera Maxwell always give evidence of the most expert in tailoring.

For you who would like to "tailor," we show two types of pockets you will surely want to be making very soon. Pockets for your precious "little suit," walking or top coat. . .possibly a skirt. Many skirts shown by top designers have pockets.

To make a wide welt pocket, shown finished in A. Cut a piece of the fabric on same grain as skirt, or jacket or blouse. Make this piece twice the depth you want your pocket, plus 2 inches. Measure the width you want your pocket, make strip this wide plus 1 inch. A piece 5 inches by 10 or 11 inches long is a nice size for a skirt; 6 inches long for a weskit.

Place this, right side of pocket strip to right side of garment "B." Stitch, making a box as shown. Note that you begin at center, stitch to the corners, pivot squarely and continue stitching. Ends should be 1 inch. Sides as wide as you want your pocket, in this case 4¼ inches.

"C" show how you slash the pocket. First mark your line with chalk or basting so that it will be true. Cut as in "C" to within ¾ inch of the ends, then diagonally to each corner. Take care not to cut the pieces that make the pocket.

Turn the pocket pieces to the wrong side, smooth the top welt out so that from the right side it looks like "A."

Bring the pocket piece to place, press carefully, so welt is perfect and the pocket pieces are smooth. Stitch around the outside of the pocket, as in "D." Overcast raw edges together across the top, wrong side as shown. Overcast after stitching around the outside edge of the pocket when it will be finished.

Welt pockets are really easy, like bound buttonholes. If you are not sure, make one in a scrap of fabric for practice.

A double welt is made by bringing the two thicknesses together in the center of the opening, basting to place. Often a row of stitching is made in the joining of pocket and fabric at top of pocket to hold it securely. If a double welt is being made tuck the triangle ends back and catch to the fabric on the wrong side.

Patch Pocket. Many of fashion's smartest coats and skirts — especially the new "walking" jackets with their long, over the hip length, have patch pockets with no stitching showing on the right side. Easy to make really!

To Make a Patch Pocket: Turn the hem to the right side. Bind the turned edge. Stitch each side the depth of the hem. Continue the stitching around the pocket as in "E," stitching on the grain. Turn the seam. Turn the hem to the wrong side. Whip the binding to place, making sure no stitches show through on the right side.

Turn the two sides and bottom back. Do this in line with the hem edge of the pocket and on the true grain of the fabric. Very carefully catch stitch the raw edge to place.

Press the pocket making sure it is straight on the ironing board.

Baste pocket to place, then from the wrong side of the garment, sew the catch stitched seam securely but not tightly to the garment. You may machine-stitch pocket to place, stitching on the edge of two sides and bottom, but the nicer garments have the pockets sewn to place from the wrong side, no stitches showing on the right side.

Fashionettes

United Press International

There's a vast difference between the casual and slob look, says Ron Postal, director of the National Council of Men's Fashions. But many teen-agers, according to the expert, mistakenly think the looks are synonymous.

The blazer trail for Joe College is led by a navy-blue flannel model, double-breasted and featuring silver buttons.

Bill Atkinson, designer of Glen of Michigan togs, sends corduroy to the prom in a long, hooded evening wrap whose swirling fullness falls from a high, gathered back yoke. Zip off the deep hem of this versatile night-into-day model and, presto, it converts to a street-length coat.

The jumpsuit, long a staple item at Abercrombie & Fitch, has turned to the outdoors. Shown at a ski fashion show in the store recently, it was trim as a space suit and well insulated. Big patch handwarmer pockets and elasticized cuffs and ankles make the tog a skier's delight. Suggested for undercover pinnings: cashmere long johns!

REPTILAMANIA SLITHERS ALONG

NEW YORK (UPI) — Make way for reptilamania—a new way of talking that's inspired by all the repitile-looking togs and accessories now popular.

The craze for reptile started in the rarified world of haute couture with alligator coats, lizard hats, snake shoes.

Now there's an aerosol product that sprays a reptile pattern on shoes. It goes on like a polish but breaks up into the snake look.

Future Good For Reweavers

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI)—American smokers are burning holes in their clothes faster than people can be trained to reweave them.

The national shortage of skilled reweavers was cited by Morton Mallin, founder and director of the Eastern School of Reweaving in Hempstead.

He estimated that there are only about 2,000 qualified reweavers in the United States who make their services available to the public. Several hundred more are capable but make repairs only for friends or relatives.

Cigarette and cigar burns, plus moth damage, account for more than 60 per cent of the work brought to reweavers.

Mallin estimated the trade volume of reweaving done in the U.S. at about $20 million a year.

The families of Mallin and his wife, Gloria, were reweavers for generations. She assists him in grading the work of students who require a great deal of practice.

"Theory is fine," he said, "but experience is more important."

Prune Kuchen Fin e Autumn Brunch

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A freind in Evansville, Ill., sends us her Aunt Ella's recipe for Prune Kuchen.

Although we have never met Aunt Ella, we are convinced she must be the kind of aunt everyone hopes for, judging from her recipe.

Aunt Ella's Prune Kuchen
(2 9x13-inch kuchens)

1 cake compressed or 1 pkg. dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
¾ cup milk scalded
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
3 to 3½ cups sifted all - purpose flour
2 eggs
1 cup rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
1 cup dairy sour cream
Cinnamon-sugar
1½ cups pitted cooked prunes

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour scalded milk over sugar, salt and shortening; stir occasionally until shortening melts. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 cup flour and eggs; add softened yeast and oats. Stir in enough more flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; cover; let rest 10 minutes. Divide dough in half. Pat or roll out each half to form 9x13-inch rectangle. Place each in lightly greased 9x13-inch baking pan. Brush with melted shortening; cover and let rise until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes.

Spread half of sour cream on each kuchen. Sprinkle lightly with cinnamon - sugar mixture. Dot with cooked prunes. Bake (375 degrees) about 30 minutes. Serve warm or cold.

Jackson-Trujillo Rites Held at Sacred Heart

Miss Marcella Louise Trujillo became the bride of Michael Larry Jackson in a double ring ceremony Oct. 10 in Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church. The Rev. George Julian, O. M. I., officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Zeke Trujillo, 15 S. Limit St., and Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson, New Brighton, Pa.

Mr. Trujillo gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore a gown of heavy satin designed with a sweetheart neckline and fingertip sleeves with matching satin shoes. Her shoulder length veil cascaded from a flat flowered pearl crown and she wore a pearl necklace, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Patricia Hoeckel, matron of honor, wore blue net with chiffon over lace in a street length style, with matching accessories. She carried large white mums with touches of small shattered mums and wore a pearl necklace, a gift of the bride.

The bridesmaids, Miss Avona Hansen and Miss Marbella Ulibari, wore similar costumes, with floral arrangements identical to the matron of honor, and pearl necklaces, also gifts of the bride.

Hans Hoeckel attended the bridegroom as best man and ushers were Jerry Trujillo the bride's brother, and John Rourge.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Ray Latham, Miss Sandy Latham, Miss DelAnn Latham, and Miss Sally Latham. Decorations followed a blue and white color scheme with white bell streamers.

The bride is a graduate of Palmer High School and attended Blair Business College. The bridegroom was graduated from New Brighton High School and Colorado College. The couple is living at 1110 Fifth Ave., Beaver Falls, Pa.

The newest teen-age tog fad: Army surplus hooded raincoats. The boxy, seven-eighth coats are being worn by both sexes.

In men's slacks and walking shorts the key words for spring are permanent press, textured blends, more belt loops, and self belts, the National Association of Men's Sportswear Buyers reports. The no-iron permanent press fabrics are in polyester-cotton blends as well as cotton-nylon cloths. Many self belts have brass buckles. Some makers offer ribbon sportswear belts in regimental colors and stripes.

Haute Cuisine Canned Salmon Goes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

"Why can't American women learn to make a decent white sauce? They use the sauce constantly in scalloped and au gratin dishes, but it usually looks and tastes like library paste."

That's the complaint of critics of our cooking.

Is there some truth in the criticism?

Yes, but less than there used to be.

As American cooks are becoming better acquainted with the great dishes of the world, they are learning to use the methods of fine old-world chefs.

In making a sauce of this sort, a chef often varies the cooking liquid. Americans are used to dumping in milk and calling it a day. Chefs are likely to use beef, veal, chicken or fish stock for part of the milk; and they may wind up by adding a little cream. It's astonishing what small amount — 2 to 4 tablespoons — of cream can contribute.

And last, chefs add extra seasonings — not necessarily herbs or spices.

If you're interested in a recipe that takes these points into consideration, you may wish to try this really excellent rule for Salmon Au Gratin. The liquid from a can of salmon replaces part of the milk for the white sauce, and a little cream is added. Onion and fresh mushrooms yield their flavor; so does ua coup-con of sherry. A topping of grated Parmesean cheese is the last mouth-watering touch.

Salmon Au Gratin

Milk
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup finely chopped onion
½ cup sliced mushrooms
6 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
¼ cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons pale dry sherry
½ cup grated Parmesean cheese

Drain salmon liquid into a pint measure and add enough milk to make 2 cups; heat to simmering. Break up and reserve salmon.

In a saucepan, melt the butter over low heat; add onion and mushrooms; cook until onion is wilted — about 5 minutes. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add the simmering milk mixture; cook and stir until thickened; cover and cook for 5 minutes, keeping heat very low. Stir in cream and sherry; remove from heat.

Turn reserved salmon into 4 shirred egg dishes or 6 by 2 inch individual pie dishes; pour over the sauce; sprinkle with Parmesean. Bake in a moderate (375 degrees) oven for 15 minutes; run under broiler for a few minutes or until top is brown and crusty. Garnish with lemon and parsley.

Build Buffet Around Glazed Ham

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

We went to a football game recently in Hanover, N.H. The afternoon was clear and brisk and the game hard-fought. Then to a buffet party at a friend's home. A crackling log fire, sturdy food—baked ham, baked beans and Boston brown bread—and enormous appetites.

The pineapple glaze gave the baked ham a pleasant extra taste, plus a festive look. It was spooned on frequently during the last hour of baking. The frequent spooning, our hostess said, helps build up the glaze on the ham.

The ham, crock of beans, basket of Boston brown bread, butter, plates and silver were on one firm table. The coffee and cups, beverages, ice and glasses on a separate table. A good buffet party idea to prevent confusion.

Spicy Pineapple Glaze
(3 cups)

1 (13½-ounce) can crushed pineapple
1 (12-ounce) can apricot pineapple nectar
¼ cup catsup
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

Combine all ingredients, heat just to simmering. Spoon on ham, small amount at a time, during last 30 to 40 minutes of baking.

Value of Diamonds Soars with the Demand

By GEORGE WEEKS
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—There is good news today for the man who shuddered at paying $300 for his wife's half-carat engagement ring in early 1963.

A similar ring today costs $360.

The African News Digest of the Farrell Lines reports that a sudden spurt of diamond buying by middle class women in such European countries as Britain, France and West Germany "has put an alarming drain" on the gem diamond stock in Africa.

"To compound this run," the Digest said, "is the always steady purchases by the United States market plus the large numbers of investors in South America, Asia, and some European countries who recently have been converting currency into diamonds as a hedge against inflation or political uncertainties.

"It has been reported that speculators in Hong Kong last year imported $8 million tf cut diamonds from the United States, presumably for resale to other Asian countries. In 1962, this trade was valued at $3.6 million. A scant $1.7 million of stones changed hands in 1961." The Digest reported that price increases all the way from the producer level to retail have had practically no effect in slowing sals.

The article quoted Harry F. Oppenheimer, chairman of De Beers Consolidated Mines, the world's largest gem producer, as saying, "We are indeed experiencing some difficulty at present in meeting the general demand."

Daniel B. Frey, of the U.S. House of Harry Winston, Inc., reported, "They claim they are putting on the market all they can produce, but that isn't enough."

To meet the demand, De Beers is reopening its original mine which has been closed since 1908.

"At other old mines," the Digest said, "the 'tailings' or refuse from former mining operations are being sifted in the tremendous hunt for marketable stones."

Mining teams are speeding up digging operations on the 240 miles of beaches of South West Africa where millions of carats of diamonds lie under the sand.

The De Beers affiliate that markets 80 per cent of the world's rough gem and industrial stones boosted gem prices twice in the past 18 months—5 per cent in March, 1963, and 10 per cent last February.

Wholesale prices for cut or finished diamonds in the United States have climbed as much as 25 per cent since the start of 1963, according to the Diamond Manufacturers and Importers Association of America, Inc.

The 70-carat "idol's eye," bought at auction for $375,000 in November, 1962, was said to be held for sale at a minimum price of $600,000 today.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I have read several hints on ways to tell double sheets from single sheets without taking them down from the shelf and unfolding them

They were good hints but . . . I think I've found the simplest way yet!

Why not "fold" your double sheets in the usually way, then "roll" all your single sheets?

Without removing any of the sheets from the shelf, you can tell at a glance which size is which!

Of course, if you happen to prefer to roll the double sheets and fold the single ones, you just go right ahead, and do it that way!! —Gussie

Dear Heloise:

Since my children have such a short lunch period at school, they sometimes neglect to wash their hands before eating lunch.

To make sure that they do wash their hands, I tuck a slightly damp washcloth into a small plastic bag and close it securely. I put this bag just inside the lunch box lid, and it is the first thing the children take out when they open their lunch. —Helen

Dear Heloise:

I would like to pass on my way of getting that large, holiday turkey out of the pan and onto the platter.

I put an oven mitt on each hand and slip a plastic bag over them. I just lift the bird out and put it on the platter . . —Fran Brown

Wonderful! When you try to take a turkey of of the roaster by using two large kitchen forks, you quite often break the turkey, and it doesn't come out whole and attractive.

Just be sure the plastic bags are heavy ones which won't melt when they come in contact with the hot turkey, or the sides of the roaster.

Happy holidays, Fran, and thanks loads. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I do a lot of sewing and always dreaded making blouses and dresses (especially party dresses) from nylon, silk, or other slippery materials.

The material was always slipping and often slid off the machine onto the floor.

Then I took a smart pill!

I slip a pillow case over the leaf of my sewing machine, and the material stays right where I want it. —Martha H.

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

I am sick of people telling me how to peel onions!

I just peel and chop my onions, cry or weep, feel better . . and blow my nose! —F. L.

Dear Heloise:

Since I do not have a dishwasher (except for my teenager, I cannot answer the article regarding washing fine china.

However, I do believe that many women mistreat their china when getting it "ready" for washing.

One should never scrape off leftovers. Always remove them with a paper towel or napkin. "Never" use steel wool or abrasive cleansers that might scratch the protective glaze on the china.

And, never slide one plate onto another as they may also scratch the glaze. "Set" one plate on top of another gently. —Marge

And we'll have "bushels" of dirty dishes during the holidays, eh? —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

After washing heavy winter jackets, I stuff tissue paper or clean towels into the sleeves and hood of the jacket

This way the air gets in and speeds the drying; also, the stuffing helps them to retain their shape. Really great. —Etnyl

I also learned, after trying this, that you can salt and pepper the French fries before shaking them and it will be distributed beautifully.

And say—did you ever try shaking shoe string potatoes in a bag of flour (like we do chicken) before frying them? Great! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I hang a four-tier skirt hanger on a nail in the closet to prevent misplacing scarves, caps, mittens, and gloves. . .

The children's little gloves and mittens clip to the lower hangers where they can be reached easily. —Mrs. Jesse N. Bandy

Dear Heloise:

Before doing my laundry, I dampen a sheet or a large towel with water, put it over the radiator, and blow the dust out of the radiator with the blower on my vacuum cleaner.

The dust from the radiator will stick to the wet cloth, and I then throw the sheet or towel in the wash.

By keeping the radiator clean and free of dust it also helps keep the walls and ceiling clean near the radiator. —Dorothy B.

Dear Heloise:

Sometimes an egg will break in the carton causing some of the others to stick, thus making it almost impossible to get them out of the carton without breaking them. . .

When this happens I run cold water in the carton and allow it to stand for a little while. The water soaks under the shells, making it easier to remove the rest of the good eggs! —Mrs. V. Cotte

Dear Heloise:

When buying new pajamas for children, get a size larger than required. Then thread elastic through the hems at wrists and ankles.

Dear Heloise:

I find that swishing a piece of nylon net around in the milk bottles gets off the ring that milk sometimes leaves.

When someone drinks a glass of milk and the glass is not rinsed right away, I use the nylon net to remove the ring by putting the piece of nylon in first, then the dishcloth and using both to clean the glass.—Reader

And you can believe it. It works! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When shag rugs begin to wear, I cut them up and sew them to fit over my standard-frame duts mops.

I also make old rug-bags and slip them over my brooms. They are handy to dust down walls, door lintels, etc.

Also fine for polishing! —Lazybones

My goodness, Miss Agnes (I "know" her name isn't Agnes!), how could you be so bright as to think of that one? —Heloise

Letter Of Laughter? No!

Dear Heloise:

A tip to the weary housewife, or any person with tenseness or muscular soreness:

When the final spin of your automatic washer starts, seat yourself (preferably on the floor) with your shoulder blades pressed firmly against the side or front of the machine.

The warm vibration gives you a wonderful, free therapeutic massage . . . you will feel wonderful. —Mrs. Ken Dickerson

Mrs. America's Plea: There's a Time to Spank

By WEBER F. TROUT
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI)—Mrs. America, Desree Jenkins, knows why many children have no respect for their mothers and fathers, for law and order.

"They don't because they've noe felt the sting of parental authority where it does the most food," she said in an interview.

To the parents of growing children, she says:

'Don't hesitate to spank them if they need it."

Mrs. Jenkins, of Columbia, S.C., practices what she preaches.

"My children have been brought up to know it's wrong to act ugly, to misbehave, or to talk back to their elders," she said. "And if they do, they know they deserve to be punished — and that they will be."

"I am not a permissive parent. To me, that is the wrong way to raise children."

Mrs. Jenkins and her husband, a real estate man, have a son, 13, and a daughter, 12.

She said sparing the rod can be a big mistake for all concerned—the children, the parents, and ultimately, society.

When should a child be spanked? What kind of offense is serious enough?

"If my children sass me or talk back," Mrs. Jenkins said, "I get out the belt and I use it."

Mrs. Jenkins was selected as the nation's ideal housewife at St. Petersburg, Fla., after 10 days of competition with champion homemakers from the 49 other states and the District of Columbia.

Married at 18, she is a part-time model but prefers the role of housewife and mother to any other.

"I love to wash windows," she said, "and do all the other things a woman must do around the house."

Instant Bacon Cookery Ahead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bacon that cooks in a pop-up toaster may be just around the corner.

Aluminum foil pouches that make possible this unusual method were among packaging developments described at the annual Newspaper Food Editors. Conference here by a spokesman for a major aluminum manufacturer, Reynolds Metals Co.

Pre-cooked bacon sealed in such pouches heats quickly and crisply in a toaster, once the top is clipped from the pouch.

Other ideas from the firm's research laboratories include fancy frozen prepared breakfasts in divided foil trays and an apple pie mix—freeze-dried apples, sugar and spices in one foil pouch, ready-to-roll pie crust dough in another.

A sample breakfast suggested consisted of omelet, sausage patties and glazed apple rings, all of which would heat to serving temperature in 25 minutes in a 400-degree oven.

The packaging outlook also includes attractive heat-and-serve containers and more packages designed for storage of leftovers.

Now Is the Time to Refurbish Coats

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

So many questions have come about repairing coat linings, using bits and pieces of fur, cutting fur, etc., that I group them here together.

If you must repair a coat lining at neck and wrists, choose nylon velvet in a color to match the original lining, a piece ⅛-yard wide usually is enough.

Pin a piece of wrapping paper big enough to cover the frayed parts over them. Cut a yoke-shaped pattern piece for the neck, bands for the sleeves. Make sure your paper lies smooth. Use this pattern to cut your repair pieces. Turn raw edges of the pieces under, baste the edge. Catchstitch these pieces to place on sleeves and neck. Do the work as neatly as possible, because the lining shows sometimes too much when coat is removed, and your repair should look as by intent rather than necessity.

How to make an interjacket for warmth is a question frequently asked. Quickest way is to examine and copy a removable interlining — so many now are zipped in. Lacking this, make a pattern from any plain blouse or dress pattern. Cut a lining from this, fit it to you and to your jacket or coat. Be sure it is large enough. Use polished cotton, rayon satin or crepe or nylon velvet for this. Take scraps of very warm pieces of wool or an old sweater or skirt, an old blanket is excellent, or a no longer usable suede jacket.

Fit scraps to the wrong side of the lining, catch edges together so there are no overlaps to add bulk.

After all scraps are in place quilt the lining to the scraps as we show. Quilt from the right side so your rows will be straight.

Finish edges of neck, armholes, front and lower edge with bias seam binding or a facing of the lining fabric or grosgrain ribbon.

Such an interlining may be tacked to place or zipped to a coat at the center fronts.

Economy uses for fur: It seems readers have bits of fur left from remodeling a coat, a stole, muff, or neckpiece. They ask how to use this as trimming for a coat, especially children's coats.

Many use fur successfully and really add to the value of a garment. First, make a pattern exactly the size you want plus seams. Place the fur face down on a piece of wood or very thick cardboard. Thumtack it at intervals as shown. Outline your pattern on the fur pelt. Remove patterns, then with a razor blade cut on the marked lines. Cut pelt only, try to avoid cutting the fur. When you are ready to sew, use a long machine stitch, stitch a scant ⅛-inch outside your pattern seam line. Where you must sew by hand, use an overhand stitch, and make stitches a very scant ⅛-inch apart.

Use bits of fur as a straight 1-inch wide finished band around the neck, on sleeves, at top of pockets. Band a cap or beret with strips of fur. Study the fashion magazines and you will see many suggestions for using fur as trimming.

A No. 7 crewel needle is good for hand sewing fur. It is fine enough to avoid a too large hole in the pelt and the long eye carries your thread through smoothly.

It is good to line fur bands with grosgrain ribbon. Let the selvage of the ribbon barely extend beyond the fur, so easy to catch this to fabric of the garment, and it is equally as easy to sew the fur to the ribbon.

If you have really valuable fur and are not using leftover scraps, by all means take your fur to an expert who can recondition, restyle and often restore a worn fur to gratifying newness.

Safety Expert Wheels Along Though Retired

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Amos E. Neyhart has placed eight million persons in the driver's seat.

Renowned as the father of driver education and the nation's "No. 1 safety salesman," Neyhart retired recently as director of the Institute of Public Safety at the Pennsylvania State University after 35 years service. He had been an assistant professor of industrial engineering.

Although Neyhart has been named director emeritus of the institute, it's no pipe-and-slipper routine in his future. He is bent on continuing his crusade to improve driving.

In 1933, Neyhart dug into his own pocket to pay initial bills and used his own car to conduct the first high school driver education course in the nation. The pla started at the State College (Pa.) High School after three years of planning.

Since that time eight million high school students have taken driver education courses.

Neyheart said research from 40 studies show that students who complete the driver education courses average 50 per cent fewer violations and accidents than similar groups with no instruction.

He helped the Yugoslav government establish 19 training centers in traffic education in 1961.

Neyhart predicts that in the future every driver, regardless of age, will be required by law to present a certificate showing he has successfully completed a driver education course, both in classroom and practice driving.

He also predicts that future interstate highways will be so well designed that they will save "9,000 lives annually."

Here's Real Sweet Tooth Satisfier

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Honey Crunch Sundae Pie

1½ cups honey flavored puffed wheat
¼ cup honey
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup flaked coconut, toasted
1 quart vanilla ice cream
Creamy Fudge Sauce

Place cereal in greased bowl and set aside. Combine honey, sugar, and salt in saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring to dissolve sugar. Continue boiling until a small amount of syrup forms a firm ball in cold water (or to a temperature of 246 degrees). Add butter. Pour syrup over cereal in bowl, stirring lightly to coat. Add toasted coconut, combining quickly. Press mixture gently on bottom and sides of well-greased 9-inch pie pan. Chill. Fill with vanilla ice cream and serve with Creamy Fudge Sauce.

Creamy Fudge Sauce
(1 1-3 Cups)

3 squares unsweetened chocolate squares
½ cup light cream
¾ cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoons butter
Dash of salt
¾ teaspoon vanilla

Place chocolate and cream in saucepan. Place over low heat and stir constantly until chocolate is melted and mixture is blended. Add sugar, butter, and salt and continue cooking, stirring constantly, 3 to 5 minutes longer, or until slightly thickened. Remove from heat and add vanilla. Serve warm or cool.

NOTE: Store, covered, in refrigerator. Before serving, place bowl of sauce in hot water and stir until smooth.

Cook's Tour

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK (UPI)—Calvin Coolidge was so thrifty a president that he limited the quantity of ice water and the number of paper cups in which to serve at official White House receptions.

"Silent Cal" told an aide he took this step so guests wouldn't stand around all evening drinking instead of going home.

Coolidge was by no means the only penurious president, according to Janet Halliday Ervin's "The White House Cookbook" (Follett). James K. Polk's first lady, Sarah, served no refreshments at all at twice-weekly White House receptions, but set a good table at home in Tennessee.

A Christmas dinner menu for the Polk menage there consisted of oyster soup, celery, turkey, homemade wafers, ham, spiced round, salsify (a root vegetable), caramel sweet potatoes, pickles, rice, cranberry sauce, blazing plum pudding, wine jelly, charlotte russe, grapefruit salad, fruit cake, nuts, raisins, wine and coffee.

Many of the menus, recipes, and health, household and beauty hints in the new book were in the original, published in 1887. The authors were White House steward Hugo Ziemann and Mrs. Fanny Gillette, a domestic science expert.

Some of the health and etiquette advice would give nightmares to modern physicians and psychiatrists. On the etiquette question, they wrote:

"Absolute suppression of emotion, whether of anger, laughter, mortification, or diappointment, is one of the most certain marks of good breeding."

On avoiding wrinkles:

"The best advice is to go on a diet of milk, beer, and cake in order to grow fat and thus extend the skin to its full tightness."

Presumably, the same end could be accomplished if one received invitations to Martin Van Buren's "small, beautifully appointed and snobbish dinners" prepared by the chef he'd brought from London. Even this didn't satisfy some guests.

One winter, guests were said to have complained about the monotony of the menus and entertainment.

Official entertaining reached what the author calls "a new high" during the Buchanan administration. It began with this menu at the inaugural ball: 400 gallons of oysters, 60 saddles of mutton, 4 saddles of venison, 125 beef tongues, 75 hams, 500 quarts each of chicken salad and jellies, 1,200 quarts of ice cream, a four-foot cake and $3,000 of wine.

The Ulysses S. Grants also lived well. Among three menus included from Grant's administrations was one for a birthday dinner for the president. It began with clams, continued to crab soup, assorted appetizers, fish, beef filet, chicken, veal sweetbreads and squab, each with appropriate vegetables or fruit; several desserts, coffee and four different wines with the first four courses.

The Grant family's interest in food didn't stop with their White House days. After the Russian Revolution, the president's granddaughter and her husband a former Russian count, opened a restaurant in London.

Fit For A President

"Take two to four spring chickens well trussed and cleaned. Rub them over with flour and salt and fill them with the following stuffing: 24 tea rusks, well crushed; 2 or 3 tablespoonfuls of butter, 1 or 2 yolks and 6 tablespoonfuls of parsley. All these ingredients awell mixed together. Then roast the stuffed chickens in a half pound of butter. When ready, serve them with melted butter in which a good quantity of tea rusk crumbs have been mixed. This butter is poured over as a sauce. Serves six persons."

Pikes Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

Two weeks ago I wrote in this column the story of the J. H. Bruening family, in Ivywild. It has borught me several calls and also this letter, which follows:

My Dear Miss Foster,

"I read a lot of your Pikes Peak yesterdays because they are so interesting but none was more interesting than the one you wrote about the Bruenings. I knew Harry for a long time when he was night man at Fountain Valley School. I would ride to town with him in the mornings and back again in the evenings for almost seven years until he had his eye trouble. And, then when you mentioned the song the 'Birdies Ball.' I learned that song in my first year at school in 1892 in Iowa. It goes like this:

" 'Spring once said to the night-n-gale,
I mean to give you birds a ball;
Pray ma'am asked the birdies all,
The birds and the birdies great and small;
Soon they came from bush and tree,
Singing sweet their songs of glee;
Each one fresh from it's cozy nest,
Each one dressed in his Sunday best;
The Wren and Cookoo danced for life,
The Raven waltzed with the Yellow bird's wife;
The awkward Owl and the bashful Jay,
Wished each other a very good day;
A Woodpecker came from his hole in the tree,
And brought his bill to the company;
For the cherries ripe and the berries red,
T'was a very long bill so the birdies said;
They danced all day till the sun was low,
Till the mother birds prepared to go;
Then each one both great and small,
Flew home to their nests from the Birdies Ball.'

"Between each verse we sang Tra La La several times.

"We knew of course that the birds did not crowd into their nests at dark and we knew too that we never met up with a bashful Jay. They were the most impudent of all the birds who came to our ranch. And, father one time asked Edith and me to sit on the fence of the corn crib and throw cobs at the Jays. It did little good as the Jays came back as soon as we left the corn crib. But, in spite of all this we enjoyed the song."

The following has been sent by Mrs. Alvin Bruening and we will give you the story here as it was written by Emma Bruening while attending Cheyenne School:

"I am living in Colorado Springs, Colorado, and in the county of El Paso.

"In twenty years from now I will be 34 years old.

"Probably in twenty years from now people will not use railrods, horses or wagons, the people will have something made instead of them.

"And there may be an engine that will go 100 miles an hour.

"In twenty years from last Sunday, January 1, 1899 we will be in the year 1919.

"And trees that are 19 feet high now will be quite large trees in twenty years if they keep on growing.

"If Colorado Springs grows as fast in the next twenty years as it has in the last twenty years it will be a quite large town.

"In twenty years from now the people will have boats made to run by electric and have the wheels of a bicycle and it would run on land as well as in water.

"The miners will have machines made to run by power and they will set their machines where they want them."

Israeli Consul General Slated To Speak Here

Mordechai Shalev, consul general of Israel for the western United States, will speak at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Olin Lecture Hall at Colorado Springs.

The lecture, sponsored by the International Relations Club and the college's Public Lectures Committee, will be open to the public without charge.

Shalev was born in Czechoslavia and attended school there as well as in the United States. He received his higher education at Masaryk University and at the American University, Washington, D. C., where he earned a master's degree in international relations.

The consul general settled in Israel in 1939, and during World War II served as a lieutenant in the British Army. He worked as a newspaperman and government official and during Israel's War of Liberation he served as the adjutant of an infantry brigade in Jerusalem.

Shalev joined the Israel Foreign Ministry in 1949 and has since held a variety of positions in Israel and abroad — at the Israel Embassy in Washington, D. C. as spokesman and press officer of the Foreign Ministry, and as head of the Director General's Office.

In June of 1961 he was assigned his present post as Consul General of Israel for the western United States.

Truman Says MacArthur Did Not Obey

By LARRY FRIEDMAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman has renewed his conflict with the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur who, he says, "thought he was greater than the President of the United States."

Truman dismissed MacArthur as Far East commander in 1951 during the Korean War after accusing him of insubordination.

In a taped interview shown over some 50 television stations Friday night, Truman fired off some sharply critical comments about the general, who died in April at the age of 84.

The 80 - year - old Truman called MacArthur an egotist, contending that the general's occupation rule in Japan after the war brought it out.

"He seemed to have the notion that without him the whole country would collapse," Truman said.

He related the disagreements he had with MacArthur over tactics in Korea and said he came close to firing him on two occasions.

Truman said he was anxious to discuss matters with MacArthur and the two finally met at Wake Island.

"And when he came there, some of the boys said he didn't even salute me," Truman said. "I didn't give a damn whether he saluted me or not. What I was interested in was to get him in a position where I could talk to him."

After a full discussion of the Korean War, Truman said, MacArthur assured him "in no uncertain terms, that Red China would not come into Korea."

"And I went home feeling very, very good about the situation," Truman said, adding that he made a speech in San Francisco commending MacArthur.

"I told the American people and the world that the thing was in control in the Far East and that I didn't think the Chinese were coming into Korea. And then, you know what happened."

In his memoirs, published shortly before his death, MacArthur said he did not tell Truman Red China would stay out of the war. "This is a prevarication," MacArthur wrote in reply to Truman's earlier assertions on the Wake Island meeting.

In his book, MacArthur said "artificial restrictions" had been placed on his conduct of the Korean War, preventing victory.

Truman said he and MacArthur came to grips over pursuit of Chinese planes north of the Yalu River.

On this point, Truman said:

"When MacArthur faced up to me and told me that he wanted to fight an all-out war in the Far East, I told him it couldn't be done...I had to watch the whole world and be sure that the free world was not invaded by the Russians in an endeavor to make the whole world Communist."

He said that when MacArthur sent a telegram of "congratulations to the commander of the American Legion, urging that bombs be dropped in Manchuria," that was the last straw.

"That really burned me up," Truman said. "This was a flat challenge to the authority of the President of the United States. I had to make a decision on what to do about a general who had been insubordinate."

BULLS VS. STEERS

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Dairy scientists at Pennsylvania State University have found that it is cheaper and takes less time to raise bulls for marketing than it does to raise steers Traditionally steers have been raised because they were easier to handle and put on more fat, which was considered desirable.

However, with housewives now preferring meat with less fat, and with bulls no less manageable than steers if marketed at a young age, the change is to bulls. The Penn State experiments found that bulls weighed 800 pounds at 10 months, while steers took 11 months. In addition, the bulls ate 414 pounds less feed than steers to reach slaughter weight, and had a higher percentage of desirable cuts.

State Highway Commission to Start Hearings

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — Colorado counties and cities will get their chance, starting Monday, to ask for a share of about $70 million which the state will spend building highways next fiscal year.

The Colorado Highway Commission will open three days of hearings into requests of communities for road improvement. The hearings will take place at the commission's office in the Highway Department Building in southeast Denver.

Actually, only a fraction of the $70 million for construction will be available for allocation among the counties by the commission, says Chief Engineer Charles E. Shumate, because most of the money is committed to projects on the multilane Federal Interstate Highway System. The federal government pays 90 per cent of the cost of these Interstate Highway projects.

Shumate said at least 55 requests from counties for time during the hearings have been received by the department.

After hearing the requests, the unpaid commission will work with departmental officials during the next few months to draft a budget. This budget will be sent to Gov. John A. Love by next May 15, and he has until mid-June to act upon it. He may sign it as drawn, delete items or cut the size of any allocation of funds, but he cannot add items or increase the amount for any project. By law, the budget is secret until signed by the governor and released by him.

It will total over $90 million, including money for debt servicing, maintenance, administration and other items.

In recent years, the commission has adopted the practice of submitting supplemental construction budgets during the year to make changes as needed to keep abreast with current conditions.

The commission probably will take time out during its three-day session to consider highway financing problems. Revenue estimates indicate the state will fall short of having money to match all federal funds available.

Shumate said, however, the shortage for next fiscal year is expected to be comparatively small — only "a few hundred thousand dollars." A more serious shortage of matching funds is expected for the 1966-67 fiscal year.

RUHR SPLIT LEVEL ROAD

STUTTGART — A split-level highway will be built in the Ruhr area in the not too distant future. The preliminary plans for this "Expressway" above the present existing highway between Oberhausen and Leverkusen have now entered an acute stage of development.

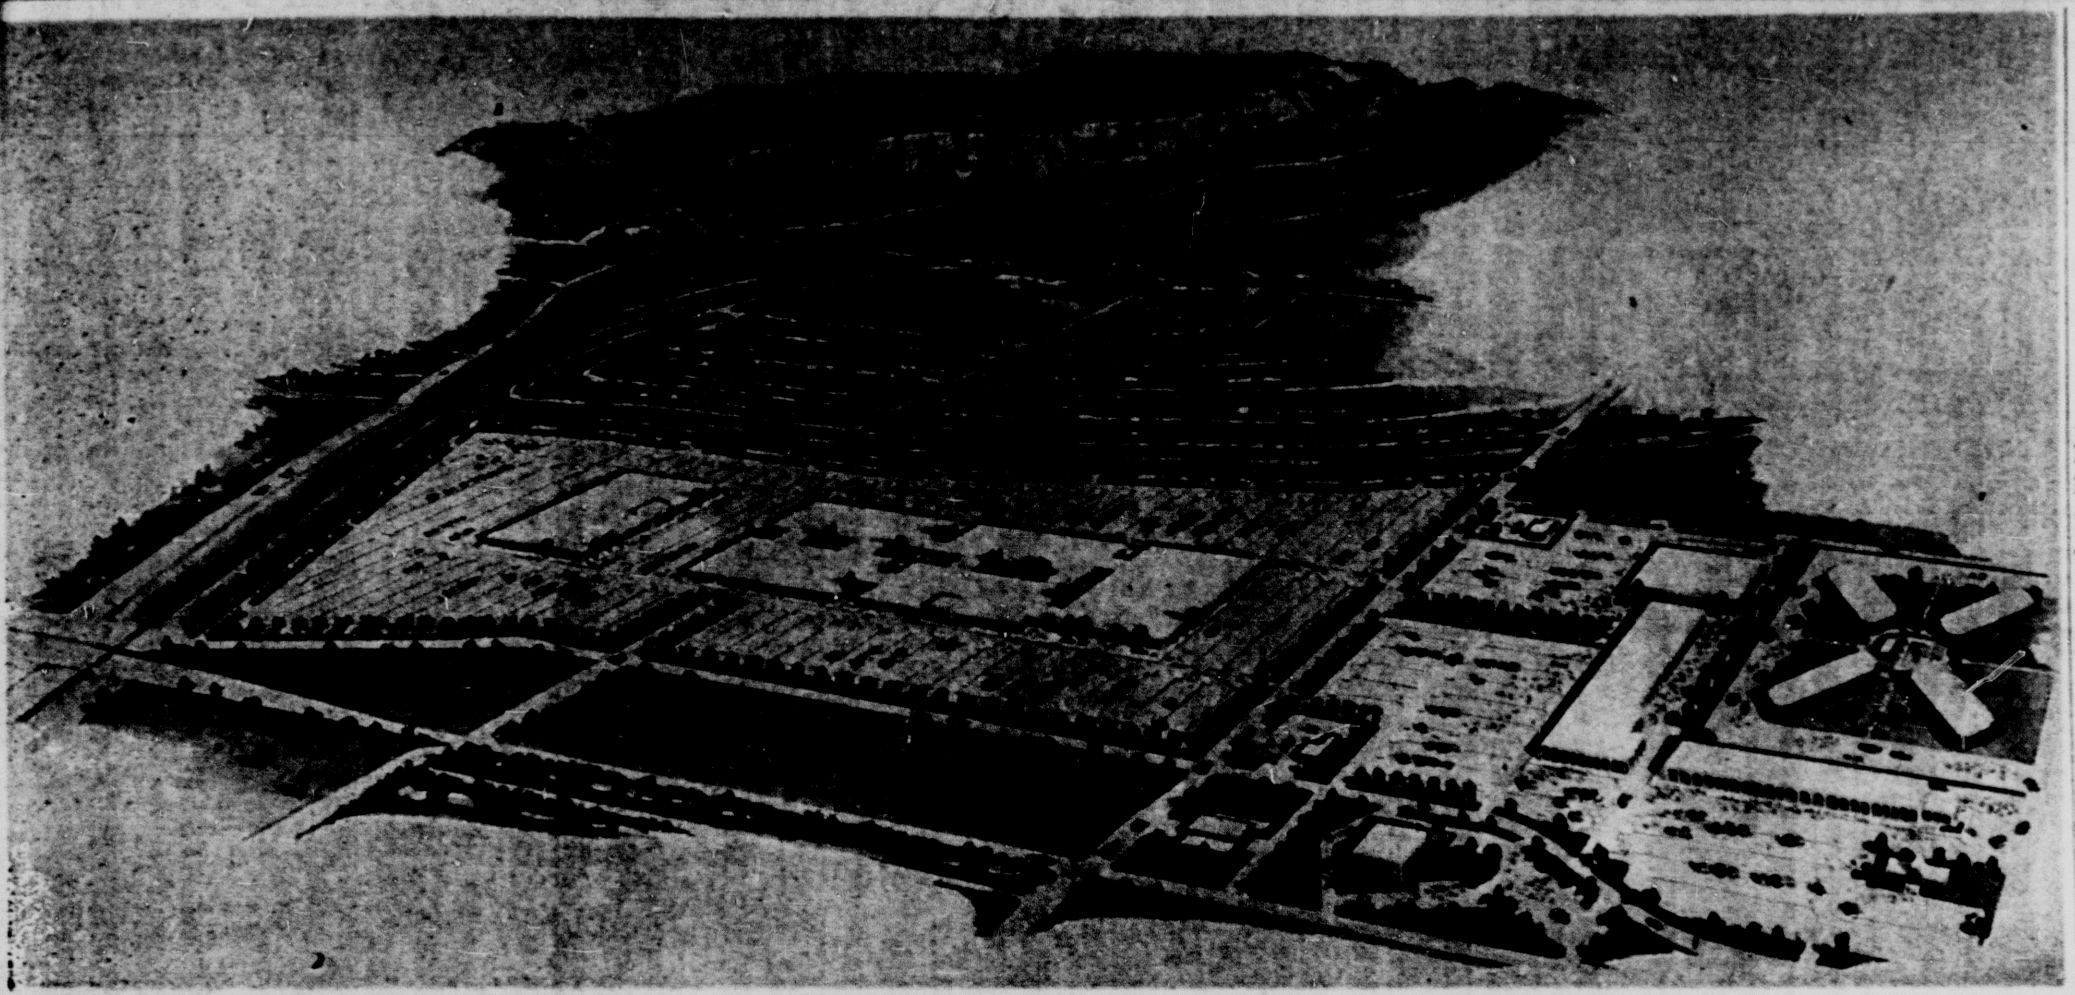
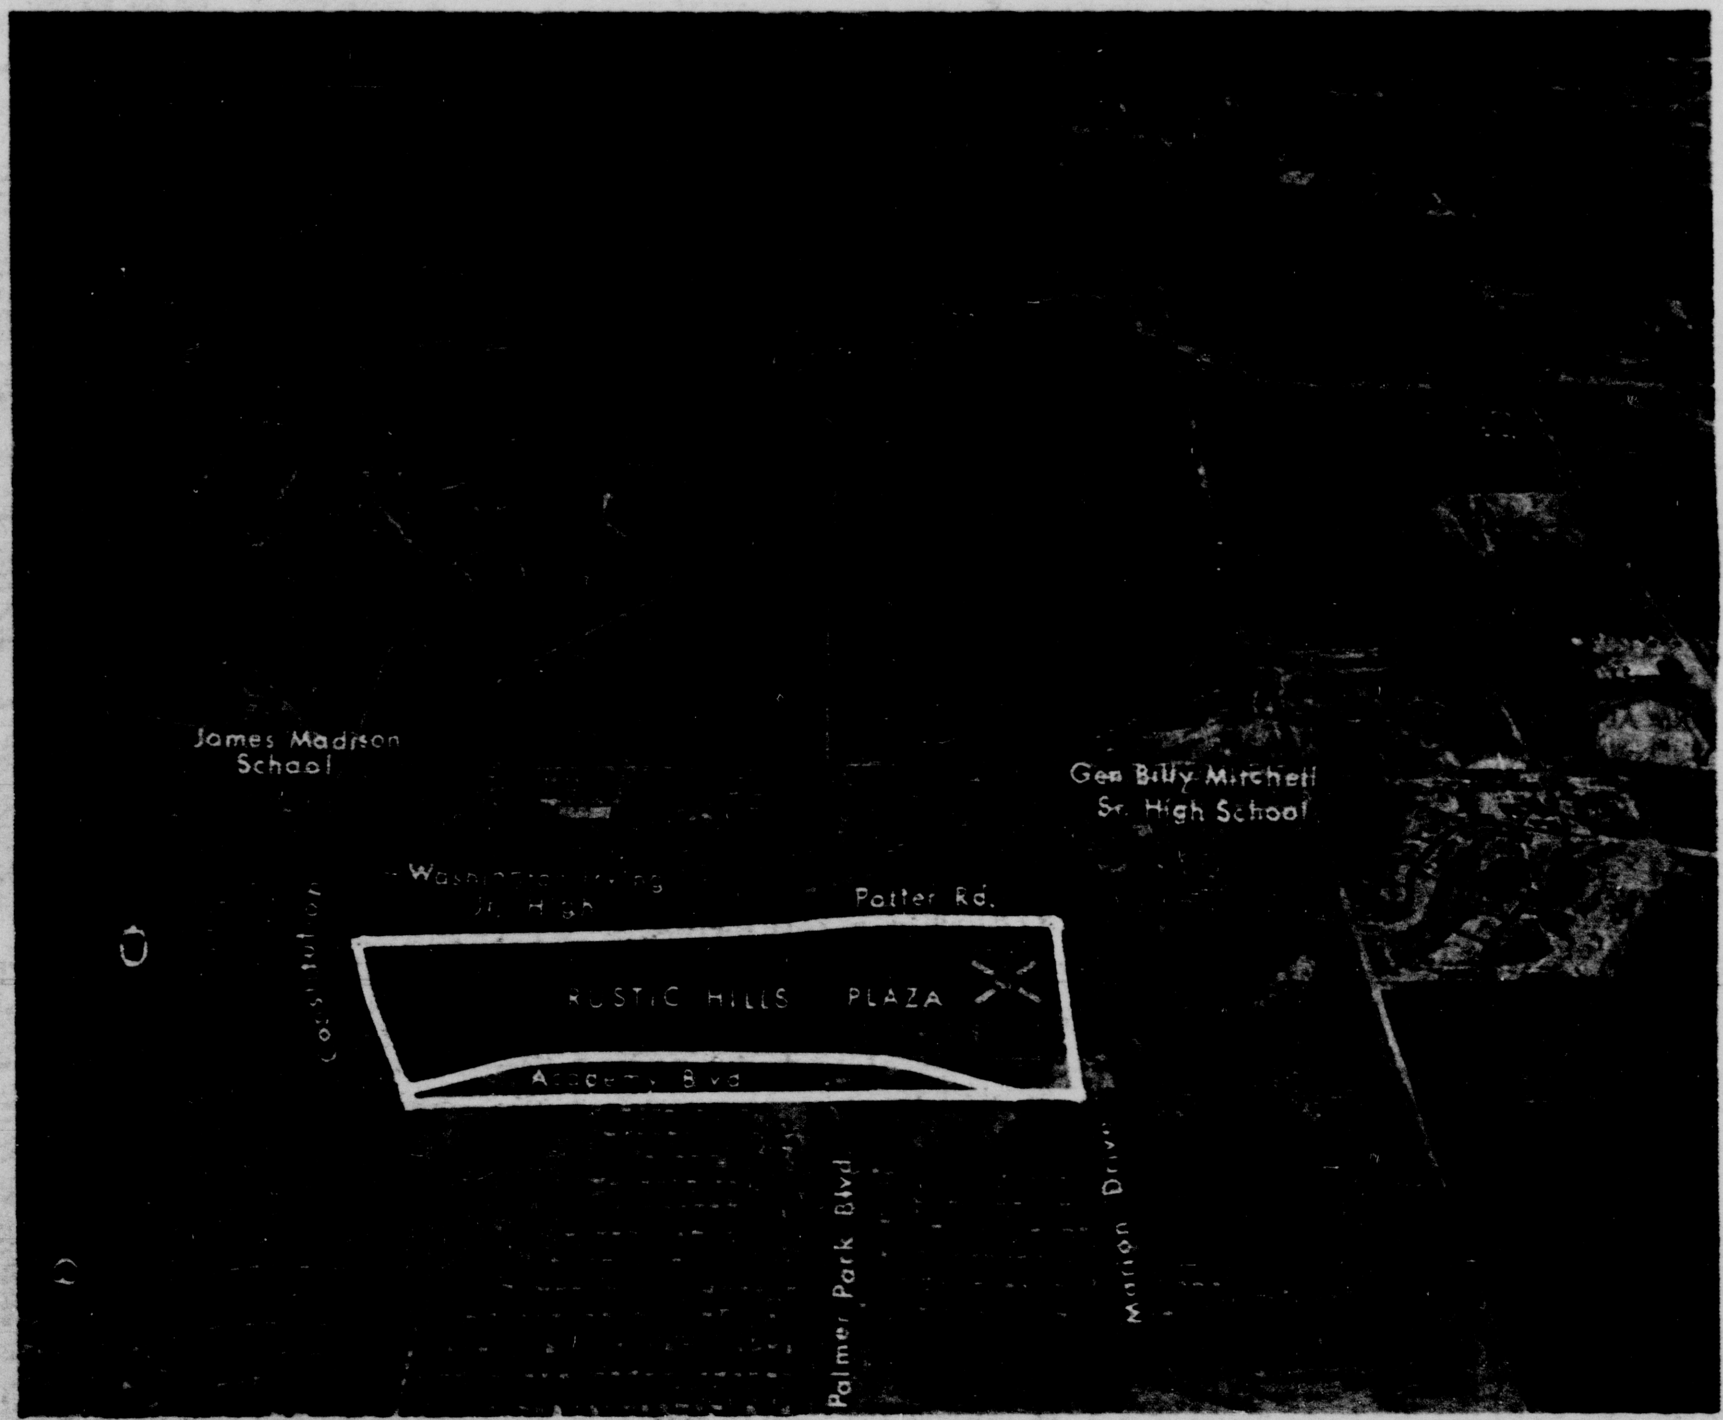
COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH
Sunday, Nov. 15, 1964 SECTION H



RUSTIC HILLS PLAZA — This architectural rendering shows a projection of the new plaza upon its completion. Developer Bill Smartt, president of the Smartt Construction Co., has announced that more than $3 million in leases have been signed for phase one, a 34-acre section of the center.



PLAZA SITE FROM THE AIR — Here's the area where the first master planned shopping center in Colorado Springs is located. As can be seen from the street names, the area is easily accessible from every part of the Pikes Peak Region.

Rustic Hills Plaza Ready To Start Construction

BY DICK MOORE
Gazette Telegraph
Business Editor

Construction is scheduled to start immediately on phase one of Rustic Hills Plaza, the first master planned, major shopping center to be constructed within the limits of Colorado Springs.

The phase one section of area will consist of 34 acres with an estimated $3,000,000 in construction set for completion by July of 65.

Bill Smartt, president of the Smartt Construction Co., developer of the project, and Howard Emrich, vice president, have jointly announced that more than $1,000,000 in leases have been signed by companies who will operate in the new center.

Businesses signing leases include Safeway Stores Inc., The Rexall Drug Co., The 7-11 chain, the Academy Boulevard Bank and Phillips and Enco service stations.

The plaza area, which is located adjacent to Academy Boulevard and Constitution Avenue, will have a total area of [illegible] acres including the phase two area of [illegible] acres to be developed after the phase one section.

The phase two section of the center will accommodate large department stores handling exclusive brands of merchandise and ultra fashion styles of wearing apparel, Smartt said.

The latter section will contain an estimated $7,000,000 in construction when completed, Smartt added.

Phase one construction plans have been underway since July of this year, Emrich said. In addition to the stores already signing leases in the area, negotiations are in progress for completing the initial area with businesses such as barber and beauty salons, a dry cleaning and liquor store, specialty shops and in fact every type of shop that will enable plaza customers to complete an everyday type of shopping, he added.

The leasing arrangements are being handled by William H. Giese of the Realty Investment of Colorado Springs.

The area is easily accessible from all directions of the city. Natural arterial roads lead to the heart of the center supplemented by the soon-to-be constructed interchange of U.S. Highway 24 and Academy Boulevard.

The new shopping center will serve not only the Smartt Rustic Hills Area but will soon be in the heart of the rapidly expanding northeast area of Colorado Springs.

Byron Church, local real estate consultant, in an August feasibility and zoning study of the potential community shopping center at Palmer Park and Academy boulevards, reported as follows:

"The need for the proposed community business center is rapidly developing in the outlined northeast area of Colorado Springs. The growth is so rapid that the present trade area population will be increased by 15 per cent within a year from this date.

"The current population in the service area is 20,000 and the estimate of one year from today (August 31) is 23,000.

The estimate added that in 10 years from now the figure will be 50,000.

Cited were some of the major industries including Ampex, Western Electrodynamics, The Walter Drake Industries and the fact that the Rock Island Railroad has purchased [illegible] acres in Rustic Hills for development of an industrial park.

The report concluded that the established need and rapidly compounding growth of what it termed an inadequately served residential - industrial area requires action toward implementing a large community shopping center.

CF&I STEEL USED

In Thailand, farmers have adopted CF&I poultry netting, manufactured at the Pueblo plant, to pen their fowl. Oilmen in Venezuela, in Israel and in Mexico give CFI wire rope their preference in their drilling operations. Contractors in Puerto Rico specify CF&I welded wire fabric when building new developments. Copper miners in Peru rely on CF&I grinding balls and rods to crush millions of tons of ore.

New Record Shop Opens on Colorado Ave.

Bill's Record Shop has recently opened its doors for business at 2603 W Co.lorado Ave., under the ownership of William Kendrick.

Kendrick, a friendly man who has not allowed a handicap imposed upon him by polio to dampen his enthusiasm, is eager to meet and do business with music lovers in all the popular music fields.

Kendrick has announced that his shop will feature all types of records in all music fields from western to classic and in all recording speeds.

Kendrick has redecorated the space in the building where his shop is located and has equipped the area with record racks easily accessible to customers.

In addition Kendrick has a few used records for sale at greatly reduced prices. He also has facilities for ordering any special record a customer might want. His $4.98 stereo records are now selling for $3.98.

Towards the front of the shop Kendrick maintains a small counter from which he sells cigarets, cigars and candy.

In spite of his handicap which has kept him on crutches for 31 years of his life, Kendrick has been active and has worked at a number of jobs in carious business fields.

A native of Colorado, Kendrick is a graduate of an extension course in business accounting offered by La Salle University in Chicago. In his younger years he attended schools in Wyoming at a number of jobs in various and also worked at both the International Harvester and Wyoming Automotive Companies in Casper, Wyo.

Before coming to Colorado Springs in 1960, he was employed in Pueblo as a junior accountant with a public accountant company in that city.

In Colorado Springs he worked as payroll clerk with Clifton Precision Co. before attending the Colorado State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.

The rehabilation group is responsible for Kendrick's venture into the record business and have provided finances for his record inventory and also additional finances to aid him in getting started.

"Because of my handicap I have had much time to learn the record business as well as the appreciation of good music and I am excited over the prospect of selling records and talking about music to the people of Colorado Springs," Kendrick said.

"I hope that many people will soon learn about my shop and come in to see me," he added.

Security Savings Building To Offer Unusual Features

The new Security Savings and Loan Association building at Platte Avenue and Union Boulevard, now under construction, is designed to take advantage of the existing park-like atmosphere. The entire property at Platte Avenue, between Union Blvd., and Meade Ave. is surrounded by tall shade trees and spruce trees which will be preserved and additional landscaping and lawn areas added.

The building, is a strong departure from conventional building types. It will be elliptical in form; the front and rear walls are arcs of intersecting circles. There will be 21 grey brick columns with curved sides facing Platte Avenue and the entire face of the building will be bronze colored solar glass.

There will be two entrances defined by concrete umbrellas with circular glass vestibules beneath. Projecting brick walls at the ends of the building will enclose landscaped gardens which can be seen from the building's interior.

The new Security Savings and Loan facility will contain approximately 18,000 sq. ft. of floor space. The public lobby and loan officer's area will be 2 stories tall with a long curved balcony set back from the front. The area under the balcony will contain teller's counter, vault, insurance department, and closing rooms.

The balcony will contain a computer room for processing of customer accounts from both Security Saving & Loan Locations. Also located in the balcony will be several attractive prestige rental suites. The basement of the new building will contain a large community room seating approximately 200 people which can be used by the public at no charge by reservation. This room can be divided into 3 smaller community rooms each seating approximately 50 people. The basement will also contain employee's facilities, vaults, etc.

Circular, cantilevered stairs at each end of the building will connect the three levels. The building will be lighted with large circular recessed fixtures. Floor surfaces will be charcoal grey slate and carpet. Mechanical equipment, housed on the roof of the building will be screened from view by a wall of sculptured panels which will be illuminated at night.

Security Savings and Loan Association's new building is designed to create an unusually attractive and comfortable facility for its customers with many features not seen before in public building.

Marvin E. Knedler, Denver, is architect for the project and the general building contractor is Douglas Jardine Company.

Security Savings and Loan Association was started in 1956 by local businessmen on the theory that this community could better be served by a local association with both home and branch offices in Colorado Springs.

Speaking about the growth of the organization, Arlie Moore, president of SecuritylSavings and Loan Association, said total assets at the end of 1956, were $1,776,452.00 and that by the end of 1960 assets totaled $6,822,395.00. Moore reported as of June 30, 1964, total assets were $24,252,253.69, pointing up the rapid substantial growth of the organization. Moore continued, the officers and directors responsible for the over-all management of the association are highly trained in finance with specialized knowledge and experience in the home mortgage lending field. Staff members are throughly trained in the performance of their duties and are chosen for their ability to establish helpful, friendly relationships with customers.

The establishment of basic policies at Security is the responsibility of the Board of Directors, composed of the following local business and professional men who have been long acquainted with this community's economy. Earl H. Schwab, chairman of the board of directors; Arlie Moore, president; Mark Baker, vice - president and Secretary; Roger Lane vice - president; Jack Brandt, treasurer; Walter Masel, comptroller; and directors Everett Conover, Guss D. Hill, W. S. Marshall and Dr. Roy J. Wasson.

Moore explained, Security Savings Branch Office, currently housed in temporary quarters at Platte Avenue and Union Boulevard will remain in operation during the construction of the new building and the downtown office at 111 E. Pikes Peak Avenue will remain permanently at that location.

The downtown office, an attractive modern structure, was completed in 1959, and with the completion of the additional new building at Platte Ave and Union Boulevard, Security Savings and Loan Association will have two permanent locations in Colorado Springs.

Moore further stated, business will be conducted uninterrupted thus assuring Security Savings customers the same service they have enjoyed over the past years.

Steel Industry Vital to State Economy

Supplier, buyer and employer—the Colorado steel industry plays all three roles in the state as a partner in progress. The industry has been important in Colorado's first century and promises to be even more important in "Steel Century Two."

In Colorado and the nation, industry would be virtually impossible without steel. Transportation would come to a standstill. Petroleum, ore and minerals would still be in the ground. Construction would be crude. Farms and ranches would be small and rustic. Without steel living conditions would be set back decades.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron Corporation, the state's largest steel manufacturer, produces steel products vital to industries. CF&I's Pueblo plant manufacturers rails and accessories; structurals, bars, and merchant products; wire, fence nails, and other wire products; seamless casing and tubing; and other specialty products for western and national markets.

The list of finished products in which steel is used is almost endless. Theavailability of steel and wire products has been an important factor in the decision of metalworking firms to locate in Colorado.

In the past few years the steel industry has invested millions of dollars not only in its own future in Steel Century Two, but in Colorado's future too.

Some of the new equipment installations at CF&I's Pueblo plant in recent years, representing millions in capital investment, are:

1. New mill to produce seamless casing and tubing for the oil country goods market
2. Installation of two basic oxygen steel furnaces which augment steel production from open hearth furnaces
3. New mill to roll wide flange beams
4. Installation of plant to produce calcined line which is used as a flux in pig iron and steel production.
5. Installation of nail cleaning and packaging equipment
6. Addition of high speed wire drawing machines.
7. Equipment to produce prestressed concrete wire and strand, new light weight posts, welded deformed wire fabric, special type nails, netting and other wire specialties.
8. Equipment to produce diamonnium phosphate (DAP), a coke plant by-product used in the fertilizer industry.

The steel industry is a purchaser of Colorado products too. The shopping lists of steel plants include brick, fuel oil, natural gas, cement, lumber, lubricants, and hundreds of others. To many Colorado businesses, the steel industry is an important customer.

The steel industry is also one of the major employers in the state. CF&I is a good example.

They employ 7,500 people directly, 12,500 Coloradoans can thank CF&I for their jobs. It works this way: 100 employes of CF&I support 250 dependents, the members of their families. These families create the need for an average of three retail stores. These stores and the services needed by the families create 165 jobs for other Coloradoans.

In terms of income and savings, 100 CF&I jobs, plus the 165 jobs created, are responsible for $710,000 in annual personal income and $220,000 in bank deposits—a percentage of which is invested to improve or build new businesses or industry.

The steel industry is and will continue to be Colorado's partner in progress—as supplier, buyer, and employer.

Florence Building Permits Top $5 Thousand

Building permit valuation for the city of Florence was $5,250 for the month of October, Carl Meyers, city inspector, reported this week.

A total of 14 permits were issued and $78.55 in fees collected.

Of the 14 permits, only six were for remodeling work, Meyers noted. Two contractors were licensed and bonded during the period.

Meyers reported that he had assisted the county crews with road work in Penrose, aided the city crews with the planning and laying of the new water sprinkling system at Pioneer Park, and heard four zoning cases during the month.

Total retail sales in Fremont County for 1963 reached nearly $27 million, it was announced this week by U. Mike Welch state department of employment manager in Canon City.

Of the total sales, Canon City reported $21.2 million while Florence had about $5.4 million.

"There are 257 business establishments in the area," Welch stated, with an employment figure that varies between 740 to 1,200 depending upon the season."

Welch has predicted that future trends point to increased retail sales with fewer employes.

To back up his statement, he declared that in 1948 there were 21 establishments which employed 108 persons. However, in 1958 these same firms had increased their sales by 29 per cent.

Welch has credited the increased sales and drop in employment to more self-service, better facilities, and increased efficiency of operation. He says the trend will continue.

Turning to the manufacturing aspects of the county, Welch stated that there are about 30 firms operating in Fremont County employing some 694 persons.

Three of the larger industries are located in eastern Fremont County including Ideal Cement Company, Fibreboard Paper Products Corporation, and Estes Industries at Penrose.

The employment official noted that the $1,218,000 expansion program now in progress at Ideal Cement company at Portland is engaging the services of some 150 workmen. The plant is erecting nine huge silos for the storage of bulk cement. The job will not be completed until next June.

Accidents in the home last year caused 29,000 deaths compared with 28,500 a year previous, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

New Apartment Complex Ready for Occupancy

A unique new apartment complex of 28 one bedroom units has just been completed at 30th and West Bijou Streets.

O. F. (Bud) Shepard, president of Shepard Styled Homes, in announcing the completion of these units said: "We felt there was a need for new apartments that can be rented at a lower rate than others currently being built.

"Our reasoning has been borne out because the apartments are being rented as fast as the finishing touches are completed."

Of all brick construction, the leisure apartments feature a built-in range, refrigerator plus carpets and drapes.

The units sent for $69.50 a month unfurnished and $79.50 furnished.

Oil Shale Pilot Plant to Be Built

PARACHUTE CREEK Colo. (UPI) — Concrete is to be poured early next week for the foundation of an oil shale pilot plant at Parachute Creek, Colony Development Co. said Friday.

The company also revealed that the opening of the portal to the shale mine that will supply the raw materials for the $3 million retorting plant is scheduled in the next few days

Bechtel Corp. of San Francisco is building the plant. Between 150 and 175 men will be employed on the project which is due for completion in March Colony Development Co. is controlled by Standard Oil of Ohio, Cleveland - Cliffs Drilling Co. and the Oil Shale Corp.

The nation's gross national product (sum total of all goods and services produced) rose from $242 billion in 1940 to about $600 billion at the end of last year.

LONG TERM EMPLOYES

Last year, 112 steelworkers at the Pueblo plant marked their 25th anniversary with CF&I. And the year before that CF&I presented quarter century buttons to 305 of its employes in the Western Division alone.

VIENNA — Austrian furniture makers plan to guarantee their finishes.

Colorado Steel Week Proclaimed by Governor

Saluting the steel industry as "Colorado's Partner in Progress, "Governor John A. Love declaring this week as Colorado Steel Week.

"Colorado owes her position as a great state to the availability of steel through the manufacturing, warehousing, distribution and fabrication of steel within the state," the proclamation said. The Governor urged Coloradoans to consider "the thousands of ways in which steel has contributed to the continued productivity and well-being of Colorado labor and industry. This is important, particularly when we are so vitally interested in attracting new industry to our state," Love said.

During Steel Week, newspapers and trade journals throughout the state will tell the story of steel in Colorado through articles and advertising campaigns. The promotion is being coordinated by the Colorado Press Association (CPA).

The purpose of Colorado Steel Week, according to CPA Manager William A. Long, is to acquaint the public with the role the steel industry plays in Colorado's economic and industrial growth, and therefore how it affects their lives.

An individual's opinion of industry and industrial development can actually mean a great deal to the state," Long said. Bt more important, the citizens of our state must be educated as to what today's concept of modern industry actually is, so that they understand the interplay between industries and how this interplay creates progress," he said. "This is the purpose of Steel Week. It allows the average citizen to take a good look around and see for himself how steel helps build a superior life for him."

Steel industry officials present when the Governor signed the Steel Week proclamation were: R. L. Smith, executive vice-president, Colorado Fuel and Iron Corporation; L. C. Johns, sub-director, United Steel Workers of America; G. W. Searles, division sales manager, U. S. Steel Corporation; Wallace Grider, Denver chapter president, Steel Service Center Institute; Frank Bowman, national director, Steel Service Center Institute; Frederick H. Wadley, president, Concrete Reinforcing Steel Institute.

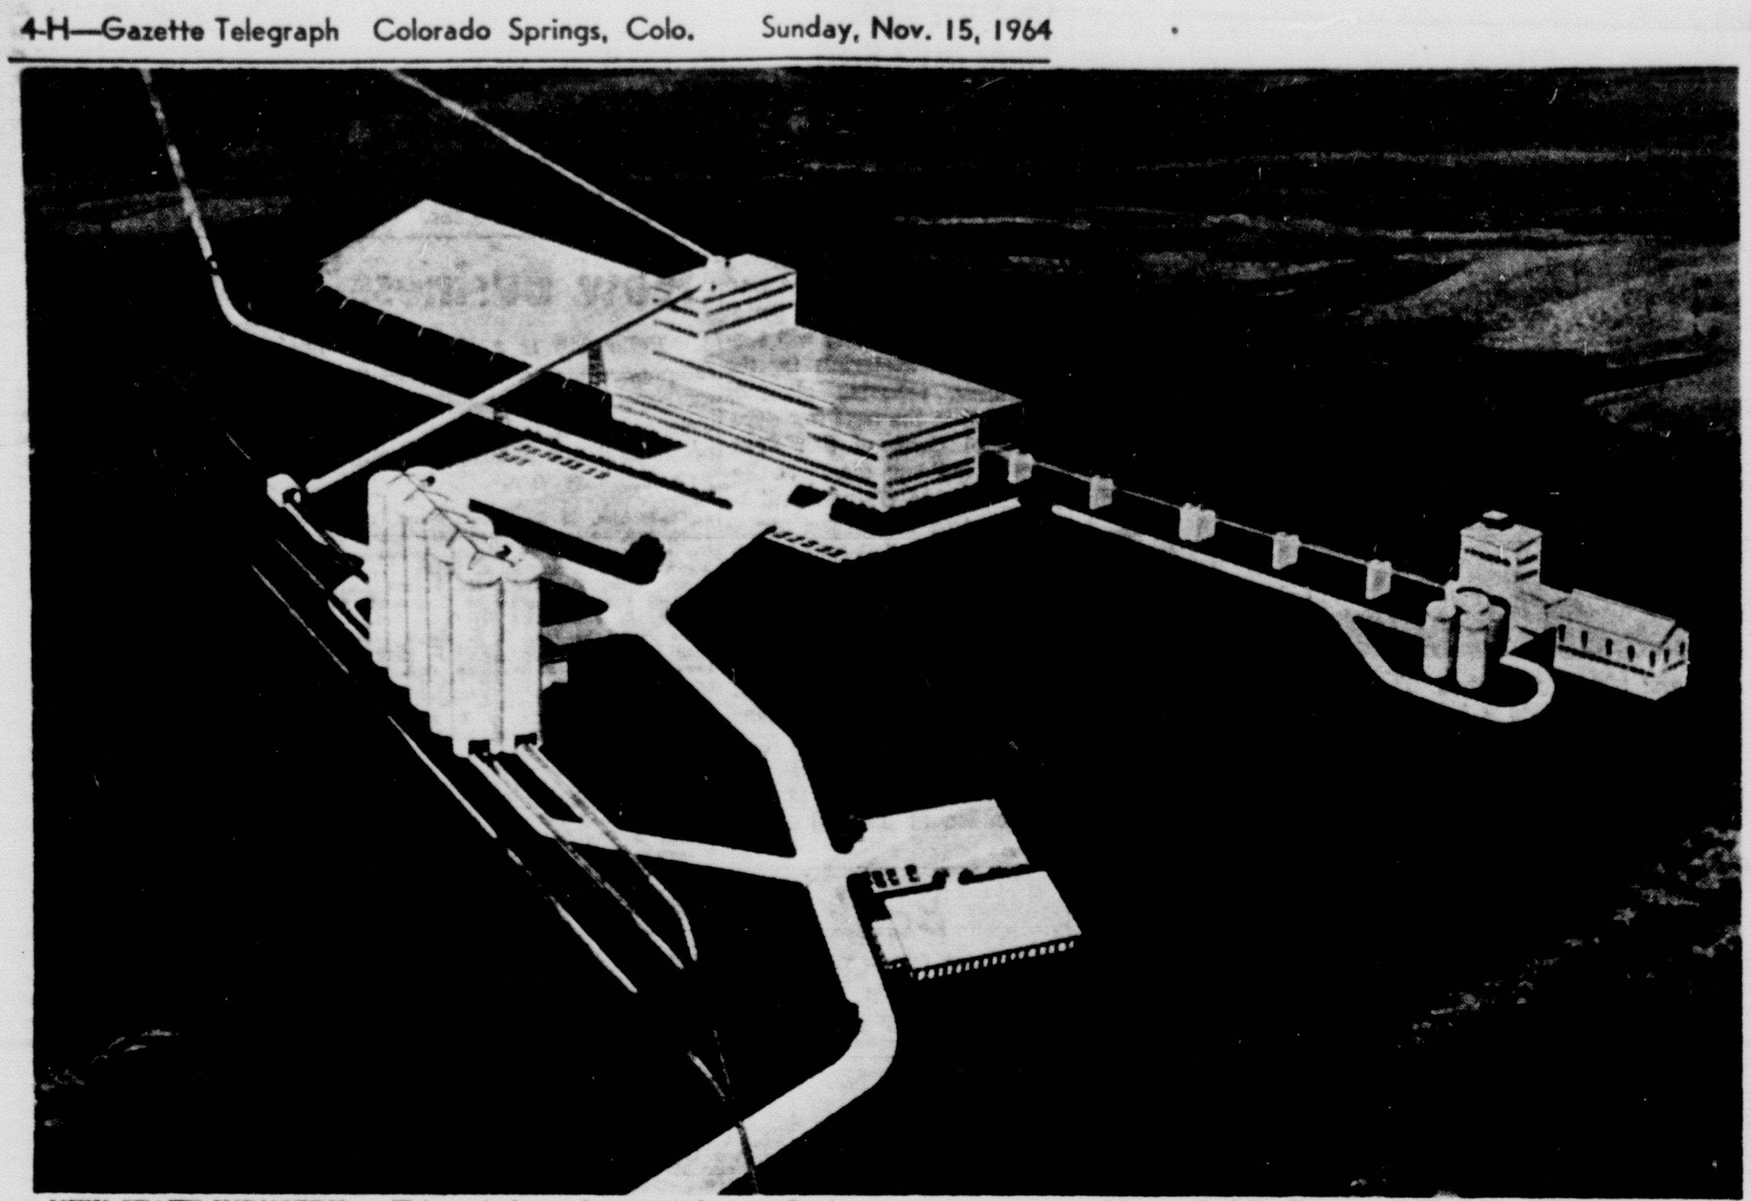
Steel Symbol Will Include CF & I Sample

Colorado steel will become a part of the "Century Two Steel symbolize the industry's dysymbolize tre industry's dynamic growth, achievement and public service.

On Sept. 14, 1964, as the American steel industry passed into its second century, The Colorado Fuel and Iron Corporation's Pueblo plant took a sample of the first "beat" of steel tapped that day. This 14-pound sample, along with more than 150 other samples from steel mills throughout the United States, Canada and Latin America will be sent to Battelle Memorial Institute in Columbus, Ohio, where they will be remelted into a one ton steel ingot.

A nationally known sculptor, to be selected by a panel of five prominent art museum directors and art collectors, will use this ingot as part of a "Steel Century Two Symbol." The sculpture will be placed on permanent exhibition at a prominent cultural institution, Thomas F. Patton, chairman,, American Iron and Steel Institute, said.

The dedication of the sculptor will be one of the highlights of the "Steel Century Two" celebration, a year - long national celebration marking the steel industry's entry in its second century of production.



NEW STATE INDUSTRY — This artist's rendering of the new Rocky Mountain Cement Co. plant to be constructed between Boulder and Lyons, will utilize a new type of electrolytic precipitator which will prevent any waste materials from escaping into the atmosphere. The new $20,000,000 plant will add impetus to the state's economy and will add approximately $250,000 annually to Boulder County's tax base, officials report.

Rocky Mountain Cement To Open Sales Office Here

David Monical, sales manager of Rocky Mountain Cement Co., Denver, a subsidiary of Martin-Marietta corporation, has announced the opening of a sales office in Colorado Springs to serve the Pikes Peak Region and Pueblo areas.

DEAN MCCONNELL

DAVID MONICAL

Dean A. McConnell of Denver has been appointed sales representative for the areas.

McConnell is well-known in this area since he was previously associated with Master Builders Co. of Denver which is also a subsidiary of Martin-Marietta Corporation.

Prior to joining Master Builders, McConnell has been associated with Ideal Cement Co. and Ford-Motor Co.

A native of Nebraska, he holds a bachelor of science degree in business administration with specialties in economics and marketing.

He served in the U.S. Army Medical Corp. and has received specialized training in cement concrete and admixtures from the Portland Cement Association.

McConnell, his wife and three children will move to Colorado Springs as soon as he is able to arrange for housing.

Thomas W. Meade, head of operations for the firm, and Monical have announced that the company's $20,000,000 manufacturing plant to be located on a newly acquired 1,100 - acre site between Boulder and Lyons is moving ahead on schedule.

They stated the problems of rezoning which resulted in court action and invalidation of Boulder County's original approval of change in zoning are now being resolved, and that the plant will be in production by late 1966. The court's action was based upon inadequate compliance with some procedural requirements.

Rocky Mountain Cement Company's new plant described by Meade and Monical as a project that will "exert a major impact on the state's economy," will be highly automated, and will produce no smoke, noise or dust in the Boulder area. "A new type of electrolytic precipitator will prevent any waste materials from escaping into the atmosphere," Meade said.

"Furthermore, the presence of the plant will add approximately $250,000 annually to Boulder County's tax base — without the requirement that the school district construct additional schools for the workers' children.

"We're assured and convinced," he continued, "that the citizens of Boulder County and the surrounding region want our plant. Naturally, we hope there will be no additional litigation; however, if some arises, our company is now in a position to satisfactorily cope with the situation and pursue the matter to a successful conclusion — or, perhaps, better to say a successful beginning."

Meade explained that Burt C. Boothby of L. C. Fulenwider, Inc., Realtors, Denver, acquired the original options on the plant site, and has secured the necessary extensions that will allow ample time for the required rezoning now underway.

Meade states that the appointment of Monical as sales manager of Rocky Mountain Cement has tremendously aided the firm's planning and operations, due to the fact he is a 16-year veteran in the construction industry. He is already playing an important role in the company's distribution of cement produced in Tulsa throughout the Colorado area.

Monical has extremely diversified experience in all phases of the construction industry. Following study at Emporia State College, Kan., and military service as a first lieutenant in World War II, he began his career as a heavy-equipment salesman for Salina Tractor company, covering the entire Kansas area.

In [illegible] he joined the sales staff of [illegible] Foundry and Steel company, then returned to Salina Tractor in 1957, where he worked in various managerial capacities.

In 1961 he became associated with Dewey Portland Cement Company of Tulsa, where, as assistant sales manager, he developed the Kansas and Missouri sales territories for the company.

Monical, his wife, Mary Lee, and their four children reside at Littleton.

Steel Rails Symbols of State's Progress

Perhaps no single organization has meant more to the full industrial development of Colorado than its principal transportation agency — the Rio Grande Railroad and its highway subsidiary, Rio Grande Motor Way.

Certainly, without the means of moving heavy tonnages, such as steel, within the state's borders and beyond, industrial progress on the order enjoyed today would not have been possible. Just as certainly, without the creation of local steel — steel readily available — the railroad might never have been developed at all.

It's little wonder then that steel rail does stand today as a symbol of a partnership between two of the state's most important industries.

Sometimes transportation leads, sometimes it follows, the parade of progress. At various times in its turbulent history. Rio Grande has done both.

That history began five years before Colorado became a state, when rails were laid from Denver to Colorado Springs in 1871.

Prior to that time, the great range of the Rocky Mountains through Colorado had presented an "impossible" barrier to railroad builders. It fell to General William J. Palmer to attempt— and succeed in — breaking through that bardier.

To help build the railroad, he founded a company to make steel rail. This company was the forerunner of The Colorado Fuel and Iron Corporation. The enterprise was small but it saved the expense of having rail shipped from the East. Availability of rail contributed to Palmer's success in breaking through the mountain barrier.

Palmer's initial plan for the Rio Grande contemplated a railroad from Denver to Mexico City along the eastern edge of the mountains. But by the time his road had built southward as far as Trinidad, the demand for transportation to the booming Leadville mining district was so great that the Rio Grande turned westward to supply that demand.

In reaching that objective, Palmer's engineers conquered the natural barriers which stood in their way. That success led to others.

Once the eyes of its founder had been turned west, every possible location through the mountains was surveyed, and Rio Grande rails were laid to almost every spot in the mountain region where mining development demanded transportation.

The spirit of high adventure lightened hardships; the romance of achievement bolstered courage; and the empire of the Rocky Mountain West was reclaimed from a territory which had been described in the '60s as an "impenetrable wilderness."

So rapidly did the rail network expand it often outstripped the demand. In such cases, the availability of rail transportation led to the accelerated development of may new areas.

Construction of the Moffat Tunnel and the 38-mile Dotsero Cutoff made possible the establishment in 1934 of Rio Grande's second route through the Rockies, directly west from Denver, thus completing today's extensive rail network.

The modern Rio Grande is a vital link in the several great transportation chains making up the direct central transcontinental routes, serving the Pacific Coast via Salt Lake City and Ogden, the Midwest and East via the Denver gateway, and the South and Southeast via the Pueblo gateway.

The Rio Grande has acheived an enviable reputation as one of America's most progressive railroads; emerging from a glamorous past to a future promising increased usefulness.

Palmer's companies, CF & I and the D&RG, have grown up together in Colorado. Steel and railroads contribute to the well-being of the other. The steel industry uses rail transportation for shipping their products and that same transportation is possible because of another steel product—rail. These industries are truly "Partners in Progress."

STEEL IN OIL INDUSTRY

The Seamless Tube Mill of CF&I's Pueblo plant, which went into operation just 10 years ago, has turned out over six million lengths of tubing and casing for the oil country, while fence fabric and wire strand manufactured in the Pueblo plant's wire mills find their way daily to the oil fields of the West.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Robert Walston of the Philadelphia Eagles (1951-1961) holds the all-time National Football league scoring record of 833 points during his career.

Christmas Decor Up in Pikes Peak Plaza

Merchant members of the Pikes Peak Plaza Association have announced that Christmas decorations at the plaza are now up and that the Noel lights were turned on for the first time this week.

The decorations consist of candles mounted on light poles surrounded by wrapped tinsel with candy stick wrapping around each pole.

The candles are 12 feet high and another part of the decor, tinseled church bells, are six foot high and are also supplemented with candy stick wrapping.

The entire area will be further decorated in the next few days, spokesmen of the association said.

The Christmas lights in the area were turned on for the first time Thursday night and lights shining from within the tinsel plus the light from without created the effects of stars beaming, observers said.

Officials of the association, Ben Langella, president, Bill Andrews, vice president, Evan Copley, treasurer and A. D. Fiero, representating the 14 merchants at the plaza, invite everyone to stop at the plaza and see the beautiful lighting.

The plaza has been officially open for the past two months.

There is free parking in the center with room for 750 cars.

Steel Plays Vital Part In NORAD Center Design

EDITOR'S NOTE — The steel theme in industry is astutely interwoven with national defense and survivability as vital factors which keep our nation alive, in this excellent article prepared especially for the Gazette Telegraph by the NORAD Information Office. The story was written in conjunction with the beginning of State Steel Week which starts today.

Any comparison between the recently completed 54-story Prudential Insurance Building in Boston and the North American Air Defense Command Combat Operations Center being constructed deep in the headt of Cheyenne Mountain here is purely coincidental.

This statement could normally be considered factual. However, proximity is not a factor involving the two construction jobs, as nearly 2,000 miles separate the two.

On the surface, the two businesses are extremely different. One is a perfect example of the benefits — for the stockholders — of free enterprise. The NORAD construction job, when completed, will be a 100 per cent government operation.

The Boston Prudential tower-type building reaches far into the sky while the command post for the NORAD battle staff, located just south of Colorado Springs, is a building constructed in the subterranean chambers of a mountain liberally endowed by nature with solid granite.

But to military thinkers and the defense planners in Washington and Ottawa, the Combat Operations Center for the Canadian-United States aerospace defense command is just as much a part of the insurance business as the modern Prudential edifice.

The cave, with its sophisticated communications system housed in steel buildings, is insurance for the free world. Survivability would be the somewhat questionable victory in case the world's big bombs were unleashed. The NORAD COC is insurance against national failure in atomic war.

It is also insurance that the war will never start. Survivability would be victory, however questionable. The deterrent strategy of the free world is to be so strong as to make a possible enemy pause before attacking. The ability of the NORAD command to survive is deterrence. The granite and steel encased COC is one of the many factors which combine to make the Canadian-United States defense complex a major part of the free world deterrent force.

Another common factor involving the Boston skyscraper — as well as many others built by the American Bridge subsidiary of U. S. Steel Corporation — and the NORAD COC, is steel. "The stuff of which nations are made," according to veteran steel construction workers.

The NORAD structures, more than 1,200 feet under solid granite, are constructed of 7,000 tons of steel. They rest on over 100 steel springs, each weighing 1,500 pounds. The springs compensate for shock during an air attack and protect the many computers housed there from damage.

These steel buildings place under cover — as well as under granite — some 190,000 feet of floor space. Construction involved welding approximately 225,000 square feet of plate with 90 tons of welding rod. Engineers estimate that if the approximate 15-inch rods were laid end to end they would stretch from Chicago to Detroit.

The almost ¼ million square feet of fabricated steel consisted mostly of ⅜ inch plate welded around and over wide flange beams and T-sections. It is a type A-36 low-carbon high-strength product. As construction figures show, the buildings are actually light weight and the COC as an entity will get its protective strength against atomic blast from the granite in the mountain.

American Bridge fabricated most of the steel at its Provo, Utah and Gary, Indiana plants. It was shipped by rail to the U. S. Army's nearby Fort Carson. Portions were preassembled into sections and trucked to the 7,000 foot entrance of the NORAD combat center.

Normal size sections meas- erns. ured some 10 x 40 feet. These measurements were governed by the dimensions of the man-made Cheyenne Mountain caverns.

American Bridge engineers and steelworkers were compelled to build the buildings from the inside out because of space restrictions. This is not normal building procedure and with steel framework for skyscrapers like the Empire State Building, another American Bridge accomplishment, the dimension conquered is heighth.

However, the famous U. S. Steel subsidiary is well qualified to overcome nature's obstacles. They build all type of steel structures throughout the world. American Bridge furnished the steel work and constructed Minuteman missile sites in the U. S. While not as deep as the NORAD cavern, they were of underground steel construction and proved to be invaluable experience.

Steel and granite — one, the most sturdy of man-made construction materials, and the other a quartz-like rock, hardened by centuries of nature's processes to unyielding firmness, are teamed for defense to assure the free world of survivability in case of atomic war.

A combination of man's ingenuity, steel and granite are combined to give the North American Air Defense Commander in Chief General John K. Gerhadt and his staff insurance against failure.

The 54-story Prudential Building in Boston, with the skeleton of steel, and the NORAD steel buildings located 1,200 feet straight down under the solid grtnite of rugged, picturesque Cheyenne Mountain, are synonymous, insurance-wise.

STEEL'S INVESTMENT

There is approximately $18,000 invested in equipment and property for every person in the steel industry including the office personnel. All that CF&I asks workers at the Pueblo plant to bring is a sharp mind and rested body. . .so that whatever their skill, they will do a superior job, and safely too.

Teenager Admits Starting School Fire

BELLPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Police say a 15-year-old boy has admitted starting a school fire a year and a half ago that caused a million dollars damage.

The boy, whose name was withheld because of his age, had been smoking a cigarette behind the auditorium stage, police said, and flipped it into a hole in the wall.

Thirty-two pupils were injured in scrambling from the burning structure.

The blaze, on March 8, 1963, had been attributed to faulty electrical wiring.

The boy, accused earlier of truancy and petty thefts, is awaiting action on a burglary and juvenile delinquency charge. He was described by school authorities as a problem boy who refused to conform to school rules.

They said he had been suspended from classes earlier on the day of the fire, had sneaked back in the building to smoke, and then fled.

KILL OFF BUFFALOES

SYDNEY — The Northern Territory of Australia has far too many buffaloes; so it is planned to kill between 150,000 and 200,000 of them in the next 20 years. But they are not to be exterminated; numbers of them will be driven into areas set aside as reserves, where control can be exercised.

The buffaloes were introduced into the territory more than a century ago, and they are to be replaced by beef cattle, which are a better commercial proposition.

WHERE WOULD SUSIE'S SCHOOLHOUSE BE WITHOUT COLORADO STEEL?

About the same place it was sixty years ago. Small. Drafty. And probably complete with the traditional sod roof. Which is where CF&I steel structural and construction products come in. They're strong, silent partners in the building of bigger, better school houses...in all other phases of construction, too.

Socialists Have Mandate To Perform on Promises

By SAM CAMPBELL

No doubt now that the U. S. Bureaucracy now has a landslide mandate to acquire and own anything that it sees fit.

All obstacles to complete socialization are removed at the national, state, and local level.

The margin of the vote clearly shows that the people are in no mood to brook opposition either to state collectivism at home or to accommodation with state collectivism abroad.

The people had a choice. They made the choice. Seldom has that choice been more clear. Seldom has it been returned by such a decisive margin.

I do not find it in my heart to blame the choosers for the choice that was made. The way I look at it is this: Non-socialists offered an idea in the marketplace of ideas; the product didn't sell, so who is at fault? The customers? No, I don't think so.

The suggestion that I would make to non-socialists is fourfold

First, I would suggest that we take a look at our product to be sure that we know what is in it, to be sure that we can explain every ingredient, and to be confident of the claims that we make for it.

This is not a figure of speech. I mean we should trace the free enterprise idea to its spiritual roots and become able to cite chapter and verse why it is a right idea, an idea in keeping with the nature of men and in accordance with the design of the Creator.

Second, I would suggest that we take a look at the marketplace of ideas. Perhaps we are trying to sell on too broad a scale, trying to grow too fast, [illegible] so to speak. Perhaps the market is in no condition to receive at this time. Perhaps the market for non-socialist ideas must yet be created.

Third, I suggest we examine the packaging of our product. Maybe the presentation of our freedom idea does not convey to the prospective buyer that he stands to profit from it. It could be that the change from the status quo appears too abrupt, too frightening. There may be something about the looks of it that repels.

Last, I think we salesmen of freedom might take a good look at ourselves. In the marketplace of ideas, customers are wooed and won, not just won. Perhaps some of us are trying to sell an idea without preparing the buyer emotionally to receive it. Perhaps, on the other hand, others are trying to transfer an emotion that has no intellectual content. We have plenty of salesmen. A little improvement in tactics might produce a dramatic change.

The re-examination will require some time in the meantime the socialists have complete authority to make good on all the promises they have made. The people have given that power without equivocation, without check or balance. The responsibility is squarely placed.

Ironic, really! Non-socialists know they can produce, but can we sell? The socialists can sell, but can they produce?

Black Market Flourishes in Castro Cuba

By JOHN VIRTUE

HAVANA (UPI) — One of the few private businesses flourishing in Communist Cuba is the black market.

This illegal trade started early in the revolution and became firmly entrenched as a result of the rationing of food, clothing and other everyday essentials, plus a shortage of car parts. But it is a dangerous business with both the buyer and the seller risking a jail sentence.

Because of the scarcity of goods and the risks involved, prices on the black market are high. For example, meat has been selling for $5-7 a pound, chicken for $3.50 a pound, coffee for $10 a pound, eggs 30-40 cents each, men's shoes for $50 and spark plugs for $7 each.

There is also trade in luxury items smuggled in from abroad. American cigarettes, still very popular in Cuba, sell for up to $3.50 a pack, Scotch brings $75-100 per bottle, while chewing gum goes for $1 a pack.

The black market operates everywhere in Cuba to varying degrees. But it does its best business in Havana where the most money is available.

The black market does not appear to be organized, except possibly in the field of car parts, most of which are stolen. It is said that some black marketeers can promise three-hour delivery on a requested part.

Some of the foodstuff which finds its way onto the black market is believed to be stolen from restaurants and grocery stores, now practically all taken over by the government, and from stockyards and slaughter houses. Some small farmers prefer to sell their produce to black marketeers rather than to the Agrarian Reform Institute. The only marketing body for agricultural goods.

As the government is often the victim in the theft of goods destined for the black market, the severity of jail sentences varies according to the item involved and its source. The sentencing of black marketeers is rarely published, but the terms are said to run as high as 30 years.

Because of this, the black marketeers keep out of sight and a would-be customer must nose around before finding one. This sometimes means dealing with two or three contact men, each of whom gets a cut of the final price, thus adding to the cost of dealing in the black market.

The main goods sought in the black market are foodstuffs because the amount of food which can be bought with a ration book — for example, 12 ounces of meat per person per week — is often not enough for a family. If the Cuban has money, he will take his family to a restaurant or deal in the black market in order to supplement the ration.

Drinking of Beer Prevents Flight

One sip followed another, and he tried a running takeoff. But he couldn't get airborne and crumpled in a heap.

He shuffled back to the beer can for a few more sips, and tried once again to get both feet off the ground. But Jackie had no luck, and was last seen shuffling south on U.S. highway 17.

Why didn't the police book him? Offirers said they debated it, but they could only book humans. Jackie is a seagull.

Real Estate Woman Delivers Her Baby

DENVER (UPI)— Mrs. Lucy Ibbotson of Denver made it to the hospital Friday seven hours after delivering her own baby.

The 36-year-old real estate saleswoman said she had to deliver the baby herself when she decided birth was too close for her to get to a hospital in time.

After delivering the baby, Mrs. Ibbotson was too busy to go right to the hospital. She had to send her other children off to school. "Business first," she said.

When she finally got to Colorado General Hospital, doctors said she was in A-1 condition.

Her husband, Bobby, a salesman for the Chocolate Co. of America, was in the Durango area on business during the early morning hours Friday while his wife was delivering the baby.

The baby is 6½ pound Charles, the ninth for the couple.

Mrs. Ibbotson said all the rest of the children were born in hospitals under normal circumstances.

The Average Things Made Him Seek Something Else

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Morris G. Watkins is a man with a lovely home, a healthy family and a good education. Yet those are the things that make him restless and have altered his life.

Watkins went to Africa in 1950 to teach in a Lutheran high school there. He came back to the United States in 1953 to continue his education because he felt "that the Africans needed men who could teach the word of God rather than that of Shakespeare."

He and his wife had four children at that time. Watkins taught school in the states for three years until he had enough money to go to seminary. After three years, he returned to Africa in 1959.

"Two missionaries had gone into the territory during these intervening years," Watkins said, "but there were 40 tribes and 40 languages just in a small area. When I first began preaching there, it was very difficult to learn the languages. The slightest inflections made a difference in the meaning. For instance, the word for Lord and the word for mosquito are the same, except for a slight inflection. It was several days before I learned that I had been telling the natives how merciful the mosquito was.

"With the language barrier, we tried to find natives from each tribe who spoke English. We were able to locate only 24 from 9 tribes. We used them but in 1962 I decided I would have to come back to the United States to learn some language technique if I wanted to communicate, learn to write down these languages, translate the Bible into the languages and teach the natives how to read it.

"So, my wife and I packed up our family again and came home to the Kennedy School for Missions in Hartford, Conn. I spent a year of study, then returned to Africa. At that time, we had eight children.

"We had been back in Africa only a short while when several of the children came down with Dengue Fever. It's carried by mosquitoes. It causes a high fever and stiffening of the joints. I got it at the same time and some of my joints still are stiff.

"A couple of the children also caught an unusual type of virus. Our 26-month-old baby died of it. Finally, we all were so sick that my wife and I packed and came back to the United States again.

"I felt like the Lord wanted me to make the most of my training and experience. Also, I felt the burden of responsibility for all those people who had never heard the word of God.

"We got back here in January 1964 and I began a program for recruitinng and training young people here to go there to teach. We want people with at least two years college training, plus one year of intensive Bible study and one year at the University of California School of Linguistics. Of course, I am able to tell them exactly what training they will need so that they won't waste time going back and forth as I had to do. So far about 20 students have expressed an interest in this kind of work. In fact, there is one young man who I hope will be ready to go to the linguistics school next fall.

"My family and I miss it very much. The older children have spent so much time there, they like Africa better than being here. My wife taught them at home until they reached the fourth grade level. She is a parochial school teacher. But after that, we had to send them 270 miles away to school. It's wonderful being together again.

"For now, I will do what I can here to interest young people in teaching in Africa and hope that someday, when the children are grown, I will be able to go back to carry on my work."

Watkins will speak this morning at services in the Rock of Ages Church here. Early in the week, he will return to his home in California.

Sudanese President Agrees to Quit Post

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — President Ibrahim Abboud, under pressure from a new civilian cabinet, has agreed to resign as chief of state and army commander, an authoritative source said today.

Abboud agreed after Prime Minister Sir El Khatim Khalifa told him the "national front" wants to set up a three-man civilian council to act as chief of state until elections, the source added.

Abboud's departure would strip the last vestige of military rule in Sudan. He gave up most of his powers last month following 10 days of violent street demonstrations.

Police Have Special Interest in Thief

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Police have a special interest in catching the thief who robbed James Reilly's apartment Friday.

Reilly, a traffic officer, said he took, among other things, 50 tickets to next month's police benefit show.

Eyewitness Tells of Fight In Viet Nam in September

An eyewitness account of a small action between Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in September is compared to the historic siege of the Alamo in Texas by Capt. Richard F. Ratke, a U. S. Army adviser in Hau Nghia.

The captain reported that one 25-man platoon of Vietnamese Civil Guardsmen decided to reoccupy La Cua post 25 miles west of Saigon in an isolated area held nainly by Viet Cong.

"On the night of September 18, two companies of the Viet Cong 506th Battalion, reinforced by a heavy weapons platoon, attacked the post with mortars, recoilless rifles and all other weapons.

"Twice they made an all out assault and were beaten back. The third time they overran the post.

Captain Ratke tells that "when the Viet Cong finally broke into the post, only five men were left unwounded. These five took eight wounded and ten weapons into the surrounding swamps and hid until the Communists left.

"It takes a lot of guts to load yourself down when you get to the stage where escape and evasion become mandatory," he wrote.

"The wife of the wounded platoon leader was killed during the onslaught and he refused to leave until it was too late. He was captured by the Viet Cong and . . . shot through the head.

"The only automatic weapon which did not fall into enemy hands was passed to a buddy by a dying gunner to keep it from the Viet Cong. The next day one more carbine was found in the mud where it was buried by a dying soldier the night before.

"One woman, after her husband was shot, took his weapon to prevent its loss. The next day at Hiep Hoa I saw her sitting on the ground still guarding that weapon.

"I knew these soldiers. Some of them were my friends. . .The people that fought at La Cua have no more to be ashamed of than the Americans who defended the Alamo.

"I can only hope that when the time comes for me to get my tail shot off, I will be standing next to people like the members of the platoon at La Cua. . . we jokingly call the 'the little guys' but they're awfully long on guts."

Classmate Charged With Stealing Ring

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — A senior at Vassar College has been charged with stealing a classmate's $3,500 diamond engagement ring and selling it for half its appraised value.

The girl, Judith Lee Stronach, 21, of New York City, was released by a justice of the peace Friday in $1,000 bond on a grand larceny charge. She has resigned from Vassar, police said.

Police said the ring, recovered in New York City, had been sold for $1,700. It was the engagement ring of Suzanne W. Baird, a senior, of Saint Davids, Pa., who reported the ring missing from her room Oct. 26.

Reporter Has Comments On Creativity

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK (NEA) — Before answering reader mail, we would like to extend heartiest wishes for success to the new non-profit Creative Americans Foundation and its chairman, Steve Allen.

The CAF—the first foundation of its kind—aims to find creative outlets for millions of Americans who cannot cope with the increasing leisure time thrust upon them by labor-saving devices and antibiotics.

These empty and frustrating spare hours account for all sorts of national ailments, including the high rate of divorce, delinquency, experimental films and nonprofit foundations. But, as Mr. Allen told us, it is not a hopeless situation.

"Most of us can be creative if we give ourselves a chance," he said. "It will be the task of the foundation to find means of making our nation more aware of its creative possibilities."

Among the foundation's plans to gain this end are: an all-out high school essay contest on the creative uses of leisure; industrial programs and seminars in creativity; national creativity award; and local Creative Americans Committees to liberate creativity at the grass roots.

Regular readers of this column know, of course, how closely this program parallels the work we are doing here at the Institute. To see a national foundation taking up arms in the same struggle gives us renewed courage and strength to go on.

And now a peek into the mailbag:

DEAR DR. CANNEL: I would like to try my hand at a little tombstone carving and have secured the necessary tools and granite. It it all right to go ahead with this project?

ANSWER: Unfortunately, our records at the Institute do not show any tombstone carvers in your Leisure Area at the present time. If you are carving toward a creativity merit badge, you will have to wait until a competitor comes along.

DEAR DR. CANNEL: I am a girl 9 years old and still in the eighth grade as I cannot seem to get a passing mark in Retirement Preparation. What can I do about this?

ANSWER: Yours is a simple problem of motivation. Send one dollar ($1) to us here at the Institute for the informative booklet, "The Middle-Aged Child."

DEAR DR. CANNEL: Thought you might be interested in our discovery here at Detroit Creative Leisure Post No. 15 specializing in miniature model autos. We find that if each fellow takes charge of a particular part — steering wheel, say, or grille—we can turn out 50 or 60 models in one evening and have the rest of the week free for television or bowling.

ANSWER: It is always gratifying to hear of a local post pushing through the frontiers of creativity.

DEAR DR. CANNEL: Institute creativity course excellent stop however I still have 25 empty frustrating minutes between lunch and glass blowing stop wire instructions collect pronto.

ANSWER: Dreadfully sorry for inconvenience stop suggest earlier glass blowing or bigger lunch stop send one dollar for informative Institute booklet on how to make unique cordial glasses after a heavy meal.

Portugal Angry Over Pope's Plans

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Angered by Pope Paul VI's coming visit to India, Portuguese authorities have shut down a Roman Catholic magazine carrying a story about the Eucharistic Congress in Bombay.

Catholic Portugal considers India an enemy because in 1961 the Indians seized Goa and two other Portuguese enclaves. Officials have banned all mention of the Eucharistic Congress the Pope will attend.

The November issue of Alem-Mar (Overseas), a magazine of the Combonian missionary order, was ordered withdrawn from circulation although its article on the Congress was written before the ban was announced.

The magazine has been suspended until further notice.

SAN CRISTOBAL, Venezuela (UPI) — Police in this border city arrested 15 persons, including a woman, as suspects in a stolen car ring.

The suspects are charged with stealing cars in Venezuela and driving them to Colombia for sale after changing license plates and the engine serial numbers and falsifying ownership papers.

Truck Drivers and Infants Share the Same Bad Habits

By The Colorado Chiropractic Society

It is an odd comparison, but babies and truck drivers are both subject to a costly bad habit.

The habit: damaging posture.

The cost: spinal distortion.

A vast number of mothers put their babies on their stomachs each day during nap time, and this, according to the doctor of chiropractic, encourages improper growth of the spinal bones in the infant's neck. While the baby sleeps, the joints in the neck grow distorted. Nerve flow is cut down, and in some cases it is cut off altogether, accounting for injury to various parts of the body through commonly known diseases. Palsy of the limbs, digestive malfunction, rheumatic fever, kidney infection — nerve failure can cause them. Sufficient nerve blockage can bring death while the baby sleeps.

In the same way, the modern truck driver often spends many hours driving hundreds of miles a day with his spine curved into a shallow "S" shape — he keeps his left elbow propped on the window. This also applies to many others whose work involves a great deal of driving.

This unnatural posture habit, if continued over a period of time, keeps the spinal bones pinched together on one side, and wide apart on the other. As a result, nerve trunks feeding out between the bones take a beating through squeezing or outright damage. This, of course, means nerve starvation for some part of the body. Truck drivers sometimes complain of pain in the lower part of the back, finding relief through chiropractic correction of the spinal curvature which causes it.

The doctor of chiropractic gives these rules for mothers of small babies, and men who drive a great deal:

1. Keep your baby on its back or side to prevent damaging twisting of the spinal bones in the neck.

2. Get periodic spinal checkups — delicate scientific equipment and your highly trained chiropractor will tell the story of any trouble before it develops into something dangerous.

3. Keep the back straight as an arrow rather than curved like an "S" when you drive.

4. Take quick steps to get chiropractic care when any physical pain or disablement comes without apparent cause.
